Roosevelt Off Astoria; Will Land Today

Spends Last Night on Cruiser at Anchor, Before Tour.

New Dealers and Family Gather to Make Trip Back.

By Raymond Clapper.

Portland, Oreg., Aug. 2.—Back from his long vacation cruise, President Roosevelt was spending tonight aboard the cruiser Houston, anchored at the mouth of the Columbia River, some hundred miles away, killing time pending his scheduled arrival here at noon tomorrow.

The Houston anchored at Desdemona Sands, about 3 miles from Astoria, Oreg., at noon. Tomorrow morning the cruiser will s... up the Columbia River and land the President, who will leave at once on his cross-country train trip back to Washington.

Meantime, ranking figures of the New Deal are concentrating in Portland preparatory to joining the President tomorrow for the return trip. The Presidential train will be a virtual New Deal on wheels. For not only will the President be joined by Mrs. Roosevelt and their son, James, but the party will be enlarged by the presence of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Secretary of Interior Ickes, Secretary of War Dern and Secretary of Commerce Roper, and White House Secretaries Louis McHenry Howe and Stephen T. Early, not to mention numerous public officials, candidates for office, leading citizens and White House staff assistants.

Secretaries Arrive.

Secretaries Howe and Early arrived at Portland today and set to work immediately on a stack of mail two feet high, most of it consisting of letters from office holders and politicians who wished to board the Presidential train and bask in the Roosevelt smile before their constituents as his train crosses the Pacific Northwest.

Portland citizens have organized for an enthusiastic demonstration. State guard troops will man the dock when President Roosevelt lands. Flags have been ordered out through the business and residential districts. Portland, a Republican city which went for the New Deal, is mobilizing to give Mr. Roosevelt a monster reception on his return from his long vacation cruise.

As soon as he lands, President Roosevelt will be driven out over the scenic Columbia highway to the site of Bonneville Dam, some 40 miles northeast of Portland, to inspect the beginnings of one of the bigger PWA projects. He is expected to make a brief speech there. Then he will board his special train and travel overnight to Spokane and by automobile visit the other great Columbia River project, the site of Grand Coulee Dam, some 75 miles west of Spokane, before proceeding into Montana to spend the week-end in Glacier National Park.

Three Precinct Workers Seized in Disorders in Tennessee.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 2 (AP).—Gov. Hill McAlister, seeking Democratic renomination for a two-year term, took an early lead tonight as returns were tabulated from today's primary. Returns from 137 out of 2,277 in the State gave: McAlister, 6,818; Lewis Pope, 6,666.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 2 (AP).—The arrest of three precinct watchers in Memphis and death of a man shot during a political quarrel at Madisonville were recorded today as an estimated 260,000 Democrats and 110,000 Republicans balloted in biennial State-wide primaries.

The watchers were acting for Lewis S. Pope, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor against Gov. Hill McAlister, who is supported by the powerful Memphis political organization.

John Tallent, 40-year-old father of four children, died a few hours after receiving three bullet wounds in an election argument.

His alleged assailant was arrested, but a brother of the prisoner freed him from officers at pistol point before the jail was reached. He was not recaptured.

Senator Nathan L. Bachman, appointed by Gov. McAlister when Cordell Hull resigned after his appointment as Secretary of State, sought the nomination for the rest of Hull's term. His opponent was Gordon Browning, for 12 years representative from the Seventh District.

So sure of Democratic renomination for a six-year term was Senator K. D. McKellar that he set up no campaign organization and did little speech-making. His opponent was Dr. John R. Neal, chief of the defense counsel in the Scopes evolution trial at Dayton in 1925.

Scant Play Facilities Of Capital Deplored

Predicament of City, Having Sixth of Recreational Capacities in Comparable Communities, Laid to Lack of Administrative Unity.

(This is the first of a series of articles on Washington's public recreational facilities.)

By James D. Secrest.

Should you take a notion on one of these hot summer days to take a dip in an artificial swimming pool, to play a round of golf or a few sets of tennis, you probably would encounter several difficulties if you felt entitled to use Washington's public facilities, and might be discouraged to the extent of going to a commercial resort that lacked the red tape of governmental operation.

In the first place, unless you selected a time when most Washingtonians are working, you would encounter crowds of other persons with the same idea, and probably would have a long wait before accomplishing your purpose.

That would be because Washington has less than a sixth the public swimming pool capacity it should have and about half the number of public golf holes and tennis courts which the National Recreation Association says a city the size of Washington needs, especially if it is the National Capital.

But you would have the unequaled opportunity of deciding whether you wanted to stand in line on property controlled by the District government directly, the Board of Education, the National Park Service of the Interior Department, or concessioners.

For instance, you might swim in a school pool controlled by the Community Center Department or a school pool operated by a concessionaire under the National Capital Park Office of the Interior Department, or you might take a dip in the Washington Monument pool, which is on Federal property but is operated by the District Playground Department.

As for golf, you could use any one of 10 9-hole courses of varying

U. S. Rushes Inflationary Silver Bills

$50,000,000 to Be Placed in Circulation Shortly, Morgenthau Says.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., yesterday announced that the printing presses are grinding out the first batch of silver cerificates authorized by inflationary provisions of the silver purchase act of 1934.

Almost $50,000,000 in new bills will be pumped into circulation within the next 60 days, he said, in answer to insistent demands of Senator Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma inflationist, that instructions in the act be carried out.

Exhibiting a sheaf of the new bills, Mr. Morgenthau explained that the delay so far has been due to the necessity of preparing plates and that further issues will come from the Bureau of Engraving "as long as we can buy new silver."

Backed by Silver.

Already the Bureau of Engraving has turned out $12,804,000 in $1 certificates and $11,650,000 in $5 bills, it was said, and production of $10 certificates will be started soon. Issues of $20 and $100 are scheduled to come from the presses during the next two months.

The new money will be backed by approximately 62,250,000 ounces of free silver bullion — exact figures were not available—listed by the Treasury July 31 at $47,035,936. Since the Treasury had on hand 62,128,451 ounces before the act was adopted June 19, almost none of the silver represents new purchases.

Under terms of the act the Secretary of the Treasury is directed to purchase silver at home and abroad, at his own figures, until silver reaches a 25-75 ratio with gold as the metallic backing for currency. Almost 1,300,000 ounces must be acquired to attain this proportion, officials have estimated.

In addition, the Secretary is instructed to issue certificates up to the amount of the cost of the silver —in this case approximately $47,000,000. Further, he is given discretionary power to issue new currency up to the "monetary value" of silver, which would mean $1.29 for each ounce held—more than twice its cost.

Amount of Purchase Secret.

For the present, at least, Mr. Morgenthau disclosed, he intends to print certificates only up to the actual cost of the silver. After this phase of the latest currency experiment has been given a trial, officials will determine whether the Treas-

Japanese Arrest 20 Russian Officials

Moscow, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—Dispatches from Habarovsk, in Far Eastern Siberia, tonight said Japanese gendarmes had arrested 20 Soviet officials on the railroad near Pogranichnaya, north of Manchuria.

The move was interpreted in Moscow as an effort by Japan to disorganize the railroad administration in the hope the Russian government will accept a lower price Manchukuo is trying to buy the Chinese Eastern Railway from Moscow.

Judge Collier, in commenting on the divorce, said he intended to check methods by which it was obtained to determine if there was any irregularity.

Squall Ruins Homes, Hurts 12 at Resort

Baltimore, Aug. 2 (AP).—A sudden tornado blew out of Chesapeake Bay today and leveled eight homes and injured a dozen persons at Hickory Point, a summer colony south of here.

The squall struck without warning, lasted but five minutes, shortly afterward the sun was shining.

A 10-foot wave, 100 feet long, washed up Grays Creek on which the colony is located, but spent its force before reaching the residential section. Some witnesses described the wave as a water spout.

The wind cut a swath 100 feet wide and 400 feet long, damaging practically everything in its path.

A small cottage was swept 50 feet and a 200-pound ice box was picked from a back porch and hurled 75 feet.

Miss Margaret Irvin, of Baltimore, was the most seriously injured, suffering a lacerated arm when a door slammed on her. She was brought to a hospital here.

Others narrowly escaped injury. Six persons were in the same five-room cottage with Miss Irvin when the structure crashed in to splinters about their ears.

Mrs. Sallie Garrett saved herself and her three children by jerking a mattress from a bed and using it as a shield. Timbers, shingles, and debris buried the mattress. A minister aided in freeing them.

Colored Servants Of Miss Dressler Inherit $50,000

Los Angeles, Aug. 2 (AP).—Two colored servants inherited $50,000 and some valuable personal property today from the estate of Marie Dressler.

The actual value of property left by the star, who reputedly received $3,000 weekly, was not given when the will was filed for probate, but it was estimated at $300,000 or more.

To Mamie Cox, maid who served the actress for many years, went the largest specific bequest—$35,000 and Miss Dressler's wearing apparel. The maid's husband, Jerry Cox, chauffeur and houseman, was given $15,000 and the Dressler automobiles. The bulk of the estate is to go to Miss Dressler's sister, Bonita Ganthony, who lives in England.

Police Guard to Protect Kidnap Trial Witness

Chicago, Aug. 2 (AP).—A police guard was planned tonight for the return trip home of Harry Welch, Toledo merchant, after his testimony brought sentences of 25 years each to three kidnapers and extortionists.

The police guard was standing by because Welch said he had received several death threats. An investigation is under way.

Court Order Halts Long's Martial Law

Writ Restrains Troops in Registration Office Row.

'Kingfish' Appoints Own Tax Assessors for New Orleans.

New Orleans, Aug. 2 (AP).—Senator Huey P. Long was served at 6 o'clock tonight with a court order demanding the immediate demobilization of the National Guard, which he had Gov. O. K. Allen call out last Monday on a partial martial law proclamation to seize the New Orleans' voters' registration office.

New Orleans, Aug. 2 (AP).—City officials obtained a court order today stopping the Huey Long-controlled militia from carrying out the Governor's proclamation of martial law in the city voting registration office.

The order was granted after Long had tightened his grip on the city by causing the appointment of tax assessors to take charge of property valuations, in place of the assessment board elected by voters last fall.

The restraining order obtained by city authorities was aimed at the adjutant general and Long to prevent the carrying out of the orders issued by Gov. O. K. Allen.

The petition described Long as "the conspirator and instigator" of martial law and referred to Allen "as but a tool" in his hands.

Naming of the tax assessors was termed by Mayor Walmsley "new infamy and outrage—the work of a madman seking to destroy the city."

Act Called Usurpation.

"This usurpation of the assessor's office will not be recognized by the City of New Orleans."

Gov. Allen, lieutenant in the Long organization and usually a background figure is the major dispute betwen Senator Long and Mayor Walmsley, answered by "warning" New Orleans officials "to desist from advertising delinquent tax property," which he charged was being done in violation of moratorium resolutions passed by the last Legislature.

While the leaders wrangled in public statements, the city maintained an outward calm, the only public sign of the bitter factional dispute being the twoscore National Guardsmen standing duty with full arms in the registration office across the street from City Hall.

Machine Guns Out of Sight.

Machine guns which the militiamen had kept trained on the City Hall entrance for two days were temporarily out of sight.

Some of the several hundred National Guardsmen mobilized at Jackson Barracks during the last few days were relieved from duty, but the city continued to maintain its augmented police force of 1,400 heavily armed officers, concentrated at headquarters and in the City Hall, pending developments.

The assessors named by the State Tax Commission today to take charge of the assessment rolls in New Orleans and disregard the elected board of local assessors were the ward leaders of the Long political machine. They were empowered to write the assessments of all city property for all city, parish and State taxation purposes.

Walmsley charged the move was further reprisal against the city because of the defeat of the Long forces, including the Long candidates for assessors in the last municipal primary.

Hitler Seizes Full Powers In Reich; Army Backs Him; Nation Mourns Hindenburg Tannenberg Memorial to Hold Remains of German Leader.

Peaceful Death Followed Prayer

Funeral Cortege Will Traverse Route 60 Miles Long Tuesday.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

Neudeck, Germany, Aug. 2 (AP).—Paul von Hindenburg, aristocrat, soldier and statesman, was honored tonight by his fatherland in death as he had been in life.

The body of the Reichspresident lay in state in his country home, where he died at 9 a. m. today (3 a. m., Eastern Standard Time). A detachment of his beloved Reichswehr stood guard.

Next Tuesday a great national funeral will be held for the man who in nearly 87 years served his country in three wars and for 9 years stood at the head of the nation through troubled times.

Death Comes Painlessly.

Death came peacefully and without pain after weeks of suffering, through which the venerable field marshal-general maintained his usual proud and erect carriage.

Last night Von Hindenburg, who was deeply religious, lifted his hands in prayer.

Then, with a look of contentment on his face and hands folded on his breast, he fell into a sleep from which he never awoke.

The huge fortress-like memorial at Tannenberg, erected near Hohenstein on the spot where Von Hindenburg's army turned back invading Russians 20 years ago this month, will be the scene of his funeral.

His body will lie in this monument to his military prowess and patriotism.

Family Yields to Plea

His family, it was announced in Berlin, yielded to a plea of the government that the final resting place of the hero be given national significance.

Von Hindenburg himself had expressed the wish to be buried in the Neudeck estate, which was so close to his heart in his later years, but the family consented to the other plan.

There will be a funeral oration by Adolf Hitler, who succeeded Von Hindenburg in the presidency while retaining the chancellorship.

Thousands of Germans—from peasant to president—will pay their tribute.

After Hitler's oration and other services the body will be placed in one of the high projecting towers which abut the corners of the monument.

The services will be as impressive as Germany can make them and will be broadcast to virtually every part of the globe.

The final services will start at 11 a. m., Tuesday (5 a. m., Eastern standard time).

The body will be brought to the monument in a flag-draped coffin placed on a caisson. With Hitler and other national figures in the procession, a motorcade will move at solemn speed from Neudeck to Tannenberg, a distance of 60 miles.

The spot where Von Hindenburg will be buried is remembered not only as that where he stemmed the Russian invasion, but also as the place where he denounced the "German war guilt lie."

On September 18, 1927, when he dedicated the monument, Von Hindenburg abandoned the traditional silence of German presidents re-

Vienna Chief Eases Strain With Berlin

Vienna, Aug. 2 (AP).—Comment interpreted as an effort to ease strained relations between Germany and Austria was made by Austria's new chancellor, Kurt Schuschnigg, as he expressed regret over the death of President Paul von Hindenburg of Germany.

Schuschnigg added that the Austrian cabinet will take up next week the question of accepting Franz von Papen as minister to Austria. He indicated the door has not been closed to the acceptance of the man on whom Adolf Hitler apparently had relied to restore amiable relations with Austria.

Schuschnigg expressed the essential solidarity of all Germans, whether Austrian, Bavarian or Prussian, as he made a feeling tribute to Von Hindenburg as "the sacred symbol of Germanism."

The news of Von Hindenburg's death made a profound impression throughout Austria, the chancellor said.

"The report reached us almost at the graveside of our own Chancellor Dollfuss," he said.

"Through all the events of recent days, the name of Von Hindenburg has remained for us a symbol of the German people," he added.

Those who heard the chancellor's tribute and regarded it a peace gesture toward Germany saw further

Dillinger's Brain Destroyed in Test; No Mental Ills

Chicago, Aug. 2 (AP).—The secret of what happened to John Dillinger's brain was uncovered today. It was removed and subsequently destroyed in the course of microscopic examination, Dr. Jerry Kearns, of the Cook County coroner's staff, disclosed.

The solution to the mystery came shortly after John Dillinger, sr., the dead bandit's father, announced at Indianapolis he had decided not to disinter the body to check up on the missing part. He said he realized the removal was not for malicious purposes and an autops... was made in the hope its study "might add to scientific knowledge and thereby be an aid to mankind."

The examination disclosed that Dillinger was sober and not under the influence of drugs when shot. No conclusion was drawn as to the bandit's mentality other than to note there was no evidence of mental ailment.

U. S. Sympathy Is Expressed By President

Whether Public Will Rally to Nazi Chief Stirs Diplomats.

Official Washington and diplomatic circles received the announcement of the death of President Paul von Hindenburg of Germany yesterday with regret and apprehension. The impression prevailed that his passing would precipitate a turning point in German and possibly European affairs.

It was considered particularly unfortunate coming at a time when German and Austrian developments had brought about a strained situation throughout central Europe.

The assumption of the Presidency by Chancellor Hitler came as no surprise to Government officials, but they refrained from commenting on its political significance. In other quarters, however, belief prevailed that the Nazi party would find its power strengthened. Certainty was felt that in any event a crisis for the Hitler regime existed and that it would alter the dictator's present position.

Consensus was that while Germany's "Grand Old Man" lived, the popular support he received constituted a valuable and much needed stabilizing influence. Whether this support veers toward Hitler or away, observers held, constitutes the

Storm Kills 3 Wrecks Ship

$1,000,000 Damage Done in Eastern Michigan by Wind, Rain.

Detroit, Aug. 2 (AP).—At least three persons were killed, a crowded excursion steamer was driven ashore and property damage unofficially estimated at more than $1,000,000 was done by a heavy wind and rain storm which raged over Eastern Michigan late today.

The storm, sweeping southward from Flint, unroofed or demolished buildings, uprooted trees and disrupted communication and power services in four counties.

The steamer Tashmoo, en route to Detroit with 250 excursionists, was driven ashore on the Canadian side of the St. Clair River near Algonac. Both paddle wheels were smashed. Coast Guards tok off 150 passengers. The 100 remaining aboard were believed to be in no danger, as the storm had subsided. The steamer Put-in-Bay was dispatched from Detroit to the stranded steamer.

Flint suffered most from the storm, at least 10 injuries and one death being reported there.

Cabinet Indorses Coup; Plebiscite Is Set for August 19.

Navy Also Takes Oath of Loyalty

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

Berlin, Aug. 2.—Adolf Hitler in a series of swift moves made himself absolute dictator of Germany today.

He concentrated in his hands the functions of President and of Chancellor as soon as the aged President, Paul von Hindenburg, died at Neudeck.

Then he called for and received an oath of personal allegiance from officers and men of the entire army and navy.

After these moves, amounting to a coup d'etat, the former lance corporal who succeeded a field marshal, called for a plebiscite August 19.

Declines Title.

In a letter to Wilhelm Frick, minister of the interior, Hitler outlined his plans to assume the office without the title, saying he desired henceforth to be known as before, as "Fuehrer and Reichschancellor."

"The necessity for regulating the question of the chief of state, caused by the national misfortune that has overtaken our people," Hitler wrote, "leads me to issue the following order:

"First, the greatness of the deceased has given to the title of Reichspresident unique and non-recurring significance, according to the feeling of all of us, and in what it meant to us, this title is indissolubly bound up with the name of the great deceased. I therefore request care be taken in official and unofficial communications to address me just as heretofore, as Fuehrer and Reichschancellor only. This stipulation is to be observed in the future also.

Asks People's Approval.

"Second, I desire the vesting in my person, and thereby in the Reichschancellor's office as such, of the functions of the former Reichspresidency, decided upon by the cabinet and constitutionally valid, shall receive the expressed sanction of the German people.

"Steeped in the conviction that all authority of the State must proceed from the people and by them be ratified in free, secret election, I request you immediately to lay the decision of the cabinet, with possible necessary additions, before the German people for a free plebiscite."

Plebiscites in Nazi Germany have come to mean rubber stamps and the impending "folk elections" promises to be no exception.

The rapidity of the action which concentrated authority over 65,000,000 Germans in the hands of one man recalled the speed with which the Nazis first came to power.

Once again the Germans showed they are a disciplined people. The change from a country governed at least theoretically by a constitution, to absolute dictatorship, seemed to cause no ripples.

Reichswehr Obedient Too.

It was but another incident in Nazism's consolidation of its position.

Dire whisperings that the Reichswehr, which worshipped President von Hindenburg as a hero, might refuse obedience proved unfounded.

By nightfall, the propaganda ministry announced, the entire army and navy had taken the oath.

It was administered wherever detachments happened to be, or wherever ships lay at anchor or moved through the seas.

Though everything thus far has gone smoothly, Hitler is known to realize that a terrific task confronts him.

It was impressed on him by various advisers who visited him today—notably, Wilhelm Frick and Hermann William Goering, cabinet members—that the world looked on Von Hindenburg as the last brake on impetuous, unbridled radicalism in Germany.

Whole World Watching.

Hitler's more conservative advisers urged he must give proof that under his leadership Germany will not embark on policies and experiments which will bring her into conflict with the whole world.

Political circles expect that the new President-Chancellor will incorporate into his funeral oration for Von Hindenburg Tuesday reassuring words as to the future of the third Reich.

Some observers saw in the haste with which the new oath was administered to the army an indication that Hitler decided to take no chances—that he believes in surprise movements executed before a possible opponent has time to think.

These are the same quick, surprise tactics which he employed in

Reporter Gets Thrill As "Voice of Safety"

It's Great Sport "Calling Down" Traffic Violators, He Finds in First Mike Experience.

By Gerald G. Gross.

This reporter was the "Voice of Safety" for a spell yesterday and his head's still ringing with, "Will the two girls in white please wait for the green light?" and "California, you're parking abreast; please move along."

As the first press representative to take over the "mike" in the grotesquely groomed safety car, our observations were:

1. That the novel idea actually seems to be taking effect in reducing the number of minor traffic violations such as jaywalking, parking double, failing to signal for a turn, &c.

2. That Henry Nestor, "the singing cop," really doesn't croon when advising pedestrians and motorists to stay within the law.

3. That Washington drivers aren't as bad as they are cracked up to be, or else the Voice and the traffic observer campaign are proving their efficiency in a big hurry.

4. That the safety car does not merit the asserted predictions it will defeat its own purpose by causing traffic tie-ups and even accidents, due to the tendency of curious drivers and walkers to ogle the motorized kibitzer.

5. That a strong rain puts the voice on the bosh.

Our first dart, which simply oozed politeness, was directed at a woman crossing Fourteenth street just below U. She responded to the warning against jaywalking between intersections with an expansive smile.

Then, by contrast, there was the defiant customer at Seventh and E streets. An infant was in her arms and a 4-year-old clung to her skirt as she stepped off the curb in the face of a red light.

"The women with two children will be safer if she steps back on the curb and waits for the signal to change," suggested the Voluminous Voice.

That made up her mind. She suppressing the revolt in his own party June 30.

But he will go through the motions of asking for popular approval.

General Approval Asked.

On August 19 the German people will go to the polls to put their stamp of approbation on the cabinet's action, in setting aside the law which provides for an interim President.

Besides being asked to approve the combining of the Presidency with the chancellorship, the voters are expected to be asked to pass on Nazi policies in general.

This concentration of powers gives the 45-year-old former enlisted man authority which no Wilhelm and no Bismarck ever held.

News of Von Hindenburg's death found the chancellor haggard of countenance and pacing back and forth in his long study.

He was waiting to succeed a man almost twice his age, and at that hour he wanted to be alone. He pushed aside intimates, such as Frick, Goering and Ernest Hanfstaengel.

Army Takes Oath.

The cabinet already had made him President, his term beginning with the moment when "Der Alte" closed his eyes.

The one possible stumbling block—the army—loyally took an oath of allegiance to this youngish commoner, such as only sovereigns heretofore have been able to exact.

The German republic required only an oath of fidelity to the constitution, and the third Reich until now to the state, the people and the fatherland.

Today the Reichswehr men swore: "I swear by God this holy oath: That I shall be absolutely obedient to the leader of the German people, Adolf Hitler, supreme head of the army, and that I will be ready as a brave soldier to give my life for this oath."

Hindenburg Asked No Oath.

Von Hindenburg had required no personal oath. His rank as field marshal general was so high and his valorous deeds as a soldier stood forth so conspicuously, that he probably would have deemed it an insult for anybody to suggest the Reichswehr needed an oath to tie it to him.

Concerning Naziism, on the other hand, there were known to be misgivings or at least reservations within the Reichswehr, so a personal oath of allegiance seemed a matter of political prudence.

Hitler already commanded the uniformed divisions of the Nazi party, and the addition of the Reichswehr gives him the most powerful force in the nation.

While Germany was calm with the sudden change of authority setup, there are classes which will miss Von Hindenburg with particular concern.

Deceased Strong Lutheran.

The president always was a religious man, a supporter of the Lutheran Church. No section of the populace will miss him more than the protestant opposition to Nazification of the church.

Von Hindenburg was the main prop of this opposition, which is led by some of the church's best known clergy.

At several critical moments during Reichsbishop Mueller's stormy incumbency the influence of the aged president was exerted in the direction of supporting views of the opposition.

Another group which has a strong reason to mourn the loss of Von Hindenburg is the old titled gentry. Von Hindenburg was rooted in tradition, and one of his traditions was that noble birth carries not only advantages, but also special duties to folk and fatherland.

Monarchists' Hopes Sink.

In Hitler's Third Reich nobility has been jeered at so often and its traditions so decried that its role as one of the large conserving forces of the nation is widely held to be at an end. With Von Hindenburg will be buried, at least temporarily, the hopes of the Monarchists.

It was always one of Von Hindenburg's dearest wishes to see the Hohenzollerns back on the throne, but the Nazi spokesmen have made their antagonistic attitude clear.

The order to the military forces announcing the death of the President, and calling for the oath, was signed by Gen. Werner von Blomberg, minister of war. It read in part:

"Von Hindenburg, our leader in the great war, has left us. His heroic life as a soldier, imbued with a spirit of duty to folk and fatherland is ended. Every one has faith in Hitler, the leader of our people."

Cabinet Decree.

The cabinet decree, announcing Hitler's assumption of the presidency, said:

"The Reich's government has passed the following law, which is hereby promulgated:

"1. The office of the Reichspresident is united with that of Reichschancellor. In consequence thereof, powers heretofore exercised by the Reichspresident are transferred to Der Fuehrer (Hitler) and the vice chancellor (Franz von Papen). He (Hitler) determines who shall be his deputy."

In the press and through the radio the German people were called on to observe complete mourning for the dead leader.

Von Hindenburg and his career were praised in addresses and statements, and everywhere the public gathered in quiet little groups to discuss the national sorrow.

In Berlin newspapers were bought as fast as they could be passed out, but there was no scramble. Crowds were quiet and subdued out of respect for the aged hero.

Washington Sees Crisis Ahead for Hitler Regime question on which the future of the present regime in Germany may rest.

Papen's Role Discussed.

The role to be played by Franz von Papen, recently named German minister to Austria, and Von Hindenburg's only spokesman in the Hitler Nazi cabinet, also was the subject of speculation. It was believed in some quarters that at least a degree of the popular support and power which had been Von Hindenburg's would fall to Von Papen.

The effect on Von Papen's position aroused concern. He was described as having been protected against attack during the recent "purge" through Von Hindenburg's influence. Later Hitler made public display of his confidence and trust in the vice chancellor.

The German flaw over the embassy was lowered to half staff as Dr. Rudolf Leitner, charge d'affaires, paid a formal visit to the State Department to officially notify the Government of the President's death. The embassy, in common with the entire German government, went into official mourning until after the funeral.

Roosevelt Sends Cable.

Late yesterday the State Department made public a cablegram of condolence from President Roosevelt to Chancellor Hitler. It was the first communication Mr. Roosevelt has had with Hitler. The message read:

"I learn with sincere sorrow of the death of President von Beneckendorff und von Hindenburg, whose long life devoted to his country won for him the love of his fellow citizens and the respect of the entire world. I extend to the Government and the people of Germany my sincerest sympathy in their great loss.

"I beg of you to convey to Col. Oscar von Beneckendorff und von Hindenburg the deep personal condolence of Mrs. Roosevelt and myself."

Col. von Hindenburg is a son of the dead leader.

Hull Voices Sympathy.

Earlier in the day Secretary of State Hull issued the following statement:

"The news of the death of President von Hindenburg has just reached me. In his passing the world lost an outstanding figure, whose character, integrity and loyal devotion to his country have commanded the respect and admiration of all peoples. I join with my fellow countrymen in expressing sincerest sympathy with the people of Germany in the loss of their beloved President."

At the same time Mr. Hull sent the following condolence to Baron von Neurath, German minister of foreign affairs:

"I extend to your excellency sincere condolences on the death of your beloved and venerable President. My fellow citizens join with me in mourning the passing of this great figure whose srevices to his country have commanded universal respect."

Embassy Mourns Loss.

The German Embassy issued the following statement over the name of Dr. Leitner:

"It is with the deepest sorrow that the passing away of our venerable President, Field Marshal von Hindenburg, is mourned by the German people. His death is considered by every German a great personal loss, as he was living in the heart of everyone. He was very highly esteemed by the German nation as one of its greatest patriots, statesmen and soldiers.

"All Germans looked upon him with the utmost love and reverence for his noble character. They were ever conscious of the fact that President von Hindenburg has devoted his entire life to the service of his people and country, and will honor his memory in death as they honored his person in life."

Other Dignitaries Comment.

Other comments were as follows:

Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War in the Hoover Cabinet, and A. E. F. officer—"Von Hindenburg was a brilliant and honest leader. His training and achievements as a soldier led many of us who were his erstwhile enemies to envision him as a ruthless domineering spirit who brooked no barriers in his march to his objectives. Since the war we have been able to see him as a great and sincere citizen striving to promote justice, freedom and peace among the discordant and warring elements of his own people."

Senator James P. Pope, (Democrat), Idaho.—"It is to be hoped that his influence will endure as an example of unselfish and patriotic devotion to his country. His death is fraught with the danger that less mature and less patriotic leaders may not be able to avert serious strife in Germany and with neighboring nations."

March Pays Tribute.

Gen Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff of the United States Army during the World War, gave the United Press the following tribute to Hindenburg:

"The death of Field Marshall Paul von Hindenburg removes from the great figures of the World War the only man who after the war retained the overwhelming support of his country. Clemenceau failed to be elected president of France; Lloyd George was retired as Prime Minister of England; Wilson's League of Nations was repudiated by America and no military leader of any country was given civil honors except the great German.

"It was a striking tribute to his sincerity, character, honesty of purpose and the deep love of his country which was a basic element of his entire career.

"After the Armistice, when other German leaders sought security of neutral countries, he stayed with his army to share their fate whatsoever it was.

"The best type of the trained soldier, he has deserved all the honors which have come to him."

Hindenburg's Death Raises British Fears

Regarded by London as Greatest Stabilizing Influence in Reich.

London, Aug. 2 (AP).—Great Britain's apprehension over Germany's future, now that Von Hindenburg is dead and Adolf Hitler has become the sole arbiter of that nation's affairs, is sharpened by a noticeable "cooling off" in Anglo-German relations the last few months.

A series of incidents, including the German debts controversy and the Austrian situation, has caused differences to increase at the moment the one man regarded the greatest stabilizing influence in Germany passed on.

Sources close to the British government pointed out today that foreign powers can not possibly repose confidence in Hitler to the degree they did in Von Hindenburg.

Condolences Subdued.

Genuine sorrow over Von Hindenburg's death, expressed privately in government circles and reflected among the whole British people, was obviously subdued because of anxiety over Germany's destiny, now that the Reichspresident is gone.

There was a notable lack of public comment from cabinet members and other responsible British leaders despite the exalted position Von Hindenburg held.

The message of King George to Col. Oskar von Hindenburg, the president's son, was a personal communication. It departed from the customary procedure of addressing a message of condolence to an official's successor, in this instance Hitler.

Few to Attend Funeral.

Although the Prince of Wales and others prominent in Great Britain's official life went to the funeral of President Doumer of France, it was announced that only the British ambassador and possibly other officials in Berlin would attend the funeral of Von Hindenburg.

Great Britain's decision in this respect, it was believed, would set a precedent for all other allied countries which participated in the World War.

One diplomat explained that, "while Von Hindenburg was admired universally, it must be remembered that whoever goes to the funeral must shake hands with Hitler."

Cummings Arrives at Honolulu.

Honolulu, Aug. 2 (AP).—Waving aside all discussion of National topics, Attorney General Cummings explained on his arrival here today, from Los Angeles, that he was here solely to confer with Federal officials regarding land condemnation proceedings in connection with a proposed new Army air base.

Drive on Jews Was Checked By Hindenburg

He Laid Restraining Hand on Persecutions, Says Schurman.

Prouts Neck, Me., Aug. 2 (AP).—The restraining hand of the late President von Hindenburg of Germany was laid on the recent anti-Semitic campaign in that country, Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, former Ambassador to Berlin, said today.

Reminiscing in the vacation quiet of Black Point Inn, Dr. Schurman recalled his first meeting with Von Hindenburg in 1925 and his last in 1933.

In the first instance, when he went to Berlin as Ambassador, serving until 1930, the subject of discussion was war-hate of Germany by other nations. A year ago, it was the anti-Semitic campaign, Dr. Schurman said.

Summoned to a friendly chat with Von Hindenburg, whose confidant he was, during his visit to Berlin last year, Dr. Schurman obtained the aged leader's permission to speak frankly and then broached the Jewish question.

"I told him there was serious danger that it would nullify to a considerable extent the restoration of friendly relations between Germany and the United States for which we had both worked hard," Dr. Schurman said.

"I fully recognized the right of Germany to determine the conditions of admission to German citizenship. However, I told him that in a world governed by cause and effect, what Germany did in this matter would produce effects in America and that if it could be shifted from the Jews as a race to the Communists as a subversive political party, all the world would understand and appreciate it.

"I would deem it improper to quote the President's reply but I will say that I learned from another absolutely reliable source that the President had already made his influence felt in the restraint of the anti-Semitic movement."

Vienna Chief Eases Strain With Berlin

reason for optimism in the action of the military court which this afternoon sentenced the third of the Nazi Ballhausplatz invaders to life imprisonment instead of death.

The Austrian chancellor referred to the funeral of Dollfuss as a posthumous approval of the assassinated chancellor's policies.

"Mere thousands actually took arms against the government in the fighting which followed the Ballhausplatz putsch, but hundreds of thousands lined the route over which Dollfuss was carried to his grave," Schuschnigg said.

"We will soon take an opportunity to show the world that the Austrian people gave full approval to Dollfuss' policies," Schuschnigg continued.

The remark was regarded by some as an intimation that a new general election may be held in Austria soon. (The last general election in Austria took place in 1930.)

But there seemed to be less likelihood of an election when he completed the statement by saying that the old forms of parliamentary democracy have vanished forever. He said, however, that through the corporative organization of the new state the people will be given a voice in the affairs of the government.

The Nazi sentenced to life imprisonment today was Paul Hudl, 41-year-old former officer, who was wounded and decorated in the World War.

Although he admitted his part in the putsch of July 25 in which Chancellor Dollfuss was slain, he escaped the sentence of hanging which was imposed and executed in the case of two other putschists and of a Nazi who killed a police officer.

All Germany Pays Tribute To President Von Hindenburg

garding international affairs and said:

"The memory of those who fell here to liberate their homeland and the honor of my comrades who still are living obligate me to declare solemnly at this hour and this place:

"The charge that Germany was the cause of this greatest of all wars, we and the German people in every walk of life reject with unanimity.

"With clean hands we started out in defense of our Fatherland, and with clean hands the German army wielded the sword."

Soldiers to Line Route.

For the first and the last miles of the journey to Tannenberg soldiers will stand at attention on each side of the road.

Preparations were made to handle thousands of guests from all parts of the Reich.

The chief army chaplain will speak for ten minutes, and then President Hitler will deliver his oration.

Before and between the addresses an orchestra will play Beethoven's "Coriolan" overture and selections from his immortal "Eroica" symphony. At the close of the services special marches for regiments which had Von Hindenburg as their chief will be played.

A mass of floral tributes is expected despite requests that they be dispensed with.

All Germany is observing a 14-day period of complete mourning, and many new monuments are expected to be erected.

Family at Bedside.

At the bedside of the "Sturdy Oak of Germany," when death entered the big yellow mansion, were four state physicians and members of the President's family. The latter included Col. Oskar von Hindenburg and two daughters, Frau Irimearde von Brokhusen and Frau Anna Marie von Bentz.

Death had been expected for two or there days, as the stout heart of Von Hindenburg weakened under the encroachments of disease and age. Hope had been given up definitely late yesterday, but the old man lived fully 12 hours after he was said to be on the very threshold of death.

The blue and white Von Hindenburg banner was lowered, and the people hereabouts knowing that the Reich President was gone, bowed in grief. To the residents of the little village of Neudeck and the nearby city of Freystadt his passing meant loss of a close friend as well as a leader.

Church Bells Toll.

Church bells tolled—orders for this already had been given as a tribute to those who lost their lives in the war for which mobilization started 20 years ago today. But they tolled with double meaning as the greatest German hero of that conflict died.

Tannenberg not only is the scene of Von Hindenburg's brilliant victory, but also is the place where 500 years ago the proud Prussian Knightly Orders were defeated by the united forces of Poland and Lithuania. The victory in 1914 had the effect of wiping out that ancient memory.

The army led by Von Hindenburg with Gen. Ludendorf as chief of staff, almost annihilated the Russian "Army of the Narew." About 100,000 men with nearly all their artillery fell into German hands, and Gen. Samsonoff, the Russian commander, committed suicide.

Paid Former Kaiser Tribute.

At Tannenberg in August last year Hitler presented to Von Hindenburg, as the nation's gift, deeds of 5,920 additional acres for his estate. In his speech of thanks, the president said:

"In this hour when I am thinking of my fallen comrades, I also am thinking with reverence, fidelity and gratitude of my kaiser, lord and king.

This was taken by many as a veiled intimation that he hoped for restoration of the monarchy when he was gone, but this wish now seems far from realization.

War Feared Unless Hitler Curbs Tactics

Some French Quarters See Danger of New European Strife.

Paris, Aug. 2 (AP).—France today found herself peering into the grief of troubled Germany for signs of peace or a new war on the twentieth anniversary of the 1914 mobilization.

With Reichspresident Paul von Hindenburg dead, some French official quarters professed to see a danger of a new European conflict unless Adolf Hitler uses his enlarged mastery over Germany to swing his "regime of force" into "more normal" channels.

Misgiving was felt because of uncertainty as to how Germany, harassed by grave economic problems, will accept Hitler as the sole chief, and how far "Der Fuehrer" will go to keep his control over the government.

President Albert Le Brun and Premier Gaston Doumergue telegraphed expressions of sympathy to Hitler, and throughout the nation there were expressions of personal esteem for Von Hindenburg.

The death of the aged German military and political leader recalled their own change in attitude toward him.

During the war he was to the Frenchmen the personification of the menacing German war machine, and as such was thoroughly hated.

But when he was elected President of the Reich in 1925 he was hailed as a tower of strength for the German people who was seeking to avoid war because of his personal realization of its consequences.

Wife No. 1 Names No. 2 Corespondent

Amended Complaint Filed in Bancroft Case.

Los Angeles, Aug. 2 (AP).—Mrs. Octavia Broske Bancroft, second wife of George Bancroft, veteran screen villain, was named corespondent today in an amended complaint to the separate maintenance suit brought by Mrs. Edna G. Bancroft, former actress, who charged Bancroft deserted her October 1, 1917, four years after their marriage.

The amended complaint was filed shortly after Bancroft failed to appear for a meeting with Mrs. Edna Bancroft, who said she had not seen the movie actor in 17 years.

Bancroft's lawyers said he arranged for a divorce from his first wife, and that to the best of his knowledge the divorce was granted.

Dr. Schacht Chosen Minister of Economy

(Copyright, 1934, by the United Press.)

Berlin, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—One of Hitler's first moves in his new office was to announce the appointment of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Reichsbank president, as acting minister of economy for six months. Dr. Kurt Schmitt, incumbent, was given leave of absence, due to "illness."

The announcement said the shift was approved by Von Hindenburg as his last presidential act. Hitler urged Dr. Schacht on Von Hindenburg because "he is best qualified and in the best condition to control foreign exchange and raw material policies of the third Reich."

Hitler also named Dr. Schacht acting Prussian minister of economics, thus taking over Schmitt's Prussian state duties for six months.

Hindenburg Called "Immortal Hero" By Former Kaiser

Doorn, Netherlands, Aug. 2 (AP).—Former Kaiser Wilhelm referred to President Paul von Hindenburg as the "immortal hero of Tannenberg," in a message of smypathy from his exile today.

The message was sent by the former monarch to Col. Oskar von Hindenburg after the word was received of the German President's death. It stated:

"The Kaiserin and I mourn with moved hearts with you and the whole German people. A life richly blessed by the Lord has found its end. The Crown Prince will convey our last greetings and homage to the immortal hero of Tannenberg.

Signed, Wilhelm R. I."

Misunas Bares Tri-State Gang Death, Holdups

Suspect Hopes to Save Neck by Confession, Police Declare.

Detailed accounts of a murder, robberies, and a dozen shootings, told in a manner to rival gangster fiction, were unfolded to police yesterday in a confession by Arthur (Dutch) Misunas, last member of the notorious "tri-State" gang.

In calm, even tones, Misunas admitted, police said, that he hoped to save himself from the electric chair by "turning in his pals." He said he was the gunman who shot Francis White, postal guard, in last December's Union Station mail robbery.

William Davis, alias Walter Legenza, 30, "tri-State" gang leader, was named as the killer of E. M. Huband, Federal Reserve Bank guard, shot down in a daring robbery in Richmond, Va., Davis, described by Misunas as "stir crazy" —deranged from years of imprisonment—is in Richmond awaiting trial.

Pals Are Named.

Language of the underworld was used by Misunas in his detailed confession, police said. In addition to Davis in the Richmond "job," he named Robert Mais, 28; William B. Phillips, 31, killed by police last April at Ontario place and Adams Mill road northwest, and Morris ("Big George") Kauffman, victim of a gangland "ride" in Pittsburgh.

Misunas said he acted as machine gunner for the gang, but denied firing the shot which killed Huband. Davis, he said, shot the truck driver because he "didn't get his hands up quick enough." The robbery netted registered mail and canceled checks. Misunas, Mais and Davis are under indictments for Huband's murder.

Readily admitting his part in the Union Station robbery, Misunas said he shot White when the latter reached for his gun. The gang, he said, lay in wait near the west entrance and surprised the guard as he escorted a convoy of five trucks from the postoffice.

Snatching bags of mail, Misunas and his companions dropped from a high wall into the street and escaped. Their loot turned out to be canceled revenue stamps.

Soon after the Richmond "job," Misunas said the gang went to Petersburg, Va., and hijacked a truck of cigarettes. Later they hijacked another truck near the Virginia-North Carolina State line, he admitted.

Kendick, Gang Split.

A few weeks later, the confession read, John Kendrick, 39, escaped Lorton convict, split with the gang and went his own way. The gang accused him of "laying down" on the Petersburg job, but over their protests he received his share and disappeared.

He was later captured in Johnson City, Tenn., and is now in the District Jail awaiting trial.

Langer Faces Abandonment Of Nye Recall

Ousted Governor Stops Petition to Unseat His Enemy.

Bismarck, N. Dak., Aug. 2 (AP).—North Dakota's deposed Governor today forced the rejection of plans to recall United States Senator Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota Republican, who less than a year ago turned against him after they had fought political battles shoulder to shoulder.

State Senator A. F. Bonzer, jr., presented the objections of William Langer, removed recently as Governor, to the Republican State central committee executive group shortly after it had announced the recall attempt was under way.

Afterward he announced: "There will be no recall; Langer doesn't want it."

Langer and Nye were elected on the same ticket two years ago. This spring Nye broke with Langer, joining the opposing Nonpartisan League faction. He campaigned before the June primary for those aligned with Acting Gov. Ole H. Olson, and has repeatedly criticized Langer's administration. Recently he declared he believed there was an "untold amount of graft" in State departments.

Plans had already been completed for circulation of petitions in an effort to obtain the number of signatures to place the recall on the ballot in the November general election, when Langer objections were presented.

The proposal was heard by the same committee which yesterday indorsed Mrs. William Langer for the Republican nomination for Governor after her husband had withdrawn. Langer was removed as Governor by the State Supreme Court, which held his conviction of conspiracy to defraud the United States Government disqualified him. He has appealed.

It is probable Mrs. Langer will open her campaign at Dickinson, where she first entered the political arena as champion of her husband. At the time he was on trial in Federal Court on the conspiracy charges. His conviction ultimately led to his withdrawal from the race, despite an overwhelming plurality given him in the primary.

Presses Rush Inflationary Silver Notes

$50,000,000 to Be Placed in Circulation Shortly, Morgenthau Says.

ury is to use its still greater powers for inflating the currency.

In disclosing this much of Administration plans, Mr. Morgenthau did not reveal how much silver has been contracted for or purchased by the Treasury's $1,800,000,00 stabilization fund. It is generally understood that substantial purchases have been made, but operations are still shrouded in secrecy.

More than a third of the 62,000,000 ounces which will back the new certificates was received from European nations last July in part payment of their war debts. Part of the remainder has come from the Treasury's seignorage on newly mined domestic silver, coined under the President's order of last December 21.

Phraseology Changed.

As established by the silver purchase act, the new certificates bear the phrase, "legal tender for all debts private and public," in place of "this certificate is receivable for all public dues and when so received may be reissued." All outstanding issues will be changed to conform, it is understood.

The Treasury statement for July 31, out yesterday, showed that the amount of silver certificates outstanding is slightly less than $500,000,000. The new issues, which will be continued as rapidly as silver is acquired as bullion, will swell this amount almost one-tenth.

Incidentally, the Treasury ended the first month of the new fiscal year with total expenditures of $466,273,908, compared with $270,970,710 last year. The deficit was $248,085,105, compared with $107,-77,140 last year, although receipts increased from $163,213,570 to $218,-802.

illions Lost s Western Forests Blaze

Fires Continue to Sweep Scattered Areas of Several States.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 2 (AP).—Forest fires continued their costly sweep over widely scattered sections of the entire West today, destroying millions of dollars' worth of timber and causing other millions of dollars' worth of damage to watersheds.

In Montana, Idaho, Washington and California, disastrous fires were burning. Control was in sight for some of them, but in every section low humidity, high temperatures and moderate to high winds hampered thousands of fighters.

The Curlew fire in the Colville forest of north central Washington continued to burn fiercely after having covered more than 25,000 acres. Wardens directing the 1,500 or more fighters said "we're not guessing" as to their ability to control it immediately.

In western Montana, the Trout Creek and Great Meadow blazes were roaring out of control at noon, with weather conditions still highly unfavorable but improved over yesterday. The Trout Creek blaze had more than doubled in size since yesterday, having an 18-mile perimeter at noon today.

The Meadow Creek fire had a perimeter of nearly 9 miles, with nearly half of this being held by 500 fighters. All other fires in western Montana and three in Yellowstone National Park were reported under control.

The last great white pine stand on the Pend Oreille River drainage basin, about 50,000 acres of highly valuable timber, was menaced by a blaze reported to be traveling west into the Kalispel basin, west of Cusick Wash. All available Civilian Conservation Corps workers were rushed to the front.

Lack of Play Facilities In Washington Deplored

worth, operated by concessionaires (two different organizations) under the National Capital Parks Office, but you would find no purely municipal course such as is the pride of almost every other city.

The Same With Tennis.

As in the operation of the swimming pools, you would find the management of the tennis courts split up among the National Capital Parks Office, the schools, and the playground department of the District government. Whether you paid or not would depend upon the courts you selected.

Because of this heterogeneous set-up, comprising three major and separate recreational agencies and several minor units which even further confuse the administration, a new effort is being made to work out a solution for greater unity and efficiency and to concentrate all agencies in the aim of obtaining more money to develop and expand Washington's recreational facilities.

Schemes of coordination and cooperation, tried over the last several years, have failed thus far chiefly because of the peculiar divided administration between the Federal and the District governments.

A new survey, nearing completion, is being made by L. H. Weir, a director of the National Recreation Association, as the result of a concerted expression that something should be done about it. Mr. Weir was employed by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Shortage "Woeful."

The reason why both governmental and civic agencies agreed that "something should be done" is that, though Washington has some of the most beautiful park reservations in the world, it is woefully lacking in playgrounds, swimming pools, recreation buildings for young people and adults, neighborhood recreation centers for the entire family and in other opportunties for active recreation.

The condition is not unique, but most of the larger cities have started correcting similar faults, and practically all of the more progressive cities are working toward the goal of a central public recreation administration and a unified system.

Washington's park system dates back to 1792, when Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant included what he considered then ample reservations for parks in the plans for a Federal city. However, he did not envision a city of half a million inhabitants and its congestion any more than he anticipated the troubles of traffic directors in trying to minimize the confusion at the avenue circles.

Play Development Slow.

In fact, the idea of planned and supervised recreation for children and adults did not arise in America before the twentieth century, and its spreading and development has been slow.

In the National Capital the last three decades may be divided thus: (1) During the first 10 years efforts were concentrated on the problem of obtaining lands for parks and recreation purposes; (2) during the next decade the emphasis was on the formation of organizations to supervise and maintain these facilities, and (3) within the last 10 years these agencies have sought to expand their facilities and to plan for the future.

The McMillan commission in 1903 recommended the development of playgrounds and public play fields and houses in Washington. At that time the only appropriation for recreational facilities was a small amount for bathing equipment in an old fish pond and for a beach on the Potomac River.

Money Voted in 1906.

In 1906 an appropriation was made to purchase playgound sites, and in 1912 the Playground Department of the District Government was created. In 1917 the Community Center Department was organized to cater particularly to adults and young people, and in 1925 the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks, an independent unit responsible to the President, was established.

The officer in charge of public buildings and grounds under the Federal Government in 1891 had been authorized to use part of the Washington Monument grounds for playground purposes, but it was not until 1920 that an appropriation of $15,000 was made for the development of sports areas in the public parks. This appropriation was made under the sundry civil bill and for three years came from Federal funds. In 1923, however, the expense was shifted to the District Government and has remained there since.

District Pays All Now.

Now all of the cost of operating and maintaining local recreational areas comes out of the District taxpayer's pocket, although the major part of it goes to a Federal agency which expends it on Federal property.

As a direct result of the lack of unity in administration, Congress has kept the three major recreational units on a starvation fare of less than half the annual appropriation it needs.

Although cooperation among the agencies at present is relatively smooth, there have been times in recent years when one director was scarcely on speaking terms with the director of another agency. And, in spite of a general effort to coordinate activities, there is considerable overlapping, much inefficiency and a great deal of confusion in the operation of Washington play equipment.

(Tomorrow's article will deal with the Playground Department of the District Government.)

Firemen Will Attend Virginia Fire Parley

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 2 (AP). Charlottesville's delegation to the forty-eighth annual convention of the Virginia State Firemen's Association in Suffolk, Tuesday to Friday of next week, will number over 100.

The municipal band will attend, accompanied by a large number of the city's volunteer force. The company will leave here Tuesday by bus and will participate in eight contests at Suffolk.

Reporter Plays Voice of Safety In "Air" Debut

turned about, gave all four of us—Nestor, Dave (David C. Diehl, the driver), Mike and yours truly—a nasty look and plunged defiantly with her brood into the flow of cross traffic.

He called down cab drivers for going too fast, dowagers for going too slow, children for skating in the streets, truck drivers for turning into thoroughfares out of alleys without first coming to a stop, motorists for stopping on a crosswalk and impatient souls for rushing the green light.

Almost Sets "Example."

Most of them were so surprised they didn't notice (fortunately, no doubt) that it wasn't a uniformed policeman giving orders, but only a somewhat bewildered interloper in mufti who had never snuggled up to a microphone before.

At least 15 States must have come in for attention in the course of the cruise.

"New Jersey, please signal before pulling out from the curb."

"Arkansas, better have that tail light fixed."

Speaking of "U" turns brings back a very embarrassing moment, the time the unique car almost made that mistake in full view of a "No U Turn" sign and a gaping crowd at Fourteenth street and Park road. Policeman Diehl, at the wheel, got half-way about before Policeman Nestor, sitting in the tonneau for a change, pointed out the mistake.

That would have been setting a fine example!

Although the Voice of Safety still is a novelty and attracts attention even when silent, nothing occurred yesterday to stir any fears it will prove a boomerang by tying up traffic.

Voice Mute in Rain.

But the point about the Voice becoming inarticulate in a heavy rain is a real one, which has yet to be remedied. As Inspector B. A. Lamb, head of the Traffic Bureau, explained, rain pouring through the funnel-like amplifier atop the car dampens the mechanism so that the Voice of Safety becomes merely a dripping waterspout.

Of course, there hasn't been a downpour yet to silence it, but officials already are considering protecting the delicate contraption with a cover or screen. The trouble is they're afraid that any cover or muffler, in being effective against rain, will reduce the efficiency of the Voice.

Rainfall Halts First Infantry Battle Problem

Today Is Community Day; Camp Award Winners Are Announced.

Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Cascade, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Pouring rain interrupted the planned maneuver of the First Infantry, Maryland National Guard, in camp here today.

The regiment was participating in a brigade problem when the heavens opened and soaked the men. Col. D. John Markey, commanding officer, ordered them returned to Camp Ritchie, where they could obtain dry clothes and baths.

The regiment had marched about 5 miles to its place in the problem line of battle. They were to proceed to Sabillasville and clear Harbaugh Valley of Red troops. The plans called for an overnight camp with simulated enemy and artillery fire.

Following return of the regiment to camp, Col. Markey ordered the problem continued in the morning, with only officers and noncommissioned officers participating.

Community Day Planned.

Community Day will be held tomorrow. Several thousand nearby residents have been invited to attend. The celebration will include athletic contests under supervision of Gary "Swede" Epply, track and field coach of Maryland University, regimental contests and a regimental parade at which banners and medals won at camp will be presented by Brig. Gen. C. D. Herron, representing Maj. Gen. Croft, chief of the Infantry Bureau, whose injuries suffered in an automobile accident Sunday bar his attending.

Company I, of Salisbury, today was winner of the kitchen banner for the best kitchen for camp period. The Salisbury company nosed out the Headquarters Company, Third Battalion, of Pocomoke City, by 1 point, accomplishing the usual feat of winning a 100 per cent marking yesterday. The Pocomoke company was penalized 2 points for having a dish board nailed down. The Pocomoke company has held possession of the banner for nine years.

Headquarters Company, Second Battalion, of Laurel, won the communications test banner, while Company H, Westminster, won the banner for being the best machine gun company and the best pistol company. Company K, of Centerville, won the banner for best rifle company. Company K also qualified 100 per cent of its men in all arms. The squad of Corporal Dixon of Company G, Cumberland, was announced as winner of the chief of the National Guard Bureau honor combat squad.

An advance detail of the District National Guard, commanded by Maj. William I. Marshall, provost marshal of the Twenty-ninth Division, arrived in camp today. The detail, consisting of 26 men, will prepare the camp for the arrival of the District National Guard Sunday.

Scribes Get Rest In Row With Judge

Danville, Ky., Aug. 2 (AP).—Jack Durham and Wesley Carty, Danville newspapermen, got a brief resting spell in their "endurance contest" with Police Judge Jay W. Harlan here late today.

The pair served six hours in jail after appearing in court at 9 a. m., but when they returned again at 4 p. m., expecting a fine or another sentence for contempt of court, the judge passed their cases along with those of two other witnesses until 9 a. m. tomorrow.

The other witnesses called in the now famous inquiry into who hanged Representative J. Sterling Towles in effigy, had declined to answer on Constitutional grounds, including the claim they might be incriminating themselves.

"Wilful Delay" Laid to NRA Complaint Aid

D. C. Contractor Appeals to Lynch for Healy's Withdrawal.

Withdrawal of authority given Frank Healy, NRA compliance director, to investigate complaints against methods of awarding bids on a Government building contract here was demanded yesterday in a letter written to Col. G. A. Lynch, acting administrator, by Bancroft T. Foley, local contractor.

Foley charged Healy with "wilfully delaying" a decision and asked that the case "be placed in the hands of any committee which you would delegate to enable us to get a fair and speedy decision."

Healy assumed jurisdiction over the complaint ten weeks ago after the Construction Code Authority and Maj. R. N. Campbell, an NRA deputy administrator, agreed code provisions were violated by the Riggs Distler Co., of Baltimore, in bidding on the plumbing, air conditioning and electrical wiring jobs in the Federal warehouse extension project at Seventh and C streets southwest.

Firms protesting against the award to the Riggs-Distler Co. included the H. P. Foley Co., Standard Engineering Co., Inc., John W. Cowper Co., Inc., and the Mehring & Hanson Co. The complaints contended the Baltimore firm illegally marked on an envelope containing its offer, "Deduct from this bid $37,000."

Rioting Feared At Stockyards Opening Today

Commission Men Bring Strike to Head by Ultimatum.

Chicago, Aug. 2 (AP).—Police took firmer grips on their riot sticks tonight, fearing trouble when the strike-locked stockyards are opened tomorrow morning.

A decision by commission men—their business stalled by the 10-day strike—brought the strike to a head. The commission men at 2 p. m. decleared the market "open for business" and invited shippers to send in stock for trading.

Meanwhile, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief, agreed to hear the strikers' complaints tomorrow morning, although insisting he had no intention of "entering into the strike" when he came here as guest-star for an NRA fete at the World's Fair.

With only Government-owned cattle coming in, the big stockyards have been peaceful since the beginning of the handlers' strike early July 24. Some 400 replacement workers were in the yards, sleeping in a long line of Pullman cars, but the strikers have not molested them.

It was expected a strike of the commission men's handlers, affiliated with the others, would be called, adding about 400 to the 800 men now out. It also was considered possible that any attempt to handle commercial stock by non-union men might bring about a general strike of meat cutters and butchers in the big packing plants.

The commission men's ultimatum arrived with the strikers and their employers, the Union Stock Yards & Transit Co., still irreconcilable. It was regarded as an attempt to force the strike to a conclusion.

Carl Steffensen, secretary of the Regional Labor Board, resumed efforts to find acceptable peace terms. Police Capt. John Prendergast assigned 100 men to duty in the yards to quell any clashes between strike pickets and workers, or to prevent violence to drivers bringing in stock.

Truck Strike Leaders Are Arrested, Freed

Minneapolis, Aug. 2 (AP).—Scattered vandalism and new peace plans were wedged into the truck drivers' strike today as employers proposed to terminate the walkout immediately in the face of marauding pickets who beat four vehicle operators despite military rule.

Definite moves toward settlement of the 17-day controversy received the active indorsement of the Central Labor Union, whose headquarters was raided yesterday by National Guard troops following seizure of strike headquarters and the arrest of strike leaders from Drivers Union No. 574.

The latter, William Brown, president of the union, and Vincent and Myles Dunne, were released today upon order from Adjt. Gen. E. A. Walsh while his 500 troops still in the city answered calls for aid.

Five pickets were arrested and several trucks overturned or disabled. The minor disturbances, though fewer in number than recently, Capt. Carl Polson said, occurred before and after the employers advisory committee suggested a 10-point program for ending the strike.

They recommended to the Rev. Francis Haas, Federal mediator, a definite wage scale, elections by employes to determine representation in collective bargaining agreements, and reinstatement of workers as of July 16. Father Haas and E. H. Dunnigan, the other mediator, planned to submit these proposals to strikers immediately.

Miss Landi Loses $7,400 Judgment.

Los Angeles, Aug. 2 (AP).—Elissa Landi, motion picture actress, was ordered by Judge Lester W. Roth to pay an assignee of Mrs. Ad Schulberg and Charles K. Feldman, theatrical agents, $7,400 as commission on film work she received. The agency had sued for $11,000.

Judges' Feud Tangles Status Of Ax Slayer

Jurists Squabble, Declare Mistrial, Void Orders as Case Waits.

Los Angeles, Aug. 2 (AP).—The controversy betwen two superior court judges over the alleged misconduct of one of them resulted in a legal tangle today that apparently clouded the status of the case of Louis R. Payne, 21-year-old convicted murderer of his mother and brother.

In defiance of an order by Frank C. Collier, presiding judge of the superior court, Superior Judge Harry F. Sewell assumed the bench today at Payne's sanity hearing and attempted to resume the taking of testimony.

Judge Ruben S. Schmidt, who late yesterday was substituted by Judge Fletcher Bowron, presiding jurist in the criminal divisions, entered Judge Sewell's courtroom and personally directed removal of Payne, the jury and the case records to his own court.

Judge Sewell, whom Judge Collier charged in an affidavit with drunkenness while presiding in a civil case, thereupon declared a mistrial in the Payne case.

Judge Bowron then ascended Judge Sewell's bench and declared nullified and void all orders and actions of Judge Sewell.

After this strange legal spectacle, the jury was marched out into Judge Schmidt's court and testimony was resumed.

Many questions of law and procedure remained unanswered and the exa status of the case appeared clouded in the fog of controversy.

Judge Collier has demanded the resignation of Judge Sewell for alleged drunkenness, and Judge Sewell, declaring Judge Collier is without authority to demand the resignation, has asked that Judge Collier resign.

Three times in the last week Judge Sewell has failed to appear on the bench. His physician asserted the jurist was suffering from bronchitis. The physician and a nurse were examined by a committee of one judge and two attorneys yesterday to determine the cause of the absences, which necessitated postponements in the Payne trial.

U. S. May Lease Lime Plant From Virginia

Richmond, Aug. 2 (AP).—After a conference with representatives of the Federal Soil Erosion Service, Gov. Peery indicated today that there was a strong possibility that the State's portable lime plant at Sandy Level, Pittsylvania County, would be leased by the Federal Government.

Foulois Asks 1,000 Airplanes For Army Corp

(Associated Press.)

A 1936 plane purchasing program, calling for approximately 1,000 planes for the Army Air Corps, was submitted yesterday to the general staff by Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois.

The recommendations were designed to give the corps an air armada of 2,340 planes, as recommended by the Newton D. Baker committee.

War Department officials explained, however, that the 1936 program was entirely dependent on appropriations by Congress and that it was doubtful whether the entire 1,000 planes would be purchased during 1936.

After the program has been studied and approved by the general staff, it will go to the office of Assistant Secretary Woodring for the preparation of specifications and invitations for bids. Woodring is now in Kansas, but is due back in ten days.

Air Corps officials declined to make public the numbers of planes recommended in different categories, but it was understood the corps would concentrate on purchasing bombers, pursuit and attack planes.

Woodring's office has already sent out or prepared invitations for bids on approximately 450 planes to be purchased from appropriations already made.

The recommendations for 1936 purchases on approval by Secretary Dern must go to the Bureau of the Budget and President Roosevelt before going to Congress.

Arson Arrest Near In Maryland Probe

Woman Says Moonshiners Burned Her Home.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Following an all-day investigation by Joseph Daughterty, investigator for the State Fire Insurance Commission, into the fire which Tuesday destroyed the home of Thomas Mongan, Frog Hollow section, it was announced tonight that an arrest may be made in a few hours.

The investigator and county authorities have been working on information given them by Mrs. Mongan that moonshiners, angry because of information given Federal agents of illicit liquor manufacture, might have set her home afire. The family was away.

Three persons were questioned today. Daugherty left tonight to arrest a suspect.

Perjury Laid To Poderjay

Extradition of Yugoslav Is Sought Following Indictment.

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Capt. Ivan Poderjay, sought for questioning in the disappearance of his bride, Agnes C. Tufverson, was indicted today on perjury charges.

The dashing Yugoslav, now detained by Vienna police on suspicion, was accused of swearing falsely that he was unmarried when he obtained a license to wed the woman lawyer 16 days before she disappeared on December 20, 1933.

Regarded by police as the key figure in the baffling Tufverson case, Poderjay's indictment was the first step toward bringing him to New York under extradition proceedings.

The district attorney's office indicated Gov. Lehman would be asked immediately to request, through the State Department, a Presidential warrant for Poderjay's return.

Miss Tufverson, 43-year-old counsel for a utility company, was last seen at her New York apartment the night of December 20, when she and Poderjay returned from the Hudson River pier from which they were to have sailed for Europe on a honeymoon.

attention. Washington and the New Deal have taken something of a vacation while he was away. The tempo has slowed down. Overworked New Dealers fled from Washington heat on Western vacation trips in the short suspension of the high-pressure activity which had continued since March, 1933. The momentum of the recovery program slackened visibly. Labor troubles got out of hand, developing into a short-lived but upsetting general strike in San Francisco, disorders in Portland and Seattle, martial law in Minneapolis and tying up of the Chicago stock yards. Drought and high temperatures continued spreading devastation through a wide area and forcing the Government to switch abruptly from a program of acreage curtailment to one which would rescue the country from the threat of short food supplies. Business slackened.

Strike Stand Urged.

This, in brief, is the situation in which Mr. Roosevelt will find the country when he steps ashore tomorrow. There is much speculation among the gathering personnel of the New Deal here as to how Mr. Roosevelt, master showman, will take hold of the situation and attempt to galvanize attention and rally enthusiasm again to his program.

Business men and civic leaders here are urging upon influential members of the Presidential entourage that they prevail upon Mr. Roosevelt to take a definite stand in the strike situation.

They, and many similar leaders throughout the country, are profoundly disturbed by the rise of labor unrest, with its outbreaks of violence. The situation has become acute here again within the last 48 hours, with union longshoremen and seamen attempting to prevent nonunion workmen from working on the docks. Mayor Joseph Carson holds this is a breach of the arbitration agreement and has so wired the National Longshoremen's Board. He and others here are asking that President Roosevelt make a declaration on his arrival, and urging both sides in industrial disputes to observe their agreements and to submit to the efforts of the various Federal labor mediation agencies.

The belief of many business men here is that the National Labor Mediation Board lacks sufficient moral power to bring about peace and that a public statement is needed from President Roosevelt himself to strengthen the hands of these agencies.

Administration Blamed.

Up and down the Pacific Coast and in many places in the interior labor troubles have seriously impeded recovery. Business men say that this has been encouraged by the attitude of the Administration. They quote frequently an alleged remark of Secretary of Labor Perkins that she welcomes strikes as a sign of industrial recovery. They declare the Federal Government has not taken hold of these situations in time, that it failed in the initial stages to appreciate the gravity of the controversies. This view is not shared by many influential citizens and some leading Republicans refuse to join in such criticism, saying that the Administraton in each case necessarily refrained from intervening until local and State agencies exhaust the possibilities of settlement.

As a result of labor disorders, the vigilante movement has spread. It has been particularly aggressive on the Pacific Coast. Bands of private citizens have gone into homes of persons suspected of harboring radical ideas and to have smashed furniture, police have followed up with wholesale arrests and in some localities a state approaching terrorism has resulted, which, in turn, breeds more radical protest and gives the communistic elements the very arguments they want.

Mussolini Joins In Condolences To Chancellor

Rome, Aug. 2 (AP).—Premier Mussolini sent a personal telegram of condolence to Adolf Hitler today immediately on receiving news of the death of President Paul von Hindenburg of Germany.

The report reached Mussolini at his home town, Forli. He also dispatched a message to the family of Von Hindenburg.

Fulvio Suvich, undersecretary of foreign affairs, called on the German Embassy to present the regrets of the Italian government.

Meanwhile, in official circles, there was no disposition to comment on the succession of Hitler to the presidency. In several quarters it was said this is a matter in which the German people have a right to do as they see fit.

"The whole responsibility in affairs of Germany's internal and foreign politics now rests on the shoulders of Hitler at a time when new and unpleasant problems have been added to those arising from the sanguinary suppression of the Storm Troop revolt a month ago," said the Giornale D'Italia.

All Roman newspapers lauded Von Hindenburg's war record, but Il Messagero listed among his "errors" his "favoring the ruthless submarine warfare which contributed to bringing about American intervention in the World War."

Petersburg Camp Wins Honor.

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—The CCC Camp, in the Petersburg National Military Park, has been designated as one of the four outstanding camps in Virginia and will represent this district in the Third Corps competition which will be held August 14 and 27.

Utopians Plan National Campaign

Growth 50,000 Weekly; Where Cash Goes Is Mystery.

Los Angeles, Aug. 2 (Spl.).—The Utopian Society of America, which has swept Southern California with hysterical speed in the last few weeks, is now to expand throughout the country.

This will not impress readers of The Washington Post as an exciting piece of news, because until one comes out here and hears everyone discussing the Utopian movement, has taxi drivers produce membership application blanks, sees the thousands who are turned away nightly at meetings in Shrine Temple, and observes the furious activity around Utopian headquarters just off Wilshire boulevard out Hollywood way, Utopia is just the name of a book somebody wrote many years ago.

Out here it is a living thing. To adherents it promises the way to security and a life of plenty. To others it is a crazy "ism," one of those things to which southern California succumbs easily. Some see it as a passing fad, others as a dangerous movement serving as a disguised channel for communism. No one is indifferent about it.

Growing 50,000 a Week.

Its officers claim it has a membership of 500,000 in Los Angeles County. Others believe this figure is high. They place the society's real strength at between 150,000 and 200,000. Jonathan F. Glendon, president of the Utopian Society, a former stage and screen actor, between times a promoter of small construction enterprises, and former president of the Los Angeles Exchange Club, says members are joining at the rate of 50,000 a week.

Whatever the actual membership may be, the movement has acquired forest fire momentum which has left its group of obscure organizers bewildered. The craze is actually sweeping the organization along with it. The movement is spreading because of the enthusiasm of the converts rather than because of the efforts of the promoters. They are struggling to keep up and have had to simplify their membership admission procedure to speed matters.

No one of prominence is found among the organizers. The Utopian Society gets its drive from a certain economic appeal which it has coupled with a good deal of ritual and mystery reminiscent of the Ku Klux Klan, mixed with some elements of technocracy and superlative theatricals, all of which combine to make it fascinate the office workers, the clerks, the gasoline station employes, the housewives and others of like station who compose the body of the membership. To them it seems like an interesting and easy route to the Promised Land.

Organizers Are Obscure.

Nothing in the personnel of the organizers accounts for its amazing vogue. The Utopian Society was started last February by a Eugene J. Reed, an invalid who had been receiving county relief. Forty-eight years old, former employe of brokerage houses in Denver, salesman of securities, a dreamer, during periods of ill-health he read Edward Bellamy's "Looking Backward" and other utopian literature, especially Howard Scott's studies in Technocracy which was at the peak of its brief vogue at that time. Reed conceived the idea of a movement which would take some of technocracy's ideas and superimpose a plan for social application of them. Howard Scott spent some time here last winter when the Utopian Society was being formed and there has been close contact between his group and the Utopians.

Several others who had been down on their luck joined and contributed various ideas. One was a former oil salesman whose wife was supporting him at the moment by working in a Hollywood beauty parlor. Several had been small promoters in oil, real estate and other ventures. One was a professional actor. Another was an unsuccessful writer who is still, he says, supported by his mother-in-law. He wrote much of the ritual. All are obscure casuals of the depressions.

Critics of the movement have done a good deal of investigating, but thus far no evidence has appeared of racketeering on the part of any of the organizers. The society has a $3 initiation charge and dues of 10 cents a week, though its officers say that persons are admitted whether they can pay or not. It has a pay roll of about 250 persons in the headquarters, mostly clerks. Recently membership canvassers on a commission basis have begun to appear, though formerly all converts came through voluntary meetings at homes of members.

Where Does the Cash Go?

It is obvious that a large cash fund has been accumulated. Los Angeles bankers say they have indications that huge amounts of cash are being hidden in safe deposit boxes and that some of it probably has been sent outside the State. Leaders of the society all profess to be without resources, and insist that they are drawing salaries well inside the limit of $5,200 a year fixed in the by-laws.

One of the organizers was summoned into municipal court a few days ago in an effort to collect a judgment of $2,000 against him held by a widow who had advanced him money for various promotion schemes. He testified that he was supported by his mother-in-law and that he drew no salary, but that the Utopians recently began paying him $25 a week to pay for gasoline and other expenses. He has use of two automobiles, but told the court they were owned by his stepson.

Though it is widely believed here that some of the insiders will get rich out of the scheme, there is no visible evidence of it yet, and President Glendon is firmly rejecting all proposals to launch the sale of paraphernalia which provide lucrative side incomes for many promoters of secret orders.

Unquestionably followers of the society are convinced of the complete sincerity of its leaders and believe them when they declare that no one connected with it will be permitted to reap personal financial benefit or use it for political purposes.

While Utopian leaders say that probably 90 per cent of their membership will vote for Upton Sinclair, the life-long Socialist, who is running for the Democratic nomination for Governor of California, they insist that the society is neither for nor against any candidate and will not enter politics. Despite their protestations, few here believe it can avoid becoming a powerful political group, just as the Klan was for a time, if its membership continues to grow and adherents continue as zealous as they are now.

The trick which apparently accounts for Utopia's astounding popularity is its use of theatricals and secret ritual to teach its doctrines. New members are lured on through a series of "cycles" something like Masonic degrees. They are fed small doses at a time. Their interest in finding out what comes next is kept whetted by secrecy. Members are given numerical symbols which are used instead of their names at meetings. A new member will be given a slip of paper bearing symbols such as 26x4168. The last number identifies the meeting at which he was admitted. The first number is his number in the group. After preliminary meetings at which his age, occupation and similar data are taken and general talks are made concerning economic conditions, the new member attends the first cycle meeting, where a dramatic presentation portraying the society's view of the present economic system is made. This staging is done with expertness. President Glendon is a former actor and the society has numerous actors and stage technicians in its membership. Descriptions of these presentations have become current in Los Angeles.

"Forgotten Man" Included.

One important business man here opposed to the movement has made it his business to find out all about the Utopians. He says the first cycle depicts a character known as "The Forgotten Man," who goes to the Banker to borrow money. The Banker agrees to lend him $10,000, but says he must have 10 per cent interest and fixes shackles to the Forgotten Man's leg. The Forgotten Man then goes to the Miller and asks the price of wheat. The Miller replies it is $1 a bushel. The Forgotten Man says he wants to buy some wheat to make bread. In that case, the Miller says, it will cost you $2.50 a bushel.

The actors are restricted to pantomime. The lines are read from script from a room behind the stage and carried out through microphones. This script has been prepared with greatest care, and minute attention is given to inflections so that it carries the maximum power of persuasion upon the audience. Everyone who has witnessed these presentations agrees upon their skill and suggestive power.

According to President Glendon, the whole program can be carried out within the Constitution with the aid of some new legislation.

To Produce for Use.

"The essence of this new system," he says, "is expressed in three words—production for consumption. There is no reason whatever for producing anything except that it may be consumed, used. Certainly, that is logic anyone can comprehend. Well, have we not always produced for consumption. No! Indeed, we have not. We have produced for profit, and when profit has not been in sight, production has either been curtailed, diverted or destroyed, regardless of how many people suffered from want and deprivation."

That is from the keynote address he made to 30,000 persons in Hollywood Bowl recently. The remainder of the address is equally vague, being devoted to general, very general, principles. He discussed the displacement of labor by machines and added that machine processes had now made it unnecessary and impossible for all men to work as hard as in the past.

Leaders of the society lay great stress on the fact that the American flag must be displayed at all meetings, that every member must take the oath of allegiance to the flag numerous times, that each meeting is opened with this oath of allegiance, that the movement is not communistic, that it can be carried out in a democratic way within the limits of the Constitution, requiring only that Congress exercise its power over the currency.

Would Spend All Money.

Though not so labeled, the Utopian dollar is actually quite similar to the "energy unit," which technocracy would substitute for the price system—its euphemism for the more inflammatory term "profits system."

Utopians would have the Government issue "purchasing money," to be equal exactly to the real cost of each year's total production and delivery to the consumer, and based upon the value of goods as thus determined. This money would be distributed to the people each year by the Government and it must be spent; it could not be hoarded or loaned. Utopians say the total productive capacity of the country, including transportation, calculated on the basis of actual cost—consisting of time, labor and power—and without interest or profit charges, would, when divided by the total population, give each family an amount of consumable goods equal to many times the present money income of the average person. That is technocracy all over again.

Utopians make it all sound very simple. But when the plan is refined to some of the points of application, it becomes a vast revolutionary plan for complete regimentation of the country so fantastic that it is no wonder the Utopians prefer to present the plan by theatricals rather than by more direct explanatory methods.

Here is an account of the set-up as pictured in one of the "cycles," according to information provided from a reliable source, said to have been noted down by an eye witness:

"Seven different departments are arranged across one end of the hall. Department names are in electric lights. One man to each station, but all speaking comes from loud speakers. The people are represented by a man called 'the forgotten man, who asks questions and receives answers from the speakers.

"Department of Interior—Is in control of all public lands, mines and minerals, standing timber, &c.

"Department of Industry—This department will control factories taken over from the present owners and when needed will supervise the construction of additional factories. Will keep the production quota in correlation with consumption capacity, and by keeping in touch with the Department of Commerce, will know just how much they will be called upon to produce.

Up to $15,000 a Year Allowed.

"Department of Labor—This department consists of men and women 25 to 45 years of age and will have all workers registered as to qualifications and placed where best suited. A good man, 100 per cent efficient, will be given up to $15,000 a year for his work. More can be earned by scientific men. Married women will draw an allowance for each child until 16 years of age. People are allowed to move from one location to another. They are furnished homes.

"Department of Education—As soon as a child is old enough, the Department of Education will take him in charge and give him an education best suited, until the age of 25 years. They also keep in close touch with the Department of Labor, so they know at all times what is most needed in the different professions. Children will also be trained in all manner of fighting and handling of war equipment.

"Department of Commerce—This department is to be made up of the highest class obtainable. They control railroads and all transportation, have charge of the issuing of money and of food depots, &c. Will know at all times just what can be produced by the Department of Industry, and by making surveys will keep the departments in harmony. They will also take over present properties and issue to owners a good living ever after.

"Department of Foreign Trade—Will take care of all foreign trade. Also will issue to our people wanting to travel in foreign countries money good in those countries in exchange for their money.

Military to Rule Slackers.

"Department of National Defense—To be made up of Army and Navy men. To have the best possible defense system that can be worked out. Will have charge of the policing of the Nation. Will gather scientists around them to invent better weapons of warfare. Will also have charge of those who refuse to work.

It's fantastic, but thousands out here believe in it. Promoters are preparing electric transcriptions and talking pictures with which to carry their message to other parts of the country. Speakers are shortly to be sent out to leading industrial centers. Los Angeles is a cross-section of persons from many States, and the promoters say that if the idea goes here it should go in other sections. They are set to try it anyway. A special committee is organizing now for this Nation-wide drive.

Every member who joins signs a form letter which is sent to President Roosevelt. Members believe they are going to elect the next Governor of California—for their ideas are closely akin to those of Upton Sinclair although he and the society deny any connection officially.

Old-Age Pensions Backed.

Another phenomenon out here traces to an elderly doctor at Long Beach, Calif., Dr. F. A. Townsend, who has devised the "Old-Age Revolving Pension" movement. It proposes paying $200 a month by the Federal Government to every person 60 years old or over. This money must be spent each month. The recipient agrees to refrain from all gainful occupation once he goes on the pension roll. He may continue to receive other private income from investments, but he must spend the $200 pension money each month. Dr. Townsend estimates that there are 10,000,000 persons in the country above 60 years of age. Perhaps 7,500,000 of them, he thinks, would apply for the pension, the others desiring to continue their professions or businesses. This would mean a monthly turnover of $1,500,000,000 in consumer purchases by the pensioners. The Government would collect it back through a 10 per cent sales tax and keep it revolving.

Dr. Townsend is collecting signatures to petitions urging this plan on Congress. He has signatures estimated at more than 100,000. It is talked of almost as much as Utopia, though it is far less dramatic and is limited in its appeal to elderly persons, save for grown sons and daughters who see in it a chance to be relieved of the care of aging parents.

But this plan is too wild even for Upton Sinclair, who will stand for a lot.

"It's a preposterous idea," he says. "It seems to me a complete delusion, because if you take money in any form of tax on consumption you are reducing purchasing power by that amount. You give it to the old, but you take it from the young, and you don't change the total purchasing power one particle. The depression is just where it was before, there are just as many unemployed, and the State is going into bankruptcy just the same. You can't solve the problem with a tax on consumption, because consumption is too low already."

These are just two of the larger cults here. Southern California is full of them. As you go down the street you pass a little man in a high silk hat and a Prince Albert coat reading with grave face from a small book which he holds in his hand as he walks. You see a man with long white hair and beard, trudging barefoot with a pack on his back, while beside him are his wife and two girls, apparently about 16, dressed like the old man, in khaki overalls. He, too, has an idea for saving the world.

Of course, there are some people in Los Angeles who are driving buses, selling shoes, sweeping streets, repairing houses, and, toward evening the streets are full of automobiles of men and women going home from work. But you don't hear much about them—they are grubby individualists who are just trying to get along and pay the rent.

3 Coast States Bar to Middies

Paralysis Danger Leads to Order for All to Avoid Them on Leave.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 2 (AP).—Midshipmen will be prohibited from entering the States of Oregon, Washington and California during their summer leave period from the Naval Academy.

It was announced at the academy today that this order has been issued to safeguard the regiment of midshipmen against the possibility of contagion from infantile paralysis. The disease, academy officials said, is prevalent on the West Coast.

The action was taken by the academy authorities on the advice of Navy medical officers in Washington. It is in accord with the policy now in effect of keeping in quarantine plebe midshipmen entering the academy, and officers reporting for duty and their families from the West Coast. Both groups have been quarantined on arrival for a period of about three weeks before being allowed to mingle with the rest of the personnel on the station.

West Coast plebes, upon entering the academy, have been quartered in a section of Bancroft Hall, away from the rest of their classmates, and have been given meals separately during the period of quarantine.

PWA Richer By $5,372,836

Non-Federal Projects to Benefit by Changes in Allotments.

The Public Works Administration yesterday had an additional $5,372,836 to reallocate to non-Federal projects as the result of a realignment of 71 allotments.

Twenty-four grants totaling $1,668,300 were rescinded because applicants have decided not to go forward with projects. Thirty-one recipients of loan-grants asked that their allotments be changed to grants of 30 per cent of the cost of labor and material.

Increases in grants were announced for 18 projects in an aggregate of $267,064, while allotments in five cases were reduced $62,200.

This money will be available for reallocation to other non-Federal projects upon the return to Washington of Administrator Harold L. Ickes, now on vacation.

Among the changes were:

A loan and grant of $300,000 to Cumberland, Md., for a system of interceptor and outfall sewers was changed to a grant of $78,000.

A loan and grant of $27,000 for a water and sewerage system at Vienna, Md., was increased to $31,000 because bids indicated the work will cost more.

Man Killed When Auto Hits Concrete Abutment

Chambersburg, Pa., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Believed to have fallen asleep as he drove over Tuscarora Mountain, west of this place, Harvey S. Tyson, 25, of Schwenkville, was killed today when his car struck a concrete abutment and overturned, pinning him to the Lincoln highway.

He was extricated by attaches and passengers of an intercity bus, but died shortly afterward.

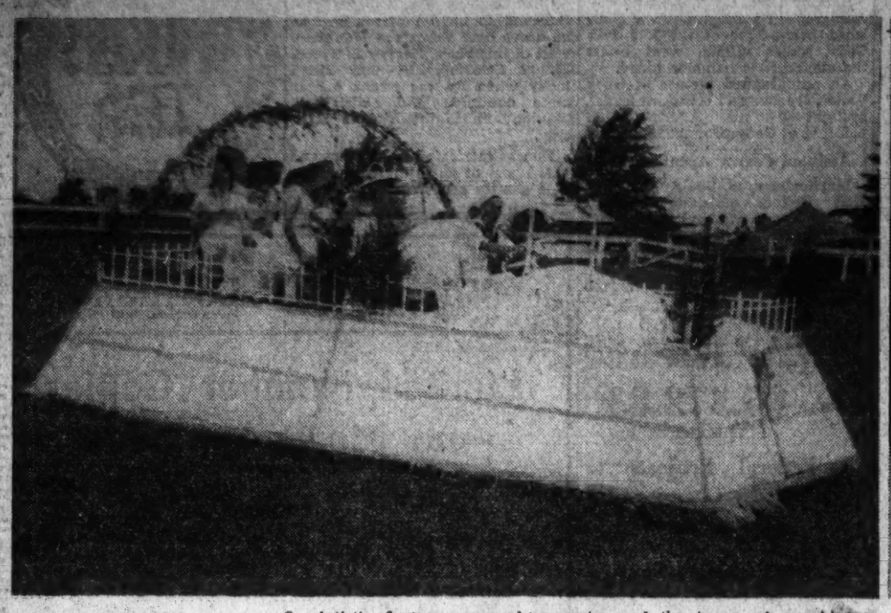
25,000 See Gen. Lee Crown Catherine Jones Queen of Culpeper Tri-Festival



Goodwin, Post Staff Photographer.

Artistic floats, ceremonial pageantry and the tramp of marching units of veterans and volunteer firemen were conspicuous in the parade and coronation of the queen, incident to the opening of the second annual Tri-Festival at Culpeper, Va., yesterday. More than 25,000 persons witnessed the events, the guests of honor of the festival including prominent State and National officials and the mayors of 22 Virginia towns. A prize was given for the most artistic float, the winner being, left photo, one of a flat boat-like effect on which Misses Lucille Taylor, Clara Belle Dudley, Ann Johnson, Mazie Payne and Marian Jamison rode. Miss Catherine Crump Jones, of Culpeper, was crowned Queen Culpeper II by Maj. Gen. Harry Lee, of Quantico, center photo. A group of flower girls, right, moved in front of the royal party to the throne, strewing flowers in their wake.

Queen Begins Festival Reign Over Culpeper

Coronation Opens 3-Day Celebration With Races and Ball.

By C. B. Carr.

Culpeper, Va., Aug. 2.—Promising to "command justice and virtue in all judgments," Miss Catherine Crump Jones, of Culpeper, was crowned Queen Culpeper II at the second annual Tri-Festival which opened here today with 25,000 people in attendance.

The coronation of Miss Jones was the start of a round of informal fun-making which will continue through tomorrow and Saturday, with the queen and her court of 19 young women from northern Virginia and the District of Columbia as the center of attraction.

The ceremonies took place at the Fair Grounds. While the Thirteenth Engineers Band, of Fort Humphreys, Va., played the "Grand March" from "Aida," the queen and her court, attended by a detail of Virginia State police in full-dress uniform, marched to a large white dais surrounded by evergreens, where the ceremonies took place.

Just before the formal entry of the royal party, Miss Ellen Bisson, of Manassas, gave an interpretative dance and a group of flower girls, Elaine Brown, Elizabeth Jones, Margaret Jones, Emily Smith, Joan Foushee, Eloise Roberts, Devida Bender, Katherine Williams, Katherine Brook Jones and Virginia Stagg, spread flowers in the path of the court.

After the Rev. W. Francis Allison, of Brandy, Va., performed the coronation rites, Maj. Gen. Harry Lee, of Quantico, placed the jeweled crown upon Miss Jones' brow. Shouts of "Hail to the queen" went up from the court as Miss Jones was escorted to the throne.

Members of the Court.

Following the coronation, Queen Culpeper and her court were entertained with a horse-racing program. Tonight the official queen's ball was held at the Pot and Kettle Tea House.

Members of the court of Queen Culpeper included Misses Ann Clark and Lucy Robb, maids of honor; Allan Haley, crown bearer; Pecks Tanner and Carter Fisher, heralds; Gerald Berry and Cameron Thompson, train bearers, and the following princesses: Miss Frances Lewis, Culpeper County; Miss Ester Kahode, District of Columbia; Miss Virginia Fletcher, Rappahannock County; Miss Grace Wyatt, Orange County; Miss Margaret Hansbrough, Winchester; Miss Elizabeth Thrift, Madison County; Miss Helen Louise Shirey, Warren County; Miss Louise Collins, Green County; Miss Marian Karsten, Fredericksburg; Miss Elizabeth Maddox, Louisa County; Miss Jane Fox, Fairfax County; Miss Charlotte Brown, Fauquier County; Miss Charlotte Tiffany, Prince William County; Miss Mildred Preston, Arlington County; Miss Jeannette Andrews Michelback, Alexandria; Miss Mary Long Printz, Page County; Miss Mary Thomas, Loudoun County, and Miss Josephine Garth Peyton, Charlottesville. Dancers of the court, in addition to Miss Bission, included Misses Peggy Jeffries, Mary Marshall Gilmore and Susanne Baker, of Culpeper.

The Tri-Festival is sponsored by the Culpeper Municipal Band, Volunteer Firemen and American Legion Post. Preceding the coronation ceremonies a parade was held. Civic and commercial organizations from Orange, Manassas, Warrenton, Culpeper, Clarendon, Fredericksburg and other Northern Virginia towns participated.

Public Wedding Tomorrow.

Parade prizes were awarded, for the most beautiful float, to Pitts' Fairfax Theater; for the best commercial float, to Kinloch Dairy Farm; best appearing fire company with band or drum corps, Orange Fire Company; best appearing fire company without band, Warrenton Fire Company; best equipped pumper of 500 gallons or over, Manassas Fire Company; best first aid or salvage equipment, Orange Fire Company; piece of fire equipment coming the longest distance, Clarendon Fire Company; most comical troupe of three or more, the Hudsons.

Tomorrow evening, a public wedding will be held. Miss Lois Revercomb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Revercomb, of Peola Mills, will become the bride of Charles C. Riddle, of Culpeper. Attendants at the wedding will include Miss Virginia Fletcher as maid of honor; Giles H. Miller, jr., best man, Mrs. John Revercomb, matron of honor, and a bevy of princesses as attendants. The Rev. Dr. T. W. Hooper, of Culpeper, and the Rev. Harris Chelf, of Flint Hill, will officiate. Wedding music will be played by the Culpeper Municipal Band.

Saturday's program will be one of general fun-making in the streets.

Unusual Stunts Arranged for Ft. Myer Show

Thrills Are Expected in Mounted Wrestling Exhibition.

Varied stunts will entertain visitors at Fort Myer today when the Army post holds a field day for mounted and unmounted events.

The Fort Myer cowboys have taken from their bag of tricks horseback versions of the popular tug-of-war and potato race, as well as a mounted wrestling exhibition and an equipment race. All are scheduled for the afternoon's program, commencing at 1:30 at the polo field.

The most amusing event will probably be the mounted wrestling, a bareback competition between two teams of ten men each, whose sole thought will be to separate as many opponents from their mounts as possible. Many spills are expected.

Chaos will reign in the equipment race, according to its description. Contestants are to tie their mounts at designated points. Equipment, consisting of a double bridle, blanket, saddle and cinch for each man, are to be placed separately at other points. Riders are to start at scratch, pick up their equipment, run to their horses, saddle, mount and ride to the starting point. An amusing condition of general disorder is expected to result.

The remainder of the program, scheduled to begin at 9:30, will be devoted to track events. Judges will be Lieut. Bittenbender, Lieut. Fahey and Lieut. Meehan for the mounted events; Lieut. J. F. Santilli, Corpl. Glackin, Lieut. Thomas Meehan, Lieut. R. O. Webb, Lieut. Bittenbender, Lieut. A. B. French and Lieut. J. H. Allen for track events, and Col. Matthew F. James and Capt. Frederick Streicher as field judges.

Death Gun Owner Accused of Murder

Bodies of Pair Found in Cottage He Owned.

Parkersburg, W. Va., August 2 (U.P.).—Fred Hawkins, owner of the pistol with which Mrs. Virginia Kimes Wiseman, 31, and Harold Headley, 31, were slain Wednesday, today was charged with murder.

The bodies were found on the floor of a summer cottage near here, also property of Hawkins.

Authorities said a second woman had been found who was present during the shooting.

Hawkins contended Mrs. Wiseman killed Headley during a quarrel, then committed suicide.

Runaway Wagon Driver Suffers Brain Injury

Westminster, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Thrown from a wagon he was driving when his horse ran away, frightened by an automobile, Clarence Trout, of Greenville, Carroll County, suffered concussion of the brain yesterday afternoon.

The youth, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Trout, was unconscious today.

41 at Meade From Capital

1,200 Citizen Soldiers to Begin Second Period of Training.

Rifle and machine gun firing, tent pitching and many phases of modern war are being studied by 41 Washingtonians who are enrolled among the 1,200 trainees at the C. M. T. C. camp at Fort George Meade, Md.

The second period of the summer training program was entered at the camp yesterday. The final period is under the command of Lieut. Col. Daniel B. Strickler, of Lancaster, Pa., in the absence of Col. H. Harrison Smith, of Philadelphia, commanding officer of the 316th Infantry, 79th Division.

Col. Smith inspected the fort last week, and expressed satisfaction with the work of officers who are training the civilian soldiers.

Silver trophies will be presented the best companies in the camp today, along with numerous medals and college scholarships. Among the 18 schools and colleges giving scholarships are George Washington University, Temple School Washington and Lee, Virginia Military Institute, Hampden-Sydney College, William and Mary, Virginia Presbyterian School, Charlotte Hall School, Gettysburg School, Carnegie Tech, Bucknell and Franklin and Marshall College.

Maryland Orders Bridge Built at Union Mills

Westminster, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Contract for construction of a new bridge at Union Mills, on the Westminster-Littlestown, Pa., road, has been awarded by the State roads commission to Thomas, Bennett & Hunter, Westminster contractors, on their bid of $27,772.50.

Construction was delayed a year pending State condemnation proceedings for a right of way on Miss Mary O. Shriver's property.

Drunken Driving Arrests In Richmond Record Gain

Richmond, Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Arrests for drunken driving are increasing, according to figures for the first seven months of this year, as compared with the same period last year. Since the opening of ABC stores, the arrests declined, the police department figures indicated.

From January to August of this year, 136 persons were arrested for operating cars while under influence of liquor, as compared with 92 in the same period of 1933. The high point was reached in April, when 26 were arrested. The figures dropped to 21 in May, when the ABC stores opened, and 14 in June. The total for July was 15.

July was the high month in the present year in point of total arrests, 2,129 persons being booked in Richmond. Last July 1,889 were arrested. The low month this year was February, when 1,646 arrests were made.

Luray, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—Wade H. Miles, ABC board, inspector of licenses, held hearings here yesterday on eight wine and beer permit applications from Rockingham and Page County residents. All had been protested.

A delegation of 14 persons from Bridgewater protested the granting of any licenses in that community. The board has previously taken the stand that mass protests applying to all licence applications from a given locality or territory will be disregarded. Only the fitness of an individual or his place of business will be taken into consideration, the board has said.

Virginia Awaits Transfer of Land, Say Officials.

Richmond, Aug. 2 (AP).—Both Gov. George C. Peery and Attorney General A. P. Staples agreed today that delays in the signing of deeds to land comprising the Shenandoah National Park were the fault of Washington officials rather than to State.

The final deed, they said, has been submitted to the Federal officers and as soon as it is approved and returned to Virginia it will be signed. The announcements followed word from Washington today that only a "form" deed had been sent. The Governor said he was disturbed at the delay and that he intended seeing the Attorney General in an effort to expedite the transfers.

Woodrum Praises New Deal Results

Aids Equal Opportunity for All, Institute Told.

Blacksburg, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, of Roanoke, told the Rurals Affairs Institute at Virginia Polytechnic Institute that great progress had been made under the New Deal in establishing a fundamental principle of the American Government—equality of opportunity for every man—as he addressed the institute last night.

That equality was, he said, an "equality of opportunity for everyone to employ to the best and fullest advantage his talent, his brain, his mental and physical strength in fixing for himself his own individual place in the economic and social establishment.

"The New Deal is a great economic, rather than a political, movement," Mr. Woodrum said. "It's necessity arose out of chaos."

Barr Believed Here in Daze

Auto Crash Is Thought to Have Caused Loss of Memory.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Capt. Albert T. Barr, mysteriously missing since his wrecked car was found Sunday night at Wilderness Run near here, may possibly be wandering in Washington stricken with amnesia, Orange County police said after receiving information today that Barr was seen talking with occupants of a District car immediately after the accident.

C. Sidney Hunter, assistant postmaster at Orange, Va., reported having seen a man answering Barr's description near the Washington automobile at 10 p. m. Sunday, when the accident is believed to have occurred.

Intensive search of the woods by local police and CCC camp members failed to disclose any trace of the missing man.

J. M. Barr, of Keswick, Va., brother of the captain, yesterday posted a reward of $1,000 for information leading to his recovery. J. M. Barr said he believed his brother had suffered head injuries which might result in a lapse of memory. Capt. Barr had recently been released from a hospital where he was treated for effects of a nervous breakdown suffered in a World War training camp.

Suspect Is Arrested As Receiver of Loot

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Charles A. Hopp, 48, is being held on a charge of receiving stolen goods in connection with the theft of chocolate bars from a railway car last winter. Hopp told officers he did not know it was stolen.

Merle Berger and Roger Billman are charged with the robbery.

Engineer School to Cost $400,000 and Art Museum $100,000.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Two new building projects, representing an expenditure of more than $500,000, are in progress at the University of Virginia.

Work on the $400,000 engineering school is going forward. With the exception of the combined medical school and hospital, it will be the largest building in the university group, covering the area of a city block.

It is planned to open the new unit for classroom use at the 1935 session.

The Bailey Art Museum will be completed within the next two months. It was made possible by the $100,000 bequest of Mrs. Louise McLane Tiffany, of Baltimore, Md., and an additional $38,000 of PWA money.

The new buildings have been coordinated with the original university group largely through the efforts of Frank E. Hartman, superintendent of buildings and grounds.

Among projects carried on by the engineering department are the installation of a central heating plant throughout the university, and the rehabilitation of the old Gothic Chapel.

W. Va. Education Board Weighs Appointments

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—The State board of education today considered the appointment of one college president and half a dozen faculty members after opening a two-day session.

The presidency at the Potomac State School at Keyser is to be filled. Two faculty posts are vacant at Concord State College at Athens. Other faculty vacancies are at Marshall College, at Huntington, and Glenville State College, at Glenville.

Gov. Peery Appoints 3 Veterans to Board

Richmond, Aug. 2 (AP).—Three representatives of veterans' organizations today were appointed to the veterans' advisory board by Gov. Peery.

Hen Thefts Solved As Woman Finds Snake in Nest

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Florence Snyder has found the thief that has been taking her young chickens, but she got quite a shock in making the discovery.

Reaching beneath a setting hen, her hand came in contact with a 3-foot blacksnake. After killing the snake, Miss Snyder cut it open and found it had devoured the chickens whole.

Young chickens are favorite delicacies of blacksnakes.

Poultry Field Day Scheduled In Maryland

Session Slated Thursday at University; Program Is Outlined.

Preparations are under way at the University of Maryland for the State's seventh annual poultry field day Thursday.

The program will be in charge of the Maryland State Poultry Association, four affiliated county poultry associations, the University of Maryland Extension Service and the Department of Agriculture.

Events will begin at 9:30 a. m. with an address of welcome by Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, president of the university, followed by an address by Dr. H. J. Patterson, director of the University Experiment Station at Beltsville.

"The Maryland Poultry Standardization Plan for 1934 and 1935" will be discussed by P. A. Raper, of the State Department of Markets. W. H. Rice, University Extension Service, will speak on "An Improvement Project for Maryland Hatcheries and Hatchery Flocks."

Two other speakers on the morning's program will be Reese V. Hicks, secretary of the National coordinating committee, who also will speak on hatchery, and J. W. Kinghorne, poultry unit of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

At 1:30 p. m. there will be a poultry-judging demonstration by the 1933 State 4-H judging team. This will be followed by an inspection of the poultry experiment plant at the university, led by Profs. Roy H. Waite and George D. Quigley.

A directors' meeting of the Maryland State Poultry Association will be held at 2:30 p. m. Lloyd E. Holsinger, of Aquasco, Md., the president, will preside. Other officers include H. D. Copeland, of Anacostia, D. C., vice president, and Aaron Fell, Bethesda, secretary and treasurer.

The affiliated county associations include the Queen Anne County Association, Mrs. W. W. Rambo, president; the Talbot County Association, Mrs. W. W. Hopkins, Cordova, president; the Caroline County Association, Mrs. H. H. Rieck, Preston, president, and the Frederick County Association, A. Hayes, Thurmont, president.

Change Is Barred In Grottoes Camp

CCC Location to Be Kept for White Youths.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—The Grottoes State Forestry Camp, operated by the Civilian Conservation Corps, will be continued as a camp for white CCC boys and will not be converted into a colored CCC camp, Gen. Paul Malone, commander of the Third Corps Area, today wired Secretary Russell L. Stultz of the Harrisonburg Chamber of Commerce to this effect.

Information reached the citizens of Grottoes and the Harrisonburg Chamber of Commerce several days ago that the Civilian Conservation Corps was planning to convert the Grottoes camp into a camp for colored CCC recruits from Washington and Baltimore. Protest telegrams were sent to Gen. Malone and Director Robert Fechner of the conservation corps.

These telegrams were supplemented by wires of protest from Senator Byrd and Representative A. Willis Robertson.

Baltimorean Fells Doctor, Kills Self

Four Year Dispute Ends in Shooting, Suicide.

Baltimore, Aug. 2 (AP).—A four-year disagreement between a physician and his patient over sick benefits which the patient believed due him from an Italian lodge ended today with the physician in a hospital, a bullet in the back of his brain, and the patient dead, apparently by his own hand.

The physician, Dr. Vincent Culotta, was shot behind the left ear at his office last night while writing a prescription for the patient, John B. Di Carlo. Mrs. Culotta said Di Carlo was alone with her husband when she heard a pistol fire. Two children said a man whose description fitted Di Carlo, ran from the office.

Today, ten hours after the shooting, police found Di Carlo's body, clutching a pistol from which two shots had been fired, dying in a park.

McCarl Ruling Threatens AAA Sheep Buying

Drought Relief Heads to Continue the Program, However.

Drought relief plans of the Farm Administration suffered at least a temporary setback yesterday when Comptroller General McCarl tentatively ruled it lacked authority to make large-scale sheep purchases.

Officials emphasized the program had not been abandoned, and dismissed the McCarl note as "merely a preliminary ruling." They added J. P. Wenchel, acting general counsel of the Administration, would send to the Comptroller General today a memorandum listing reasons why they consider he should approve the purchases.

McCarl reported that since sheep were not specifically mentioned as a basic commodity in legislation passed by the last Congress it was not clear to him under what authority funds could be spent to buy them.

Dr. E. W. Sheets, drought relief director, declared the Administration still hoped to buy 5,000,000 head of sheep.

"Several courses still are open to us," he said. "First, we will attempt to convince Comptroller General McCarl that we have the necessary authority and ask him to reconsider. Should his final decision be unfavorable there still is the possibility of purchasing sheep through the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation or perhaps under general provisions of the agricultural adjustment act relating to removal of surpluses."

Sheets insisted sheep were included under the broad terms of President Roosevelt's executive order making $525,000,000 available for drought relief.

Officials reiterated drought area sheep ranges were overstocked and that wholesale deaths might result from water shortages and poor pasturage unless the planned purchases were carried out. If the plans eventually go through the meat will be distributed among the needy.

The Administration already has bought more than 1,800,000 head of cattle under its general adjustment authority over that commodity.

New AAA moves to aid drought stricken farmers yesterday included announcement of plans to purchase sufficient seed stocks for 1935 crop plantings, further modification of restrictions in adjustment contracts to permit more widespread use of rented acres for seed and feed purposes.

2% Sales Tax Places Illinois On Cash Basis

Property Levies Abolished and People Now Hail It as Success.

Chicago, Aug. 2 (AP).—Pennies of the Illinois sales tax have mounted into millions of dollars to put the State on a cash basis.

At the end of its first year, State officials announced $36,632,933 poured into the treasury from the 2 per cent sales tax, and acclaimed it as the "most satisfactory State tax."

The revenue, officials said, made possible elimination of all State property taxes, furnished more than $18,000,000 for emergency relief, and filled in miscellaneous funds when other revenues shrank alarmingly.

"The State is on a cash basis, paying all bills and taking advantage of discounts. Without the tax, a depleted treasury, unpaid bills and mounting real estate taxes would have thrown the treasury into a mess," Director of Finance Knowlton L. Ames said.

Called a "painless tax" because few persons notice the pennies that it costs, a disgruntled populace greeted the enactment of the measure in 1932. When no appreciable difference in prices resulted and State property taxes were entirely eliminated, people hailed the sales tax as an ideal assessment.

Its low administration cost, only 2.1 per cent, is praised as another good feature. It enabled the State to do its own financing on part of a relief bond issue. The State recently rejected a bid by a syndicate of Chicago banks on $5,000,000 in revenue notes against the $30,000,000 unemployment relief bond issue on which a referendum will be taken in November.

During the first month, 81,230 firms paid the tax, but by the end of the year more than 135,000 concerns were on the roster.

Its political implications, because of elimination of property taxes, and substitution of a painless tax, are said to be profound.

Slasher Resumes Attacks on Women

Sixth Victim Wounded by Supposed Lunatic.

Defiance, Ohio, Aug. 2 (AP).—Women walked warily tonight, nervously watching for sudden movements in shadowy places, as a terrorist was reported active again.

Police said that, after seven weeks of quiet, the man darted out of shadows near the Auglaize River bridge last night to slash Mrs. Ethel Endsley, 20, of Bryan, a housekeeper. She suffered a slight knife wound.

Forty vigilantes, immediately mobilized to assist police, failed to catch the terrorist. It was the fifth attack attributed to the impulse of a lunatic. Six women have been injured.

Slight Temblor Felt At Seward, Alaska

Seward, Alaska, Aug. 2 (AP).—A sharp earth shock, lasting for almost a minute, was felt here at 9:10 p. m. (11:10 p. m., Pacific standard time) yesterday.

The quake had a north-south movement. There was no damage, but radio reception apparently was interfered with for a time.

Check Will Decide Close Balloon Race

Barograph Figures Needed to Determine Winner.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 2 (AP).—Official figures were awaited tonight for a check of distances, to determine the winners in the National balloon race, which ended in Georgia with three of the bags apparently closely grouped for distance.

Ray Cooper, manager of the National Aeronautical Association, in charge of the race, said it probably would be Tuesday before the barographs had been checked in Washington.

New "Sky Train" Flying Here, Held Back by Weather

Philadelphia, Aug. 2 (AP).—A "sky train" of gliders was laid up at Philadelphia for the night, its New York-to-Washington trip halted by the elements.

Promoters of the flight expect the aircade will take off again tomorrow. The schedule called for dropping one of the three gliders in the train here. Another was to have landed at Baltimore, and the third and the towing plane were to have come down at the Nation's Capital. Each glider carried 75 pounds of mail.

The train left the Brooklyn Airport at 9:45 a. m., Eastern standard time. It was more than two hours before the ships were sighted over Philadelphia. Refueling and other details required 50 minutes, and the train took off again, only to be turned back a few minutes later by storms.

Our Neglected Playgrounds.

Washington, the city of beautiful parks, denies thousands of children a place to play. Tourists drive through Rock Creek and Potomac Parks and exclaim over the good fortune of the people who live in the National Capital. They do not realize that a large portion of the children who live here still find their recreation in filthy alleys, crowded streets, or on undeveloped vacant lots. While aiming to develop one of the world's finest capitals, Congress has been shamefully negligent in providing simple play facilities.

In a series of articles by James D. Secrest The Post is calling attention to this anomalous situation. Most residents of the District realize that our playgrounds, public swimming pools, tennis courts, neighborhood recreation centers, &c., are acutely inadequate. But the reason therefor is seldom emphasized. Too often officials attempt to explain away the neglect of this civic responsibility by saying that Washington is the Nation's Capital and should not expect attention to what is almost a birthright in self-governed cities. It is time to face squarely the issue thus raised and to demand of Congress more reasonable community service in the Capital City.

The simple truth is that Congress is spending local taxpayers' money for majestic parks, which are national in character, and denying to local citizens decent recreational facilities. A large part of our potential playgrounds are unused for want of a small appropriation. Those in use are denied proper equipment. What is still more important, the congested sections, which need playgrounds most, show the greatest deficiency. Underprivileged children are denied the constructive training of supervised play, because Congress uses local funds to extend scenic park areas.

Administration of Washington's play facilities is extremely complicated because of the overlapping authority of the Federal and District Governments. Consolidation of the heterogeneous agencies which control the parks and playgrounds would be a step in the right direction. Even when this is done, however, the task of impressing Congress with the gross injustice which it is imposing upon the underprivileged children of Washington will remain.

If Congress realized the facts, one could hardly believe that this body of representatives from the 48 States would be so callous to the needs and welfare of local children who are exposed to the environment of alleys and poolrooms. These facts, as set forth by Mr. Secrest, speak for themselves. They call for a united effort to put community service ahead of national projects in the expenditure of District funds.

Boring From Within.

As a writer of fiction, best known for his powerful novel "The Jungle," as a prolific pamphleteer, and as a Socialist candidate for high political office, Upton Sinclair has been in the limelight for many years. In the past, he has belonged to that group of nonconformists who work from without to revolutionize existing institutions. The depression has caused him to change his methods, however, and he is now storming the citadel of political privilege from within.

Convinced that the Socialist party has no chance to win the suffrages of the American people, Mr. Sinclair concludes that the surest road to the kind of State Socialism he desires is to offer himself as candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the State of California. As he says, "there is nothing novel about the idea of taking possession of one of the old parties and using it to serve the people," and, it should be added, to serve the candidate for office. Some of our best known Progressives would be nonentities if they had not clung so firmly to the orthodox Republican labels needed to identify them. Why, then, should a Socialist hesitate to adopt a Democratic label if he believes that the party is headed in the right direction and only needs a bit of energetic shoving to arrive at its fated destination?

So under the slogan "End Poverty in California," Upton Sinclair is campaigning for the Democratic nomination for Governor. His platform (the EPIC plan) calls for establishment of State land colonies for the unemployed, State-owned factories to absorb idle labor, and a State monetary system based on scrip issues, to exchange the products of the State-owned industries. By such means he proposes a partial and peaceful penetration of capitalist strongholds. The present Administration, he says, is "merely groping" its way toward the goal that he has defined.

Doubtless the ice-breaking which the Federal Government has done accounts for the surprising amount of enthusiasm which Upton Sinclair's candidacy has aroused in the State of California—an enthusiasm which may enable him to emerge as victor in the primary contest over another seasoned though less iconoclastic reformer and writer—George Creel.

After all, the people of California have become accustomed to so many varieties of alphabetical Federal agencies, established to regulate the conduct of economic affairs, that they can not be expected to feel alarm when a former Socialist recommends establishment of a few more authorities such as a CAL (California Authority for Land), a CAP (Authority for Production), and a CAM (Authority for Money). An "EPIC" plan designed to create a Socialistic Utopia in the heart of California, offered in familiar trappings of this sort, no longer has that quality of the unknown which appals even professed believers in the new and untried.

The Majesty Of Defeat.

There are periods in history when the entire race of man, regardless of nationality, creed or color, is for a moment struck silent by the awful significance of some terrestrial event. Such a moment came just 20 years ago, when the gray-clad German legions crossed the frontiers of France and Belgium to make world war inevitable. And such a moment came again yesterday, when the great leader of those legions, greater in ultimate defeat than in initial victory, passed on to join the endless regiments which died at his command.

Whatever the ultimate fate of the country which he served so devotedly, the name and fame of Paul von Hindenburg are safe with the immortals. History, indeed, will probably regard this stern old Prussian in much the same way as it regards the warmer, more lovable, but no more noble character of Robert E. Lee. Both were great leaders of men. Both showed their substance best not when the fight hung in the balance, but when their backs were pressed to the wall by overwhelming odds. Both proved their majesty in failure. And both confronted, and bravely made, such soul-searching decisions as few men are ever called upon to face.

The dramatic challenge to human stature was very different in the two cases. Lee's dreadful problem was whether to put loyalty to his State above loyalty to his Nation; whether or not to lead, for a cause which he thought just, armed rebellion against the forces of which he had been offered the command. In von Hindenburg's case the spiritual crisis came after and not before defeat. The test came when, although a monarchist to the core, he reluctantly accepted and loyally fulfilled the duties of that presidential office for which he had no sympathy.

One wonders what thoughts must have passed through the weary mind of Der Alte as he felt his life fading, even as his armies faded from his command in 1918. Certainly he had the consciousness of defeat, not only on the battlefield, but even more in the rapid political, cultural and economic decline of Germany, still under his nominal leadership. With Hitler and Hitlerism this old aristocrat had no real sympathy. Indeed he fought their rise as long as he was able. All Nazi excesses, both at home and in Austria, must have been bitter medicine for the dying man. Nor could he possibly peer through the chaotic obscurity to see what lies ahead for his beloved country.

Probably von Hindenburg was glad to die, knowing that his work was done, his forces spent, his personal contribution at an end. And yet, amid the gathering shadows, he doubtless drew much consolation from the knowledge and the philosophy which were his. After all, from the span of 86 years, much that fills the headlines of a week falls easily into its due importance.

Did the old general, on his deathbed, remember that in 1866 he fought against the Austrians at Koeniggraetz, the same Austrians whom he was to save from Russia half a century later? Did he recall his youthful studies of the Thirty Years' War, and of the Napoleonic campaigns, reflecting on the capacity of his people to survive the disasters of both these eras? Certainly, as one who had watched the wheel turn through so many revolutions, he must have drawn comfort from the fact that heretofore his people, for all their errors and illusions, have risen like Antaeus from disasters that would have overwhelmed a weaker race.

And it may yet prove that the passing of von Hindenburg may be as a symbolic transition from the old Germany that crashed through arrogance, to a restored Germany which the world needs for the great gifts which that great people can furnish to the common fund. The old marshal was a majestic figure just because he had the flexibility to build anew amid the ruins of his hopes. If the German people can from now on follow that heroic spiritual leadership, their future will be secure.

Whether or not this proves the case depends now more on the victors than on the downtrodden and disheartened German masses. To those who conquered, the dead President of Germany passes his final challenge. Will they prove, even at this late date, as honorable in their victory as he was in his defeat?

Too Much For a Whistle.

Addition of 95,662 employes to the Federal pay roll during the first year of the New Deal is reported by the Civil Service Commission, which, ironically, has had so little to do with their appointments. The fact that virtually all of these Government workers, chosen to administer vast new business organizations and regulatory bodies, owe their jobs to political influence is preeminently significant. The creation of an unprecedented political machine is the shadow side of the Administration's so-called "planned economy."

The New Deal began operations with the avowed objective of reducing Government expenditures and increasing private employment. A rough estimate (no accurate figures are available) would place the increase in private employment since the depression touched bottom at about 10 per cent. The number of Federal employes, during the last fiscal year, increased nearly 17 per cent. The Government's pay roll has been augmented by upward of $100,000,000 annually. The net result is far from coinciding with what was promised.

The major question now confronting the Administration is whether these far-flung agencies can justify their existence by concrete improvements in the economic situation. Thus far the taxpayer seems to be paying too much for his whistle. And the chance of reversing this trend toward higher overhead costs and ineffective "national planning" is not enhanced by the fact that most of these alphabetical agencies are at the mercy of the spoilsmen.

In Better Spirit.

Tension growing out of Japan's ambition to terminate the provisions of the 5-5-3 naval ratio with the United States and Great Britain seems to be easing somewhat. Premier Okada's recent statement favoring the general principle of naval reduction was conciliatory and friendly, even though the suggestion that the Japanese demand for equality does not mean parity, is neither entirely clear nor officially verified. It has, however, drawn from Secretary Swanson the welcome statement that he favors a 20 per cent cut in all navies.

These specific suggestions may be less important than the attitude which has prompted officials on both sides of the Pacific to offer concessions. Premier Okada's assertion that "naval limitation must begin with the nations most powerfully armed," and his insistence that the existing ratio system "hurts the self-respect of nations," are both somewhat specious. But there is much encouragement in his intimation that Japan may not insist upon complete parity at the 1935 naval conference, and his realistic reference to the intolerable financial burden of present naval armaments.

Secretary Swanson's proposal of a 20 per cent reduction in all navies, while retaining the 5-5-3 ratio, is a constructive reply to the Japanese overtures. The Secretary makes plain that this should be a real and not a "blue-print" cut. Of course, it can be said that our present building program, ominously satisfactory to the most extreme big-navy advocate, will make the scrapping of a number of old ships a natural procedure rather than any sacrifice to reach agreement. But Tokyo will realize that there is a definite concession in the offer, since a 20 per cent retirement of our full treaty fleet would mean more reduction than the same percentage would demand from Japan.

It may be significant that Premier Okada's overtures came immediately after the collapse of negotiations for purchase by Manchukuo of Russia's interest in the Chinese Eastern Railway. When difficulties with the Soviet come to the front there seems to be a tendency in Tokyo to lay stress on friendly relations with the United States. Failure of Russia and Japan to reach an agreement as to disposition of this vitally important transportation link is not expected to produce serious repercussions. Yet it may be a factor, along with the uneasiness resulting from the heavy drain of Japanese resources into military channels, in bringing about a rational naval agreement next year.

Whatever the cause, every conciliatory move by Japan should be matched or improved upon in Washington. The attitude of the naval authorities, and jingoistic spokesmen, of the two countries has lately come unpleasantly close to that of an outright and clearly antagonistic race in warship construction.

Tuneful Tennis.

Miss Helen Hull Jacobs is an excellent tennis player and the reason, she says, is Rachmaninoff.

In an amusing article in a current magazine she reveals that the year she was at best form she never went on the court without first having hummed to herself a few bars from that master's Prelude in C Minor. With the rhythm of the music ringing in her head, her feet danced lightly over the court. One day, when she was not playing as well as usual, a band struck up nearby, and she practically marched to rhythmic victory!

There is a good deal to what she says. Tennis lessons should first be given to music, for music makes the body conscious of the great part which synchronization plays in all sports. A golfer, a tennis player, a swimmer—all are most successful when they've got rhythm. But one undoubtedly should be careful in the choice of tunes.

When Miss Jacobs danced to the championship she did so with the exotic Russian strains lingering in the recesses of her mind. But Russians are notoriously poor tennis players. And of late Miss Jacobs, like several other American players, has not been doing so well. An astute critic of the game might observe that what is needed in their strokes is an infusion of jazz. Too much of the classical can be too good a thing, particularly if it tones down the tempo of a people who react much more readily to ragtime than to Rachmaninoff.

A scientist suggests digging a hole in the center of the earth. Wait until we get out of the hole we're already in, professor.

BELGIUM REJECTED the Kaiser's ultimatum and answered "that an attack on her neutrality would be a flagrant violation of the rights of nations; that to accept the German proposal would be to sacrifice her honor, and being conscious of her duty was firmly resolved to repel aggression by all possible means."

ENGLAND PRACTICALLY completed mobilization and awaited events, being neither belligerent nor neutral. She said the English fleet would not permit the German fleet to attack the French coast.

GERMAN CAVALRY raided the French frontier near the Fortress of Belfort. German patrols twice attacked Joncherey, near Belfort. German troops took possession of the Belgian town of Arlon. Martial law was proclaimed in Antwerp.

Hamilton's Autograph.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In New York State there is a historical record that would be popularly interesting as a perpetual exhibit in the National Museum. It is in a great, old country mansion standing in the triangular area defined by Albany, Schenectady and Watervliet.

About a dozen years ago, while examining in that region the birthplace and the three boyhood homes of Leland Stanford, first Republican Governor of California, transcontinental railroad builder, for 25 years president of the Southern Pacific, twice United States Senator, creator of a new breed of trotters that captured all world's records, founder of Stanford University, I was received in that old mansion by a then quite aged nephew of Leland Stanford and was shown a window in the drawing room. On one of its panes, plainly etched with a diamond, were two autographs put there by a young engaged couple when visiting that mansion more than 130 years ago. The girl of that romantic call was then Miss Schuyler, of Albany, her father identified as a famous Governor of New York. The name of the man there written with the diamond gift to his fiancee was Alexander Hamilton.

No place more appropriate than the City of Washington could be mentioned as the final repository of that romantic window pane. Washington, the Father of his Country, treated and loved as a son Alexander Hamilton, father of the Federal Treasury. A. R.

Proconsul Lyautey.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was especially interested and pleased to read your editorial in The Post of July 29 entitled "A Great Proconsul," referring to the death of Marshal Lyautey, "The Maker of Morocco." It recalls very vividly to my mind the decade (1897-1907) spent in the Island of Madagascar, during part of which Marshal (then Col.) Lyautey was in command of the Region of Fianarantsoa, during the administration of that other great proconsul, and my close friend, Joseph Simon Gallieni, Governor General of Madagascar.

Already in those days, Col. Lyautey's energy and intelligence as a colonial administrator, together with his happy faculty for inspiring the loyalty and affection of the native Malagasy, attracted attention, and was largely responsible for the peaceful conquest of the southern territory during his administration as chief.

I was honored with the confidence and cordial sympathy of Marshal Lyautey. He had visited the United States, and in our conversations revealed a wonderful grasp of American affairs. Morocco will always remain as one of his greatest achievements, where, it is hoped, his body will rest under the magnificent tomb at the gates of Rabat.

High Priced.

To The Editor of The Post—Sir: Is not your recent editorial, "A National Disgrace," overdrawn? I doubt if there could have been any vaudeville engagement for members of the Dillinger family, or any prospect of an attendance to make such an engagement profitable, if the newspapers of the country had not devoted columns, even pages to the Dillinger hunt. The newspaper pots need not stress too much the sooty character of the kettle's coloring. Do you realize that the Federal Government's wide activities in the Dillinger hunt cost probably in excess of $500,000 for salaries and traveling expenses, telephoning and telegraphing? It has been probably the most extravagant man-hunt ever recorded.

"Noble in Motive."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would appreciate if you could settle a little argument that has been brought about by Mr. Hoover's speech when he referred to prohibition as a noble experiment. What were his exact words in his speech? I read an article in which the writer said: "Mr. Hoover referred to prohibition as an experiment noble in purpose."

Could you help me out in this matter? JOHN MUIR.

Woodhaven, N. Y., July 25.

Ed. Note.—In Mr. Hoover's acceptance speech, of August 12, 1928, he said:

"I recently stated my position upon the eighteenth amendment, which I again repeat. 'Our country has deliberately undertaken a great social and economic experiment, noble in motive and far-reaching in purpose. It must be worked out construotively.'"

Threatening Revolt.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with interest the letters of J. T. Davis and V. L. Sturgill about wanting the return of prohibition. I wish the gentlemen would state their views on beer, which wasn't even mentioned. If beer is ever taken away again a revolution will probably result. Beer is one thing people must have, and it is more wholesome than many soft drinks.

I might possibly vote against strong drink, but beer must stay and never leave again. J. H. P.

"Casting Pearls?"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: About 40 years ago, Eugene Field, first of the newspaper columnists, ordered printed in large type on a card he tacked above his Chicago desk this whimsical sentiment: "God Bless Our Copyreaders. (He Can't Take 'Em Too Soon.)"

The Washington Post has 'em! In Friday's paper some anonymous writer other than The Post Impressionist gave the world an interview he had had at the Raleigh Hotel with the Chihuahua lawyer who has made getting rid of some 3,000 matrimonial mates a year quite as easy as the trick of a hairless Chihuahua dog in shaking itself free from that many Mexican fleas. Then some careless copyreader blurred the horizon of that perfect Mexican picture by making the infallible reporter refer to Chihuahua's neighboring state of Yucatan! Which is akin to mentioning Maine's neighboring State of Mississippi.

Copyreaders (sometimes vulgarly and iconoclastically referred to as "word butchers") are those inert creatures whom fate and flatulence have pliably bent over a copy desk and mysteriously equipped so that they can, by a deft injection of an apt synonym or the substitution of an artistic phrase, gild the lily the reporter has painted; or can pick the fly out of the verbal ointment; or can eliminate the more glaring and objectionable evidences of that absentmindedness in spelling, grammar, history, geography, and nomenclature that occasionally reveals the writing genius who is properly scornful of such details and trivialities.

All reporters instinctively know what is right, even if they do not write it right! But copyreaders, like men opening ugly oysters and rarely seeing a pearl, don't know right from wrong, but mostly guess wrong! ARCHIE RICE.

"Some Very Fine Editorials."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to congratulate you on some very fine editorials that have appeared in your paper recently. I am thinking first of all of the editorials on the muddled situation in Austria. "The Root of the Evil," published on July 27 is the best analysis of the situation and offers the most constructive suggestions that the writer has found anywhere. Too many editors have taken this occasion to spread hatred against Germany. You have endeavored to get at the root of the matter. You have put your finger on the root of the evil, when you refer to the "punitive and short-sighted provisions of the misnamed treaties of peace, concluded in 1919." You show real statesmanship in showing a way out of the intolerable situation, when you suggest that the League of Nations be convened for a revision of the treaties while there is yet time to preserve European civilization.

Your editorial on "The Hapsburg Movement" is along the same line of constructive statesmanship. You make it very clear that all talk at London, Paris and Rome about preserving the independence of Austria is the sheerest hypocrisy and is merely a cover for the selfish designs of the big nations that have no interest whatever in the welfare of the Austrian people. Would that the governments of France and Italy could be moved to take to heart your closing paragraph: "If Rome and Paris veto this also (the restoration of the Hapsburg monarchy and the eventual union of Austria and Hungary), it will be pertinent to ask what constructive procedure they are willing to sponsor. Other nations, which saved both France and Italy from total defeat during the war, are getting very tired of the slow strangulation being practiced with the most callous inhumanity upon helpless Austria."

This editorial page of August 1 brings two editorials that deserve especial commendation. "Temporizing With Peace" gives a much-needed warning and admonition to the responsible heads of the nations and a much-needed rebuke to the "superpatriotic Navy League." More power and influence to you in publishing such well-timed words in behalf of peace.

The other editorial comment, "A National Disgrace," is a timely rebuke to sensational theatrical managers and to that portion of our people that is swayed by a sickening sentimentality. It is also particularly apropos in view of the efforts being made by the churches to rid the movies and the stage of the filth with which they have been entertaining the public. If you would make your influence felt in helping in this campaign for cleaner cinema presentations, you would be doing much to prevent future Dillingers from being a menace to the Nation.

In connection with this last thought, I would urge you to give larger space in your paper for religious news and articles. This is one point in which the new Post is not an improvement on the old.

What has happened to the former custom of printing excerpts from sermons in The Post on Monday morning? Why was the custom of printing special articles by pastors in Saturday's issue of The Post discontinued? These were very worthwhile features of The Post. You would increase your influence for good and make your paper more welcome in many homes if you would restore such features.

The Post Impressionist

Postoffice, Friday.

WHAT price Henri Murger now, and what price that journalistic garret-dweller's once seductive "Scenes From the Bohemian Life?" What price the operatic "Vie de Boheme," and the lazy artists in the soft hats and flowing ties, and those artists' dimpled and careless companions?

Here's an American debunking them!

Hasn't your interest in the present wordy war over Modernism in Art impelled you to read Craven? Why, when Mrs. Kestler's caustic comments reached the Golumn, anent its quiet quotation on this subject from Harvey Maitland Watts, the first thing Watts said was, "Read Craven!"

Craven has girded half the enfuriated Modernists into condemning him as a Classicist—has baited half the enraged Classicists into anathematizing him as a Modernist. Yet the opinion of his which will most surely capture lay ears is the opinion that, whatever's wrong with modern art, Bohemianism is pretty much to blame for it.

"Bohemianism," he declares, "is but the artificial prolongation of youth beyond its brief romantic span." What you might call an operation on the esthetic glands.

And:

"Modern painting, ground through the Bohemian mills . . . has run amuck." For which mixture of metaphors we decline all responsibility.

Those devout students of the Column who haven't heard of him anywhere else may recall meeting Thomas Craven under our benign auspices. However, in the incredible case of your not having perused what we previously remarked about him, or in the even less credible case of your having perused and forgotten it—we tell you that he is the American art critic whom all American artists read (even though some of them cast bricks at his brick-red head thereafter); that he is read not only because he is eminently readable, and that his two books, "Men and Art" and its recent successor, "Modern Art," have had, and are having, sales which awaken memories of Ruskin's heyday.

To be sure, there is little else about them reminiscent of Ruskin. But——

He says that Murger's novel—or, rather, series of sketches—was one of the most potent press agencies for the spread of the Bohemian blight. But he adds: "One of the most persuasive champions of this world of make-believe was that arrant American, Whistler."

Says Craven: "Murger's novel and play fixed the name, Bohemia, and its physical background, once for all, and spread far and wide the contagion of gypsy indolence and childish masquerade so captivating to uninformed art students. His gospel of irresponsibility was welcomed by the small-fry artists, . . . who found in it an excuse for laziness and a means of pursuing the grosser pleasures. . . . About 1860, European outsiders came (to Murger's Parisian Bohemia) to taste the poison, and in the early seventies, the first Americans—whereupon the more estimable French painters declared it was time to get out."

Craven says: "Whistler . . . in his student days . . . was a typical Bohemian: at night he caroused and argued, during the day he loafed and argued, worked fitfully and made himself conspicuous . . . behaved, as Degas once said to his face, 'as if he had no talent whatever.' Growing older, he perceived, after it was too late, that he had diligently avoided most of the difficulties of drawing and composition. As a defense for his limitations, Whistler erected one of the most ingenious philosophies ever put forth by a painter."

Craven says that Whistler formulated into theory what had, before him, been merely haphazard practice. The critic more than implies that the artist defended loose study and loose living—and that a combination of these standards is responsible for those elements in modern art which Craven detests.

Then, he contends, the World War "did not shake the nonsense out of the artists." Instead, "it brought to the art colonies an influx of cosmopolitan roisterers . . . the dregs and misfits of disorganized America, whose presence has aggravated the Bohemian pestilence. . . . They lose all sense of values; and their lives and their art, if distinguished by any one thing, are distinguished by the total absence of good sense."

So does Craven arrive at that climax we have already quoted in part: "Modern painting, ground through the Bohemian mills . . . has run amuck through a succession of cults—Cubism, Futurism, Orphism, Synchronism, Purism, Expressionism, Integralism, Vorticism, Dadaism, Sur-Realism. Schools are founded on incompetence. It is told, that a young student, having difficulty in learning to paint like some one else, asked this of Picasso: 'I do not seem to know how to draw. Should I go to school?' 'No,' answered the master; 'you should not go to school; the thing for you to do is to found a school.' Most art of the present day has originated in this fantastic Bohemia; and by exhibiting sensational foolery . . . has made a profitable business."

You see, after people found Watts strong meat, we thought we ought to quote Craven. It is—as the most noncommittal man we ever met used to say to whatever argument was presented to him—it is certainly a point of view.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

The Foul Fiend.

JOHN COLLIER'S satirico-romatic novel, "Defy the Foul Friend" (Knopf, $2.50), is rather more the product of reading than of living.

THEO. HALL

Now this judgment, of course, is a ticklish matter. I make only the most general inferences from such of Mr. Collier's life as is known to me; my deductions from the book are distinguished at least by their breadth. But the matter becomes plain when one puts it this way—that the author of "The Postman Always Rings Twice," for example could have written his tale without reading a single book (I mean no disrespect to Mr. Cain's literacy), that by the same token Mr. Collier could not have written "Defy the Foul Fiend" without a pretty thorough acquaintance with a good deal of English literature. And there you find the charm of the book, and its limitations.

Every reviewer will point out that Mr. Collier's literary ancestors include Eighteenth Century Henry Fielding, who wrote "Tom Jones," (all-time best novel in English—or do I hear dissent?) and the school of smart, London, post-war writers typified by Evelyn Waugh and the younger Aldous Huxley. And every reviewer will be right (what a blessed day!)—for it is as noticeable as a sore thumb.

But vastly, infinitely more pleasant. Mr. Collier's novel holds the heartiness and the Old English characterization of Fielding. It contains the "devaluation of love" (which so wrought up Mr. Joseph Wood Krutch and Mr. Walter Lippman) and the absurd situations delightsome to Messrs. Waugh et al. It is a compound, a pot-pourri of this century and the eighteenth, done to a turn, served to a T, and ready for all who have appetites for a good story, superbly told.

* * * *

To entice you further, notice that the book has one hero. There is no need, as in too many others, to memorize as many characters and lives as would fill a good part of a city directory. Willoughby Corbo we know from birth (which, like that of Tom Jones, was on the "wrong side of the blanket")—a lad who said "I'm a villain" when he was very young, who grew up rather slighted and scorned, who thereupon "vowed to surrender to nothing that was not first-rate." His father, Lord Ollebeare, was a toping, gallivanting, entertaining old rascal "with a face like a coat of arms." The uncle who brought him up was an Old Scrooge. The uncle who befriended him later lived like a rustic in his country mansion, liked nothing so much as a good shot at a cock-pheasant, and had so little concern for the "higher things" beloved by Willoughby, that he stored apples on the library floor.

Among these, among stupid old Lord Stumber and smart, cynical young men and an admirable old bum and I don't know how many young ladies, our hero moves and acquires an education. He has a romantic phase and a radical phase and a sour-taste-in-the-mouth phase, yet somehow he remains pretty cool through it all. Cool, that is, enough to say to himself on one of his most miserable mornings: "I believe that this piece of toast will choke me. However, I shall not mind that." There's Willoughby's tone.

When, in the end, after considerable heart-burning and misadventure, he marries and goes to live in the hereditary mansion, the reader sighs with relief and hopes for the best. The best lasts for three or four years. And then, with his wife gone off from sheer boredom with our one-time romantic and clever young fellow, and the steward asking where he can put the apple crop, Willoughby replies: "Put 'em on the library floor."

* * * *

Amusing, shrewd, smoothly written as the book is, Mr. Collier seems to have placed it in a vacuum. There appears to be a war vaguely in the background at one time, by and by there's mention of a date in 1922, but, all in all, Willoughby could have been Tom Jones' younger brother—or for that matter a contemporary of Tom Brown's. What I mean is that we have here a story of an everlasting type of mind and adventure, rather than a picture of time. The worldly, hot-blooded and light-headed hero has always been a boon to fiction, and always will be.

And what is the "foul fiend?" The title-quotation, which I find by a slight bit of Shakespearean research to be somewhat less than printable in a family newspaper, leaves me puzzled. But all Edgar could have meant in "King Lear," I feel, is the exhortation from age to youth to keep out of trouble. And I'm afraid Willoughboy didn't do that very well.

* * * *

Mr. Collier is 33—nephew of Vincent Collier, English novelist, and great-grandson of William IV's court physician. At 19 he started publishing verse; at 29 he wrote "His Monkey Wife; or Married to a Chimp," a brilliant satirical novel on modern London's mores; at 30 he edited the brief biographies of seventeenth century John Aubrey, with some delight in the scandalous passages. Since then has appeared "No Traveler Returns" (1931), a satire on science; "An Epistle to a Friend" (1931), and "Green Thoughts" (1932), an amusing novelette with a foreword by Osbert Sitwell—all these being limited and rather expensive publications.

In 1932 he and Ian Lang did an "Only Yesterday" for English history between 1919 and 1929, entitled "Just the Other Day." In 1933 Mr. Collier isued a novel called "Tom's A-Cold" (straight from "King Lear," ten lines before the passage noted above), which was given the title in this country of "Full Circle"—an ominous prophecy of England in 1995.

Behind this diverse production stands a quiet but impish, well-read but antischolastic gentleman who lives in remote Hampshire, "indistinguishable," as he says, "in appearance and pursuits from any other country bumpkin."

Children: Mary Agnes, Helen Isabel, Charles Henry, Charlotte Claire and George Edward.

Such a large proportion of those who have been pictured by Mr. Robles have asked for the originals that The Washington Post is saving all these drawings to honor the requests of any future members of "The National Gallery."

First Wife Sought In Bigamy Case

Maryland Prison Sentence Waits on Hunt.

Westminster, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.). An investigation was being pressed today to trace Mrs. Nettie Hornsby Yingling, alleged first wife of Carroll Yingling, of Snydersburg, Carroll County, under sentence of 18 months in the Maryland Penitentriary for bigamy.

Yingling testified he read a newspaper report of Mrs. Yingling's death. She is alleged to have deserted him at Littlestown, Pa., in 1929. Yingling said he believed his first wife dead when he married Rosella Bowers, of Snydersburg, with whom he was living at the time of his arrest on charges lodged against him by Edward Bowers, his father-in-law. Yingling's attorney pleaded that the State had produced no definite evidence that Yingling's first wife was still living and Judge Parke suspended sentence for two weeks pending investigation.

With the time allowed by the court expiring today, the search for the first wife is centering around Dandy, in York County, Va., her former home.

Fredericksburg Kiwanis Inducts James A. Payne

Fredericksburg, Aug. 2 (Spl.). James A. Payne was inducted into the Fredericksburg Kiwanis Club in connection with the annual "Ladies night" meeting yesterday at Fairview Beach. Payne was a former member of the Hopewell, Va., club and was secretary of the Hopewell Chamber of Commerce.

Fifty-six members, with their wives and guests, were present. Roger Clarke, president of the club, led the meeting.

CCC Members May See Shrines Without Cost

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—Free admission to the major shrines of the city have been provided by the National Park Service for the more than 800 members of CCC camps in this vicinity.

Ballou to Address Dental Session

Will Outline Virginia's State-Wide Program.

Richmond, Aug. 2 (AP).—Virginia's State-wide dental program will be outlined by Dr. N. T. Ballou, director of the bureau of mouth hygiene of the State department of health, before the seventy-sixth annual convention of the American Dental Association at St. Paul, Minn., Monday to Friday.

Dr. Ballou will speak on Tuesday.

Virginia in 1921 organized a system of clinics in which dental services are rendered to public school children. In the counties contributing funds toward the work, full-time dentists are employed by the State and county.

Every child contributes 50 cents for cleaning the teeth, 50 cents for each filling and 50 cents for each extraction. The State shares equally in paying the rest of the dental cost.

Virginia Highway Workers Decrease

Force Estimated at 4,000 Under Aug. 1, 1933.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—The number of men employed in highway work in Virginia today is approximately 4,000 less than a year ago, it is indicated in a statement from the office of Commissioner H. G. Shirley.

The statement says that on August 1, 1933, there were 25,000 men employed, and for August 1, 1934, the number is 21,000. On August 1, 1932, the number was 12,500. The figures are estimates.

Mr. Shirley explained that the large numoer of men employed on August 1, 1933, was due to RFC funds and the State appropriation to match.

Physician Named To Examine Krol

Winchester, Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Dr. Charles A. Eliot, of Chicago, has been named by Judge Philip Williams, in Corporation Court here, to examine Max Krol, former local woolen company official convicted of embezzlement, and report if he believes Krol is physically able to make the trip here to answer bail.

Krol, convicted last winter of taking more than $4,000 from the now defunct Arthur G Jones Woolen Co., is reported ill in Chicago. At a hearing on a $5,000 bond which he posted pending an appeal of the judgment of the Winchester court, affidavits were introduced by counsel that Krol was too ill to appear here. The affidavits were presented, it was said, to gain further extension of time on the bond and to prevent its forfeiture for nonappearance.

Gallipolis Dam to Have 125-Foot Roller Gates

Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.). Maj. Fred W. Herman, district United States engineer, announces that the proposed Gallipolis Dam in the Ohio River will be equipped with the largest rolled gates built in the United States. The new dam will be an improvement over the design for the Marmet and London Dams, he says.

Eight 125-foot roller gates are to be installed compared with five on the proposed Winfield Dam in the Kanawha River. The Gallipolis locks, now under construction, will have a lift of 26 feet, whereas the Winfield locks will raise or lower boats 28 feet.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

American Vaudeville Program.

("The father, brother and sister of John Dillinger, dead outlaw, are appearing in vaudeville."—News item).

Overture. . . . . "Life on the Range." By an orchestra of musicians especially chosen from cabarets visited by Dillinger. With incidental numbers by a reformed saxophonist and two probationary pianists.

Act 1.—Dillinger's Dogs and Ponies. Featuring a horse to which the bandit fed apples in his boyhood, a cow milked by a second cousin, six hogs that lived on a neighboring farm, and a woodpecker that built its nest in a wooden gun.

Act 2.—"Daddy" Dillinger in Songs and Stories.

Mr. Dillinger is positively the highest salaried father of a deceased desperado now appearing on the American stage! He will entertain you with droll stories of the bandit's boyhood, answer all questions, and do the best he can with a limited repertoire of Indiana's folksongs.

Act 3.—America's Outstanding Sister Act.

Mrs. Audrey Hancock in person. Mrs. Hancock will sing, dance, imitate two Hawaiians and bake six coconut pies.

Act 4.—Hubert Dillinger. (Positively not a moving picture).

The half-brother of John Dillinger will recite, play the musical saw, yawn, yodel, imitate the call of wild birds, and otherwise endeavor to satisfy the discriminating tastes of American amusement lovers.

Act 5.—The Most Sensational Entertainment of All Time!
Colossal! Gigantic!
The Whole Darned Dillinger Family!

All members of the immediate menage, with two dozen first and second cousins thrown in. Ground and lofty tumbling, aerial acts, corn husking, hog calling, interpretive dancing and amazing feats of gymnastic dexterity!

Act 6.—Ballet of Dillinger Nieces. Vaudeville's contribution to the Century of Progress.

Act 7.—The Dancing Dillinger Nephews.

Sensation of the 1934 amusement world.

Act 8.—Sixty (60) Dillinger Cuties! Five dozen young women who were friends and associates of the dead outlaw in many a posse chase. They will dance! They will wriggle!

Ushers will pass among you with photographs of the dead outlaw.

Next Week.—The All-Star Capone Review!

Church Benefit Program Arranged

Delaplane, Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—A horse show, tournament, and baseball game are scheduled on the estate of J. B. McCarty at Cool Spring Saturday. The proceeds will go to the Emanuel Church for building repairs.

There will be a three-year-old lead in class, followed by jumping classes and a Shetland pony class for chilren. A baseball game between fathers and sons has been arranged. Representative Howard W. Smith, Frank Shacklett, B. A. Rucker, and Giles Bolen will be among the players on the fathers' team.

The last event is a tournament after which N. Frank Neer will make the coronation address. H. L. Smith and Jack McCarty, sponsors of the entertainment, report a large number of entries.

Tidewater Area Group Backs Free Trade Zones

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—The principle of establishment of free trade zones was approved by a group of about 50 representative business men from the Tidewater area who met with the State Port Authority here yesterday and adopted a motion of J. M. Overton, of Portsmouth, which would ask the councils of Hampton Roads cities to take action toward applying for free zone permits.

It will be necessary for the Virginia General Assembly to approve free zone applications for Virginia ports, but the meeting suggested that the Tidewater city councils make tentative application pending the 1936 Assembly meeting.

Coleridge.

Samuel Taylor Coleridge died 100 years ago, in the summer of 1834.

He was born in Devonshire in 1772, and, like most of the great English poets, studied at Cambridge. In 1795 he met Wordsworth, which was the beginning of one of the most fortunate and fruitful freindships in the history of literature. The two young men took long walks together, ardently discussing poetry, philosophy, politics, religion. If we could have a report of those wayside talks, it would be one of the most valuable books in the English language. The two friends in 1798 published a small volume called "Lyrical Ballads," containing two works of supreme genius, "The Ancient Mariner," by Coleridge, and "Tintern Abbey," by Wordsworth. Wordsworth was 28 and Coleridge was 26.

Both these young men had been excited by the French Revolution; the air was full of new ideas. Coleridge had planned to go with his friend Southey to the banks of the Susquehanna in Pennsylvania, and there organize a society of human beings like members of one family, and wickedness and selfishness would cease to exist. This scheme fell through, and the excesses of the Revolutionists in France cooled the ardor of Englishmen.

To the average reader Coleridge is known mainly as the author of "The Ancient Mariner;" but in addition to that and "Christabel" and "Kubla Khan," Coleridge is probably the most profound and penetrating literary critic in the whole range of English literature. Late in life he was sought after by innumerable visitors, and his extraordinary conversation dominated the age in a manner that had not been known since the days of Samuel Johnson, and to which the last hundred years can show no parallel. He was an intellectually stimulating power of the first magnitude.

From his undergraduate days he suffered from ill health; as a result of which, the habit of taking opium got possession of him.

The difficulties under which he labored, and the obstacles which he had to overcome have never been fully understood until within the last few months—but now, the publication of his "Letters" in two volumes, edited by Earle Leslie Griggs show that during his whole career Coleridge suffered from three major misfortunes; chronic ill health and physical agony, acute poverty, and a disastrous marriage.

Although in poetry his genius is usually regarded as most brilliant in introducing the supernatural element, there is a famous passage in his poem, "Christabel," that is wholly human; and it would be well if those who are in danger of quarreling with one whom they really love, would learn this passage by heart.

Alas! they had been friends in youth:
But whispering tongues can poison truth:
And constancy lives in realms above,
And life is thorny: and youth is vain;
And to be wroth with one we love

Midshipmen to End Cruise August 9

Target Practice Scheduled on Return to U. S.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.). Homeward bound from a cruise of nearly two months in European waters, the battleships Wyoming and Arkansas, bearing over 800 midshipmen of the first and third classes, will reach Hampton Roads, Va., August 9, officials of the Naval Academy were advised today.

Upon arrival of the warships, about 50 midshipmen, comprising the Navy varsity football squad, will be transferred to a smaller vessel and brought to Annapolis to start their annual leave.

The rest of the midshipmen will remain aboard the battleships and take part in target practice over the southern drill grounds. The practice cruise began June 1 and will end the last week in August, when the midshipmen on board, as well as second-class men who have been receiving special instruction in aviation, engineering and navigation at the academy during the summer, will go on leave, returning to Annapolis in late September.

Winchester Guardsmen Off for Camp Tomorrow

Winchester, Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Eighty-eight National Guardsmen of Winchester will entrain here Saturday afternoon for their annual two-week encampment at Virginia Beach.

There will be 64 men from Company I, 116th Infantry, Virginia National Guard, and 26 men from Headquarters Company of the same regiment. Officers of Company I include Capt. Paul R. Hartman, First Lieut. George F. Miller, Second Lieut. Asbury Jackson. First Lieut. Lawrence C. Hollis and Second Lieut. Harry L. McCann are officers of Headquarters Company.

Opening of Route 12 Will Be Celebrated

Eagle Rock, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—Preparations are going forward here for the all-day meeting of the Blue Grass Trail Association Saturday to celebrate the opening of route 12 from Roanoke to Clifton Forge and to encourage inclusion of a 14-mile gap in the trail from Eagle Rock to North Buffalo in the primary State highway system. The rest of the trail from Highland to Cumberland Gap is already in the primary system.

The Greatest Bridge Player May Not Know the Game

By Robert Quillen

Gettying a living by means of work—any kind of work—is a hard business.

But the business of making money is easy, for those who know how, and requires neither great industry nor unusual intelligence.

Essentially it is a business of buying something at one price and selling it at a higher price.

Whether the something is a gadget, an entertainment or a service, the principle is the same.

A manufacturer buys raw material, power and human skill at a certain price, combines them to produce something the public desires, and sells the product at a price greater than its cost.

Most of the money makers are "middle men." They reap where they do not sow. But they perform a necessary service.

Where they have a monopoly, they make money by paying one man too little and charging another too much. In all cases they buy low and sell high.

Thousands of would-be money makers fail every year—usually because they offer a supply where there is no demand or because they offer the public what they think it should have instead of what it wants.

Despite these failures it remains true that money making is not the highest of callings, nor is the ability to make money a proof of superiority.

In America it is usual to gauge the ability of men by the money they make, but that is unfair and foolish. The champion flag-pole sitter might not be champion if all men sat on flag poles. The ablest of men may not try to make money.

Such men as Einstein and Steinmetz would feel ashamed if they spent their time at such a business.

Money making has become a game, and those who play it have a natural and not unworthy desire to win. As winners they have the world's praise.

But it is stupid to low-rate any man because he doesn't make money, for the greatest of men prefer doing something else. Beethoven might have been a money maker, but he preferrd enriching mankind.

2 Unhurt as Plane Dives Into River

Army Officer and Civilian Swim to Safety.

Edgewood Arsenal, Md., Aug. 2 (AP).—Capt. Clayton L. Bissell, Army Air Corps pilot, and Morris Wimmer, civilian employe of the arsenal here, escaped injury when Bissell's Army plane dived into 11 feet of water in the Bush River here today.

The two men were submerged, but managed to free themselves from flying belts and parachutes and swim to the surface. They clung to the tail of the plane until soldiers from the arsenal rescued them with a boat.

The ship's motor had cut out while Bissell was flying over the water and he had not sufficient altitude to reach a suitable landing place. He brought the ship flat over the water, but as the wheels were submerged the plane nosed under.

Contract Awarded For Md. Road Work

Extension of Boulevard to Cost $60,577.50.

Totaling $60,577.50, a contract has been awarded L. R. Colvert, of Fredericksburg, Va., for extension of Southern Maryland boulevard toward Solomons Island, it was announced yesterday.

According to the office of Joseph Chaney, district engineer for the State roads commission, the new stretch will be from Sunderland toward Prince Frederick, Md., for 2½ miles.

The boulevard, when completed, will extend from the North Beach road, near Crain highway, to Solomons Island. All work being done now is in Charles County.

Guardsmen to Go To Rifle Range

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.). Five National Guard companies here will leave Saturday night for the State rifle range at Virginia Beach, where they will be in training for two weeks with the Ninety-sixth Brigade.

The local Military Police Company, Sixth Marine Reserve Brigade, will leave for the Marine base at Quantico Monday, and on August 12 two local batteries of the 246th Coast Artillery Corps will entrain for Fort Monroe.

The Military Police Company is scheduled to participate in a parade at Quantico August 12 before Maj. Gen. Russell, commander of the United States Marine Corps, and other officers.

The eight companies have a combined roster of more than 500 enlisted men and officers.

Plant Considered In Harrisonburg

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.). Harrisonburg is being considered the site of one of the plants for canning beef purchased by the Government as a relief measure.

Facilities of a local privately-owned abattoir, a closed canning plant, and a newly completed cold storage plant are said to be ideal for the purpose if the FERA will scale down the daily production from 100 to 50 cattle a day.

A FERA surplus products division representative surveyed the field here yesterday and said the facilities provided are the best he has found in the State.

Maryland Cattle Quotas Announced

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—County quotas of Western steers to be shipped into Maryland for pasturage were announced today by the University of Maryland.

Counties will receive steers as follows: Carroll, 813; Allegany, 463; Montgomery, 390; Frederick, 330; St. Marys, 260; Prince George's, 230; Howard, 215; Harford, 210; Baltimore, 180; Queen Annes, 157; Washington, 90; Calvert, 50.

A total of 108 carloads will be shipped to Maryland from drought-stricken regions.

Mrs. Bowman Vanmetre Dies at Shepherdstown

Shepherdstown, W. Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Mrs. Bowman R. Vanmetre, 51, died at her home here today after an illness of several months. She had suffered a heart attack.

Mrs. Vanmetre, formerly Miss Blanche McDonald, is survived by her husband, a son, Albert, of Glenburnie, Md.; five brothers, Hunter, Robert, William, Leonard and Butler McDonald, of Jefferson County, W. Va., and two sisters, Mrs. Willis and Mrs. Annie McDonald, also of the county.

Guardsmen to Give Concert.

Ocean City, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.). The 119th National Guard Artillery Band will give a concert on the board walk here Sunday night from 8 to 10 p. m.. Col. Elwood Robertson, of Wilmington, Del., leads the band.

Vacation Time Finds Capital With Abundance of Gay Spots

Cocktail Room at the Carlton Furnished in Continental Fashion; Rendezvous in Northeast Has Large Dance Floor.

By Kay Ware.

After the dinner dishes are out of the way, and there are a few dollars in your pocket crying to be spent, and you feel the need of a little night life, hesitate no longer, but grab your hat and—go!

Even in the slow days of summer, when most of Washington is vacationing on shore or mountain, there's plenty to see and do, music to be heard, laughter and gaiety to be found.

Here's what happens after dark, when work is forgotten and Washingtonians long to feel young and free again.

Continentalism is found at the Carlton's cocktail room. Red and white leather furniture, gold mirrors, murals amazing and at the same time subtly subdued, and best of all, the "hidden bar."

There are odd bits about the room. The murals are painted on wood by special process. The leather furniture can be washed only in the soap that is 99 44-100 per cent pure. How does the bartender, Louis Meyer, get into his gilded cage? If you arrive just at the right time, you'll see one of the green glass panels open, and Mr. Myer's heels disappearing within. Awkward business, crawling into the bar.

For ladies: try the Carlton cocktail, a mixture of gin, maraschino, and grenadine. It's a beautiful color, not unlike the red of the furniture. Men will find it too syrupy, and will fall back on the standard Martini and Manhattan.

If you live in the Northeast section, and a trip to the amusement places in the Northwest is too long, stop in the Rendezvous for dinner, dancing, or after-the-theater sandwich and beer.

There's a large floor for those whose dancing needs space, and good music for those susceptible to rhythm. Also a small minimum charge for those whose purse strings are worn from constant pulling.

Meaning of Orange Arches.

Washington is full of identifying lights; the searchlight on Wardman's roof, the spot on the Monument, the red specks on the radio towers, and various others that streak or fleck the sky.

The best known amusement lights are the orange arches on Thomas Circle. We've seen them there for years, glowing in the summer time, then dimmed during the winter months. Now, they mean but one thing—Club Michel.

This week, Club Michel means, among other things, Arthur Godfrey. You, who have heard him during those painful moments in the morning when pulling on socks and shoes require the greatest will power, may watch him coo into the "mike."

The wave of sidewalk cafes, in the continental manner, that has hit New York this summer, has not reached Washington yet. But in our quiet Southern way we have gardens to dine in.

If the sidewalk table is necessary for some evening moods, and an Italian dinner combines well, they can be had at the Nobile Cafe, on Tenth street, just off F street. The tables just fit on their narrow terrace, and the trees and vines are very young and serve better for atmosphere than screening. But you can eat and watch the world go by, in the approved Parisian manner.

As for gardens—you can have a few leaves in your coffee on almost any street.

Spanish Specialties.

You'll like the Madrillon for several reason—because there's an atmosphere (aside from the Spanish) of agreeable hospitality; because Leon Brusiloff is ready and willing to play many and excellent tangos (hoping you like tangos); because, even if you don't like tangos, he'll play any selection you may prefer; because they have a salon group that plays Spanish semiclassic music during dinner hour.

Also, in spite of the fact that you may sit beside a desert (on the wall), it is always cool in hot weather. Try some of the Spanish specialties there. Peter Borras and his chef really put poetry into cooking.

You'll like the Loewenkeller's waiters if you like waiters with personality. They run through the center of the dance floor yelling "Hot coffee!" when they are really carrying steins of beer.

They sing those German songs that go backward, like "The House that Jack Built." You have to be slightly goofy to appreciate them. Even if you don't know German you'll find yourself singing lustily by the time the songs are half through.

The place is packed with laughs and atmosphere. "Happy" Walker is a good host, stopping at the tables of his guests and offering a funny crack or two. "Happy's" music is good too, and if the dance floor in the "garten" becomes too crowded, you can go on the inside floor and do a semi-solo with plenty of room for intricate steps.

Did you know that the propellers at the Hangar Club are genuine? They came from an airplane graveyard, and some of them have survived hair-raising experiences. If you want further details, you might ask Brownie or Bill Levy.

* * * *

When the weather's too hot for tennis, and you're afraid to expose your burn to the sun while swimming, drive down to the meadow by the Reflecting Pool of a Sunday morning and watch the archers pop arrows in the gold (gold is what is commonly known as the bull's-eye. Archers never say bull's-eye.) Some one is shooting there anywhere from 10 a. m. to 2 or 3 p. m.

Sometimes there's a Sunday tournament, and then you can really see the feathers fly. There's a girl archer who holds a world's record. She's worth watching. Identify her by her red hair.

There's always somebody who will tell you all about the Archers Club, where you can buy bows and arrows, why shooting is difficult, what the proper form is, and so on.

For a quiet supper and a quiet talk, go to the Lotus and get the waiter to lead you to one of the secluded booths along the wall. For luncheon of chop suey, try the Lotus.

They have quite a bunch of entertainers this week, to be seen and heard at 1:30 p. m. and again at 7:30 and 11:30 p. m. The "Topsy and Eva" leading lady, Theo Pennington, is there with a group of songs, and a lovely dancer deserted the night clubs of New York and Montreal to come to the Lotus. A dance team that has performed before crowned heads of Europe will add to your delight.

The Lotus' funny man, Al Norton, is on the job as master of ceremonies.

If there were a few cows standing around and some fences with stiles, the waitresses at the Gingham Club would have a perfect setting. They are all attired in gingham, of course; short skirts and organdy ruffles. Very cute, to say the least.

For an inside place, the Gingham Club has done a lot to create the outside atmosphere. Striped awnings and lattice along the wall gives it the garden touch.

For that midnight waffle, or that early morning coffee and toast, try the Gingham Club. For dancing to peppy music, and gaiety over glasses of wine, the club is an excellent place.

Chevy Chase Lake is an ideal spot if you want to get cool. There are trees all around it, the atmosphere is almost country clubbish, it's so far away from the whirl and whirr of city streets. If you don't want to dance, there are little nooks where you can sip a long, cool drink and watch the people on the floor.

If you haven't been to Chevy Chase for a long time, go out tonight and see how the place is improved. They call it "new," and it is, in every sense of the word.

Straight out Connecticut avenue to the end of the car line.

One of Washington's indoor sports is visiting the "house of three centuries" on Albemarle street in the Chevy Chase section, and guessing which century is which. Some 800 guesses were busy last Sunday. It takes an interest in period furniture, or else a true gambling spirit.

By-play:

Capt. Lou Barrison, the stilt-dancer at the Shoreham, first presented a dance as a drunk. An excuse for the falls. He is a teetotaler, and dances sober now. No falls . . . Pete Macias must have money to sink. His boat ran into log, and sprang first boat ran into a log, and sprang a leak, so he bought another . . . Phil Harris thinks the Hi-Hat cocktail room is like the "delightful" places in California. He and his lovely partner, Leah Ray, were at the Club Michel last Monday . . . Did you see them? . . . The Willard's wine steward, Sherman Wolley, says the best appetizer is a glass of sherry . . . We saw Amelia Earhart at the Willard Coffee Shop not so long ago.

At Maryland Club Gardens there's a very large photograph of a tree trunk in the living room that is worth an extra trip . . . Harry Albert's Band, now performing at the Arlington Roof, played last year at the Lido.

Lights Against the Night Life Sky

Home of Three Eras Attracts Large Crowds

Visitors Hail Design and Furnishings of Display House.

The large attendance at "The Home of Three Centuries," by W. & J. Sloane during the initial week of its presentation, marks it as the outstanding home exhibit of the year.

During the opening week of its exhibition, visitors were delighted by the architectural and structural beauty of the offering and by the refinement of its exquisite furnishings.

The display residence located at 4501 Linnean avenue, at the corner of Linnean avenue and Albemarle street in Forest Hills, is sponsored by The Washington Post.

It is a dignified English design stone and masonry house, located on a beautifully wooded and landscaped lot with 148 feet frontage.

The home is presented by the C. H. Hillegeist Co., owned by William H. Saunders Co., Inc., and furnished by W. & J. Sloane. The landscaping is by E. H. Bauer. The house is an "all gas home," equipment of which includes an automatic gas heater and Electrolux refrigerator is by Washington Gas Light Co.

On the first floor are a spacious living room, dining room, lavatory, den, butler's pantry and kitchen. On the upper floor are five master bedrooms and three baths. In the basement is a large clubroom, paneled in quartered oak, and servants' quarters.

The finest examples of decorative motifs have been taken by the Sloan organization in the furnishing of the home. They range from the Queen Anne and Georgian periods on the main floor through "three centuries" to those of the Empire and modern.

The home will be open daily and Sunday until further notice between the hours of 10 a. m. until 9 p. m. To reach it, drive out Connecticut avenue to the traffic light at Albemarle street and turn east toward Rock Creek Park, three blocks to the home.

Arlington Jury Pushing Probe

Corruption Inquiry Enters Fourth Day With no Indictments.

The special grand jury appointed to investigate possible public corruption in Arlington County ended its third day of deliberations yesterday without returning any indictments. As far as old-timers are able to recall, there is no precedent for such action in the history of the county.

Yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock the jury, under Foreman Walter O'Hara, had completed the questioning of 20 witnesses, several of whom were put on the stand two or three times. At 5:35 p. m. jurymen were still wrangling about what action should be taken, when word came from Judge Walter McCarthy to call it a day. The deliberations are scheduled to begin again at 10 a. m. today.

The witnesses who underwent questioning yesterday were; Mrs. Elizabeth Magruder, member of the county board; John F. Webster and J. Vernon Smith, real estate operators; Robert Daniel, contractor, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wasserman, who maintain a filling station in Clarendon.

"Come at Once" . . . to Arkansas
And Wanda, in Washington,
Glanced Into Her Slim Purse.
Come to Arkansas . . on $1.17!

Broke! Her purse so slim she dares not spend fifteen cents on a sandwich and a cup of coffee. That's Wanda Mallory's predicament when "Potomac Park," a new novel by Carolyn Cox, begins in The Washington Post on Sunday.

After countless discouragements, the New Deal offers her haven; no longer need she worry over food and lodging, how to pay for the necessities of life.

Romance beckons, in a chance meeting with a stranger in Potomac Park, and lifts her to new peaks of happiness. Suddenly her new-built world crashes about her. "Mother hit by automobile. Come at once. John."

All this happens in the opening chapter of this engrossing love story, yet swift-moving though it is, Carolyn Cox's new tale is no ordinary novel. For Washingtonians it holds the lure of familiar settings. Wanda Mallory, the heroine, finds work in a Government office. The friends she makes are patterned after the types of men and women the Capital knows so well. Their conversation rings true, for Miss Cox, herself a Government employee, has caught the patter, and reproduced it perfectly. No truer picture of official Washington—not the celebrities in the day's news, but the ranks who make up its backbone—has ever been drawn.

Roosevelt Brings Bit of Hawaii Home

Presented With Original of Queen's Greeting, "Welcome Chieftain."

Two Cabinet Members to Be on Hand When Houston Arrives.

For those who visit the Hawaiian Islands and eventually have to leave, there are two distinct partings. First, there is that truly indescribable sailing from the pier in Honolulu, when the steamer rail is thronged by people, whose faces are all but completely hidden by leis of carnations, gardenias, ginger blossoms, pikaki and ilima.

As the vessel slowly glides out into the harbor, the band (for there is always a band down by the sea "Aloha-ing" the world-traveled ships) starts that once-heard-never-forgotten melody, "Aloha Oe." Then it is that everyone promises himself a return trip to the Islands some day.

When old Diamond Head has long since faded into the horizon there is the feeling on shipboard that the land of Hulas is just "out there," not far, but just in the mist. But when the Pacific has been crossed, the ship tied up at one of the ports on the West Coast, and the passengers proceed down the gangplank, something is left behind. There is a second parting when each person thinks longingly of the various reminders and souvenirs that were not brought along.

Hailed With Queen's Song.

However, President Roosevelt is bringing a bit of Hawaii across the Pacific and right to Washington. When he arrived in Honolulu, planes droning overhead, bands playing and thousands of blossoms scenting the air, he not only heard the world-famous "Aloha-Oe," but also another Hawaiian song of greeting, "Welcome, Chieftain." The words were written many years ago by the beloved Queen Liliuokalani.

Just the mere glimpse of the Island of Oahu, with its rugged green mountains, misty, veil-like waterfalls, precisely blocked pineapple fields and betassled cane fields, affords welcome enough for any "Malihini," or visitor. In the air there is the very spirit of friendliness and welcome.

But even with all of that, Queen Liliu, as she was fondly nicknamed by the islanders, decided that there should be some sort of a poetic greeting for visiting royalty. So she wrote her little verse.

Presented to President.

For some time it was tucked away with her belongings. Then, at her death in 1917, it was placed in the archives in Honolulu, where it had remained until a short time ago, when, during the preparations for President Roosevelt's arrival, Miss Jean Hobbs brought to light the scrap of paper and set its message to music. It made its first public appearance when it was played and sung as the President landed on Oahu, and later he was presented with the original manuscript.

Today the Chief Executive will arrive in Portland, Oreg., where he will take leave of his sea-going home of the past few weeks, the U. S. S. Houston.

He will be met by two members of his Cabinet, the Secretary of War, Mr. George H. Dern, who is just ashore from an ocean voyage himself, and the Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Harold L. Ickes, and also the chief of the Corps of Engineers, Maj. Gen. Edward Markham, who is to accompany President Roosevelt on some of his inspection tours before starting East by train.

Bolivian Minister Host at Luncheon

Guest of Honor Is Senora de Edwards.

The Minister of Bolivia and Senora de Finot entertained informally at luncheon yesterday in honor of Senora de Edwards, wife of the Minister of Chile to Cuba. Mr. de Lancey Kountze, of New York City, has returned here for a short visit. During his stay he will be at the Wardman Park Hotel.

To Be Bride of This Month

Harris & Ewing.

MISS MILDRED EVELYN BECKER, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julius T. Becker, recently announced her engagement to Mr. William A. King, of Montezuma, Ga. The wedding will take place on August 24 in the Concordia Lutheran Church.

Miss E. G. Davis Now Bride of Mr. Soderberg

Ceremony Solemnized in Garden of Home at Alexandria.

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Gould Davis, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Robert Davis, of Little Collingwood, Alexandria, Va., to Mr. Raymond Soderberg, of Sioux City, Iowa, and Washington, took place last evening at 7 o'clock in the picturesque garden of the Davis home on the Memorial Highway.

The Rev. Percy Foster Hall performed the ceremony before an improvised altar of white gladioli, which stood in front of a group of tall dark cedar trees. Col. Davis escorted his daughter to the altar. The bride wore an empire model gown of heavy white crepe made on severe lines, the long skirt falling into a graceful train. The veil of white tulle, trimmed with rare old lace, a family heirloom, was arranged in cap fashion. She carried an arm bouquet of white gladioli.

Miss Edwina Davis attended her sister as maid of honor. Two other sisters, Miss Barbara Davis and Miss Dita Davis, were the bridesmaids. All three of the sisters were costumed alike in white dotted Swiss empire models made with sashes of the same material. They each carried bouquets of coral gladioli.

Mr. Soderberg was attended by Mr. Arnold Kvam as best man. The ushers were Mr. William Briggs, Mr. Thomas Keating, Mr. Howard Kurtz and Mr. Robert Weir.

Following the ceremony, Col. Davis, the bride and bridegroom and their attendants received the guests on the lawn. Mrs. Davis, mother of the bride, attired in a handsome gown of beige and gold lace, received in the drawing room, which, like the dining room, where a light supper was served, was decorated with bowls of ivory gladioli.

Through her mother the bride is the great-great-granddaughter of Count Paul Kovalewski, of Warsaw, Poland, and the great-granddaughter of A. P. Gould, of Maine.

Mr. Soderberg attended Morningside College in Iowa and is now connected with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Upon returning from their wedding trip, the young couple will make their home in Washington.

Mrs. Gillilan Leaves To Visit Her Daughter

Mrs. Strickland Gillilan left yesterday to be the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Carl Buchheister, at the latter's summer place, Camp Moccasin, at Lochmere, N. H.

Mr. Gillilan will remain in their apartment at the Shoreham, and their son, Mr. Burdette Gillilan, will remain with him until the first of September, when he will join his mother. He will be accompanied to New Hampshire by Miss Elsie Keyes, who will be Mrs. Buchheister's house guest. They all will return to Washington together the latter part of September.

Miss Marie Steiner has left Washington and is visiting Yellowstone National Park. Later she will spend some time on the West Coast before returning East by way of St. Louis, where she will remain with relatives for a brief stay.

No-Host Fete Given By Younger Set

Group Dines and Dances at Club Michel.

A group of Washington's younger set who have withstood the wear and tear of the heat and remained in town got together last evening at a no-host party at the Club Michel.

Among those who dined and danced were Miss Betsy Simpson, Miss Frances Simpson, Miss Betty Cremen, Miss Mary Senate Howes, Miss Margaret McMullen, Miss Peggy Barker, Miss Bette Hartz, Miss Margaret Spear, Miss Julia Koestner, Mrs. Neitah King, Mr. Lokey Bradford, Mr. Charles Koestner, Mr. Richard Jones, Mr. Louis Tarbet, Mr. Jack Nicolls, Mr. Gerard Guilfoyle, Mr. Bradford Ross, Mr. Charles McDaniels, Mr. Robert Savage, Mr. Charles Belle and Mr. David Smith.

Iowa State Society Plans Beach Party

Will Hold First Outing Tomorrow.

The Iowa State Society will have its first summer picnic and beach party at the Annapolis Roads Beach Club tomorrow afternoon and evening.

The fine white sand beach stretching in a mile-long crescent, will attract all Iowans who like bathing, swimming or basking in the sun. The 341 acres of wooded parkland bordered by the Chesapeake Bay will give them a day of recreation and entertainment, with a course providing modern golf at its best.

According to Mr. P. R. Baldridge, president of the society, every detail for an enjoyable outing has been arranged.

Mr. and Mrs. Denckla Leave Camp Woods

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Donner, of Philadelphia, have leased their place, Camp Woods, at Villa Nova, Pa., to Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Denckla, while the latter's place, Lands End, at Edgemont, is being remodeled.

Mr. and Mrs. Donner, with their two daughters, Miss Dora Browning Donner, who will be a debutante this coming season, and Mrs. Donner Roosevelt, with the latter's small son, William Donner Roosevelt, are spending the remainder of the summer in Europe.

Mr., Mrs. Auchincloss Return to Long Island

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Auchincloss, who were guests of the latter's parents, Col. and Mrs. Edward M. House, at Beverly Farms, Mass., for Col. House's seventy-sixth birthday anniversary, have returned to their home at Locust Valley, Long Island, N. Y.

Tomorrow Col. and Mrs. House will celebrate their fifty-third wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Daryl D. John, with Mrs. A. H. Browning and Mrs. Marie Utley, has taken an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel. They will make their home there for the coming months.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Draper will sail tomorrow from New York, aboard the S. S. Champlaine, for Europe, where they will spend three months traveling on the continent, before returning to Washington.

Culbertson on Bridge

1125.
Far-Sightedness.

A very good Bridge player once said to me, "All I ask during the play of a hand is that every time I play an Ace I trap an opposing King." In the long run I have no doubt but that this would mean that the player in question would get the maximum out of his cards. However, a defensive player should not blindly play an Ace every time a King is offered him. His proper procedure, starting at the very beginning of a hand, is to remember the final declaration and then look ahead and survey the probable play of the hand as a whole with a view to finding some method of taking the number of tricks necessary to defeat the contract.

In the hand below the East player of Trick 1 made a very fine hold-up, which was the only way the contract could be defeated.

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	♠ 8 7 6 4 ♡ A J 10 7 ◇ K 5 ♣ K 10 6
♠ K 10 9 ♡ 9 6 5 ◇ Q 10 7 6 4 ♣ 7 5	N W E S	♠ 5 ♡ K 4 3 2 ◇ J 8 3 2 ♣ A 8 3 2
	♠ A Q J 3 2 ♡ Q 8 ◇ A 9 ♣ Q J 9 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	3♠	Pass
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

West's Opening lead was the club 7, and the Declarer played the King from Dummy. East resisted the natural impulse to go up with the Ace. Having started to analyze the situation before the Declarer played from the Dummy, he played the club 8 with but a second's hesitation.

East, I am sure, reasoned to himself in the following vein:

"We need four tricks to defeat this contract. I can count on one fairly certain heart trick and the Ace of clubs, and, judging from my own spade holding and a view of the Dummy, there is a good chance that my partner has a sure spade trick—either the Ace or King, probably guraded twice. If this is the case, South of course must have the diamond Ace and my only hope of defeating the contract lies in my ability to give West a club ruff. If I win the first club trick with the Ace, and if my partner has led a singleton, the setting trick will be taken immediately, and there is even a possibility of setting the contract two tricks. However, it is most unlikely that West has led a singleton, as this would give the Declarer five cards in the suit—a possibility but not a probability.

"Assuming therefore that the Opening lead is a doubleton, if I win the first club trick with the Ace and return a club, West will follow suit. My partner will then subsequently get in with his trump trick but will have no means of giving me the lead to give him a club ruff before the Declarer first gets in and draws the last trump. Why, therefore, shouldn't I hold up my Ace of clubs on the first trick and in so doing leave my partner a communication card — his other little club? My play may lose if the lead was a singleton, but from the bidding this seems unlikely. My partner may conceivably have a trump trick and the Ace of diamonds, and if this is the case, the contract will be defeated no matter what I play. All in all, my chances of giving my partner a ruff and thus providing the setting trick will be greatly increased by not playing the Ace at Trick 1."

After North's club King held the first trick, South led a spade from Dummy. East, of course, played low, and South, being a far-sighted Declarer, realized the danger of a third round club ruff. In an effort to prevent this ruff, he went up with the Ace of spades and then led the Queen. West won the trick with the King and led another club, and when East returned the suit he trumped the third round. Since South now had no means of preventing East from winning a trick with the heart King, the contract was defeated.

East's play was admittedly a reasonably close one, but I am sure the percentages definitely favor the hold-up, and in this particular case everything worked out according to schedule.

Tomorrow's Hand.

Miss Gilmore Is Married to Virginia Man

A wedding of wide interest took place Thursday evening, in Emlenton, Pa., when Miss Mary Eleanor Gilmore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Richmond Gilmore, became the bride of Mr. Hugh Bell Sproul, jr., son of Mrs. Hugh B. Sproul and the late Mr. Sproul, of Braeburn, Staunton, Va.

The ceremony, which took place at the Gilmore residence, was performed by the Rev. Boyd F. Williams, of Emlenton. The rooms were decorated with yellow gladiolis, blue delphinium and other blending garden flowers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white crepe and carried a shower of valley lilies.

Mrs. Robert White Lafore, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor and wore a model of cornflower mousseline de soie and carried yellow flowers and fern.

Edith Margaret Gilmore, small niece of the bride, was flower girl and wore an ankle-length frock of blue and carried a nosegay of Johanna roses.

Mr. Erskine Sproul, of Staunton, was best man for his brother.

Following the ceremony a buffet supper was served at which Mrs. Gilmore, mother of the bride, wore a gown of blue chiffon and lace, and Mrs. Sproul, the groom's mother, wore black lace.

Out-of town guests who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. William B. Allnutt, of Baltimore; Miss Eugenia Sproul and Miss Agnes Sproul, of Staunton; Mr. and Mrs. Franklin B. Gilmore, of Port Alleghany, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Lafore, of Rose Valley, Pa.; Dr. and Mrs. Hugh R. Gilmore, jr., and Edith Margaret and Hugh R. Gilmore 3d, of Ancon, Canal Zone.

Bedford Springs Host to Golfers

Tournaments Will Be Held Sunday and Monday.

Golf holds sway at Bedford Springs this week, as many parties gather for the annual amateur and professional tournaments at the Bedford Springs Golf Club. Golfers from Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia are entered in the tournaments to be held Sunday and Monday. The tournaments are the occasion for smart gatherings and swimming, dinner, cocktail and dancing parties.

A prominent golf arrival is Miss Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, National women's champion, who set a women's record for the sporty Bedford Springs course this week with a card of 82.

Among arrivals from Washington are Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Turnbull, jr., accompanied by Mrs. A. Lochner deVilliers, of Constantia, South Africa.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Merriam, who formerly spent some time in this city, are here from their home in Ithaca, N. Y., for an indefinite visit. They are staying at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Patent Right Upheld.

The right of the Stelos Co., Inc., a Washington concern, to a patent covering the repairing of stockings has been upheld by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which overruled a decision rendered by Federal Judge Woolsey in March, 1932. Judge Woolsey found invalid the reissue of the patent, No. 16360.

Nesbits Sail Today For Trip to Europe

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nesbit and their young daughter, Barbara, will sail today on the Laconia to spend several weeks in Scotland, England, and on the Continent.

While in Europe they will make a tour of the Chatean country, after which they will go to Italy to spend some time in Florence and Rome, later going to Naples, whence they will sail late in September on the Saturnia, for home.

Fashions of 15th to 17th Centuries Revived in Latest Paris Showings

Foresters' and Peasants' Tunics Influenced New Designs.

Jackets and Hats Reflect Costumes of Henry II Period.

This is the first of a series of articles on the new fall and winter styles as revealed in fashion openings in Paris and New York.

PARIS Aug. 2 (AP).—The fashions men wore during the reigns of French kings who ruled from the fifteenth to the seventeenth centuries colored women's modern winter styles, launched at showings here this week.

Foresters' and peasants' tunics and large sleeved, belted doublets worn by spearmen and shield bearers from the times of Charles VII to the reign of Henry IV influenced the designs.

Jackets and even hats show the influence of the time of Henry II. Costumes combine frocks or skirts built along slender, tube-like lines with fitted, belted jackets having big loose sleeves cuffed at the wrists.

Jackets Many Colored.

Multi-colored tweed jackets fashioned on these lines were worn with matching skirts or with dark wool frocks of contrasting color. Also featured were a velvet, double jacket, topped wool frocks and many jackets furred on hgh-collared lines with skunk seal. These were worn with Henry II hats of felt, with big crowns and narrow brims rolling up on the side, sometimes trimmed with one small bright feather.

The dresses are built on the slenderest lines, with narrow skirts often slit six inches on each side to permit easy walking. Skirts are somewhat longer.

The sports models stressed high collared, belted, wrap-around coats, and two-piece wool frocks worn with bright wool scarfs.

One costume, named "The big bad wolf," was made of a two-piece black wool dress, fastened in back and trimmed with a shaggy wool black and white scarf.

Many daytime costumes combined wool frocks with matching, seven-eighths length coats designed in cocoa, mustard, sage and green tweeds. The coats generally are semi-fitted and trimmed with flat furs, such as brown and black astrakhan. Numerous daytime frocks were trimmed with gold and silver.

Sage, green and brown wool dresses were barred with gold threads, or trimmed with silver stitching.

Vest of Silver.

A black crepe dress had a vest of silver and a coat of mail paillettes.

Numerous evening gowns of black, burnt orange and electric blue velvet were designed with low decolletages, were slashed once deeply and had hem lines lined with gold.

Hats are larger than they have been for many winters. Though a number of small models are seen, medium-sized designs which span about 12 inches are being shown by every important modiste in Paris. The big hat, somewhat smaller than the huge models shown this summer, is favored for winter afternoon wear.

Dr. Smith Predicts Arithmetic's End

NEW YORK, August 1 (Spl.). A students' Utopia, in which there will be no worries over fractions, algebra, geometry or trigonometry, is forecast by Dr. David Eugene Smith, professor emeritus of mathematics at Columbia University.

Arithmetic as it is known in schools today will be largely discarded within 50 years, Dr. Smith believes. Much of the algebra and other forms of mathematics will be banished from high school courses, he predicts.

The schools of the future, Dr. Smith thinks, will teach only those forms of mathematics useful in the every-day lives of students. Mathematically gifted pupils will be segregated in classes where they will study the more difficult forms of mathematics.

The more difficult forms of fractions will be eliminated from arithmetic, predicts Dr. Smith. "Aside from halves, thirds, fourths and eighths, he said, "the average person has little use for these antiquated forms."

Audience Demands Repeat Performance by Marionettes

ALL RECORDS for road shows are being broken by the Merrie Marionettes, who are touring the city's playgrounds. At a recent presentation of "Something for a Song" at Montrose Park, the applause was so hearty and the demand for more so loud that the play had to be repeated at once. Members of the audience—all of whom stayed for both performances—furnished their own music during the intermission. They softly hummed the theme song.

Probably less seasoned troupers than the Merrie Marionettes might have been disconcerted by that audience. For neither the individuals nor their behavior was entirely conventional.

Seating Is Difficult.

Seating arrangements caused some little difficulty. Every once in a while some one would murmur, "Now why doesn't that girl in the blue sun suit sit down? I can't see through her." Oh another would call out: "Miss Jones, do I have to sit down when I can see better standing up?" But for the most part things went smoothly.

The play, adapted from a Normandy folk tale, tells of a hunchback who can't pay his rent because no one will give him a job. His wife, sad-faced creature, whose very flaxen braids flop mournfully, alternately sweeps and pats a huge dog, who endures their troubles with them. The hunchback leaves his wife and goes out into the world to seek his fortune. Immediately the landlord, a most villainous creature, appears and demands the rent. When the curtain descended on this scene the children speculated among themselves as to how the money would be found.

In the second act the hunchback meets two elves who have started a song and can not finish it. The hunchback completes the song, which is merely the days of the week set to music, and, in return, the elves remove his hump and give him a bag of gold.

Landlord Gets the Hump.

When he returns with his hump gone and the money to pay the rent, the sad-faced wife, the former hunchback and the dog all dance with glee. The elves present the landlord with the hump.

"What did you like best?" one spectator asked another as the applause died down and the audience waited for the play to begin again.

"I think I liked seeing the dog dance. What did you like?" asked the other.

"Back stage" there was some confusion. The band had failed to arrive, and the drums beating for the marionettes to dance failed to appear.

"Did you like the drum sound?" asked one youngster. "I made it by beating on a bench." And he demonstrated the way it was done.

The marionettes are directed by Mrs. T. Frank Smith, who conducts the tours to the playgrounds. Children from the Georgetown Playground work the strings.

"Oh, we don't mind giving the show over again," they said, as the second performance began. "We need to rehearse it."

Wisely Selected Diet Great Aid In Promoting Sleep on Hot Night

HAMILTON, N. Y., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—A wisely selected diet should help persons who lose sleep or sleep restlessly in hot weather, says Dr. Donald A. Laird, director of the Colgate University psychological laboratory and probably the country's foremost authority on sleep.

Dr. Laird's studies have led him to believe there is a direct relationship between heat, sleep and diet. He advises those who have difficulty in sleeping in hot weather to adhere to foods that do not produce excess heat and that make the least demand on the digestive system. He cites as examples the dairy foods, fresh fruits and vegetables, and the ready-to-eat cereals.

A sleep investigation recently completed by Dr. Laird at Colgate showed that, leaving aside the markedly hard to digest foods, the foods eaten before retiring have a strong influence upon sleep. The sleep of children was improved 14 per cent by substituting for their regular supper a supper of light foods in which a bowl of prepared cereal and milk was the principal dish.

"The heating, less easily digested foods, and high external temperatures both tend to cause lack of sleep or restlessness during the night," Dr. Laird says. "By a wisely selected diet at least one of these causes should be minimized."

Dr. Laird points out that since poor sleep is probably at the bottom of the lack of energy that afflicts many people during hot weather, anything that contributes to better sleep also contributes directly to the preservation of health and efficiency.

PILLAR TO POST

Distance Means Nothing When Cupid Is at Work.

THE COMMANDANT of the Marine Corps, Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, knows from many experiences in the past that it is worse than useless to try and circumvent cupid by transferring a Marine-in-love to a post far fram the object of his affections. He tried to explain to an infuriated father that putting such an obstacle in the path of young love only made it more determined to accomplished its end.

* * * *

"He told me that he would marry my daughter whether or not I gave my consent," spluttered the father, "and how can he support her on a noncommissioned officer's pay?"

The question raised by the father was a serious one, the commandant agreed, but when the father suggested that the Marine be detailed to Norfolk, the commandant raised an eyebrow.

* * * *

"Do you realize that Norfolk is only an overnight trip from Washington?" he asked.

"Well, then, send him to Paris Island. It won't be so easy for him to get back to Washington from there."

THE COMMANDANT did as the father requested, although the Marine-in-love was a bright young man whom he would have preferred to keep at Quantico where he could keep an eye on his development.

* * * *

He arrived at Parris Island before the papers explaining the reason for his transfer arrived, and cannily he told the post commander that he had ten days' leave coming to him and he would like to visit some relatives in nearby Georgia. The post commander knew of no reason for not granting his request, and in 24 hours the marine was back in Washington.

* * * *

All this happened a couple of years ago and recently Commandant Fuller met the erstwhile infuriated father.

"General, you should see my grandson. They say he looks like me" he chortled.

MR. ERNEST S. JOHNSTON, who is called "Ernie" despite being a paterfamilias with eight daughters, had no place to lay his weary head that had buzzed with advertising schemes all day. He came home to find Mary, the oldest, entertaining her boy friends in the living room; Betty, the second oldest, similarly occupied in the upstairs sitting room, and Ruth milling around the house with her bunch.

* * * *

Hoping to find a little peace and quiet on the back porch, he repaired there only to find it preempted by Dorothy and her crowd of adolescents. There was no place left for Ernie but the garage.

* * * *

Fathers who find themselves relegated to the back stoop these hot summer evenings should not feel abused when they have only one or two daughters' swains occupying all the easy chairs. Mr. Johnston is a patient man and he can take it when the ice box is raided, but when his liqour supply disappears he is apt to get right mad.

THERE is a "Little Red House" and a "Little Green House" in Georgetown, both occupied by bachelor "alphabeticals," or junior brain trusters, as they are sometimes called. The house of carmine hue is not so little, nor are the occupants as red as the members of the House of Representatives accused them of being when the stock market control bill was under fire.

CAN BIRTHDAYS PAST 40 be milestones of progress? They were in the case of Ruth Bryan Owen, above. Becoming a university instructor at 41, she was elected to Congress at 44, and appointed Minister to Denmark at 49.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: Is there anything a wife can do to cure her husband of the gambling habit? I've been married going on three years, and I never know from one pay day to the next what I can count on from his salary.

* * * *

I've tried argument, pleading, tears and threats to leave him. I've flung his winnings in his face and refused to accept them. Frequently he has sworn to me he'd never gamble another cent. But just this week he brought home only $17 out of his half-month's pay. The rest he gambled and lost. What should I do? MRS. JOHN V.

Be Businesslike.

DEAR MRS. JOHN V.: The best method of helping your husband overcome his gambling mania is to work out a financial arrangement whereby he transfers his pay check to you, and you in turn give back to him a regular allowance, as generous as you can possibly make it, to do with as he pleases.

This might be $10 to $25 each half month, depending on his income and your recurrent obligations. By talking to him now, in a friendly, cooperative, sympathetic manner, while he is still smarting from his recent loss, you may find it possible to effect such agreement.

* * * *

Such a financial arrangement serves two purposes. It enables a wife to meet the inexorable demands of butcher, baker and candlestick maker, and it gives her husband opportunity to learn how it feels to be at the end of one's financial rope.

Superfluous Hairs Need Depilatories

Should Never Be Shaved; Electrolysis Is Sole Permanent Cure.

By Frances Mangum.

SUPERFLUOUS hair is one of the better known nuisances. Without any care it continues to thrive on otherwise beautiful arms and legs. It even waxes more abundant as it is fought down, and becomes thicker, longer, and darker at the least provocation.

The why and wherefore of superfluous hair has long been regarded as a perplexing problem. At birth a baby is covered with a fine down, a relic some say of prehistoric times when our ancestors took a hairy coat for granted. These downy hairs each spring from a separate hair follicle which disappears a few days after the child is born, and thereafter lies latent.

Certain conditions might stimulate growth in these follicles and cause hair to come out in unexpected places. For instance, after an operation, hair may grow where it never did before. Likewise disturbances in the endocrine glands also tend to stimulate unusual hairiness.

Two Kinds of Follicles.

A widely known plastic surgeon advances the theory that there are two kinds of follicles, one known as "true," because it produces normal hair growths; the other false, because it produces the fine short hairs called down. Hereditary tendencies, or health disturbnaces cause these down follicles to grow real hair.

There is no way of permanently destroying this superfluous hair except by electrolysis. There are, however, many home treatments for alleviating the growth.

Wax depilatories take away the hair by pulling it out. For this reason the hair stays away for three or four weeks at a time. It does not return any thicker or coarser than it was before. One proceeds in the following manner: Melt the depilatory wax in a pan over an open flame and allow to cool sufficiently not to burn the skin. With wooden paddle smooth on a strip over the surface marred by the hair growth. After the wax has been on a few seconds, peel it off, apply a soothing lotion to the skin, and smear on another strip.

Other Depilatories.

There are several good liquid depilatories which have only to be rubbed on and washed off. Similar to these but in different form are the cream deodorants which are to be rubbed over the hairy surfaces, allowed to dry and then wiped off.

Both liquid and creams may be depended on to take away the hair for a short time only. After three or four days or a week, depending on the individual, it will grow in again.

Make it a strict rule never to shave the superfluous hairs. They come back thick and coarse as a beard and are ten times harder to remove next time. Spend a little more time, a few cents extra and remove them with depilatories.

Knowledge of Human Nature Was Great Help in Public Life

Ruth Bryan Owen, Nellie Tayloe Ross, Miriam A. Ferguson and Hattie Caraway Among Those in High Positions.

"Let the men run the country. I've enough to do at home."

This was the popular attitude of women in the 80's and 90's who would have considered donning a one-piece bathing suit more quickly than seeking a political job.

Today their daughters are middle-aged women, relieved of the responsibility of home and children, perhaps, for the first time in their lives. Is there something in life for them besides signing petitions, reading best sellers and dashing here and there in search of entertainment?

This is the fifth in a series of articles about women who have begun careers after 40.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

"THE LARGE NUMBER of middle-aged women successful in politics is proof enough governmental ability can not be measured by a chronological yardstick," Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, director of the women's division of the Republican National committee, said yesterday.

"Women past 40 are everywhere launching political careers and winning acclaim. Perhaps the rich background of experience and the knowledge of human nature that comes with the years makes them even more proficient than younger women in politics."

Mrs. James H. Wolfe, acting director of the women's division of the Democratic National committee, was also enthusiastic about the middle-aged woman's chance for success.

"Politics after 40? Why not?" she asked. "In my opinion the average woman at that age has a head start in practical politics.

Has Greater Knowledge.

"She has reared a family, a miniature government in itself. She has a sympathetic understanding of welfare problems as they affect the home. Furthermore, she must have some knowledge of economics.

"There are many reasons, in fact, to support the belief a woman after 40 can step into politics with more assurance than a man. She has either rubbed shoulder with practical problems by running a house or by holding a paid job."

Judging from the outstanding examples of middle-aged women in public office, it woud seem both Mrs. Yost and Mrs. Wolfe have adequate support for their theories.

Had Varied Career.

Having served as a volunteer nurse with the British army in the Egypt-Palestine campaign of the World War, she became a lyceum and chautauqua lecturer in this country. At 40 she decided on another type of career.

Accordingly she became an instructor in the University of Miami, and went from there to Congress. At 49 she was appointed Minister to Denmark.

"Life began at 40" could hardly be applied to her because of her varied career before that age. But what she has done since merits her being placed with the highest group of those women regarding each birthday as a milestone of progress.

Nellie Taylor Ross is another who belongs in this category. Entering politics at 45, she became a candidate for the Governorship of Wyoming. This led to her subsequent appointment as director of the United States Mint.

Miriam A. Ferguson was well past 40 when she entered the political arena and became Governor of Texas.

Senator Hattie Caraway is another to add to the list of those who entered politics after 40. But the list is too long and too well-known to adimt further discussion.

Miss Sellers an Example.

Are there, however, cases in which women received high political appointments as the result of outstanding achievement in a profession launched after 40? There are. The career of Miss Kathryn Sellers is probably the most outstanding local example.

A Government employe for a number of years, she was past 40 when she began to practice law. This led to her appointment as judge of the Juvenile Court of Washington, D. C., the first woman to be appointed to a Federal bench. In 1931 her term expired but she remained in office until she was replaced.

There are, also in contrast to women who have won political plums, other women closely allied to political work in youth only to turn to an entirely different field of endeavor at middle age.

Mrs. Laura D. Terry, now a resident of Washington, became a vocational analyst after approximately 15 years spent in political work on Capitol Hill.

Born in Ohio, she had been art supervisor in the public schools of Hamilton, Ohio, before she came to Washington as secretary to Representative Edward E. Brown, of Wisconsin. After her career on Capitol Hill, she turned to a unique line of work.

Solves Human Problems.

In her own words: "After years of experience in the fields of teaching and politics, I decided at the age of 40 to embark on a new venture based on years of study along lines having to do with human problems."

The career was that of vocational analyst—not the usual type of analyst who gives a number of intelligence tests and suggests suitable lines of work, but a guide who seeks to find out more about the individual, his background and his potentialities.

"Every individual should have proper training with which to earn a livelihood," Mrs. Terry continued. "With our numerous vocational schools and ever-growing demand for such schools, coupled with individual analysis by competent vocational analysts, much waste of human effort might be forestalled.

"This can be achieved only through a broader understanding of human nature, born of dealing with the individual as an individual—not through group classification."

The only vocational analyst of her type in the world, Mrs. Terry has achieved success through helping to place "round pegs in round holes."

Read in tomorrow's Post about women who launched careers after passing the half-century mark.

Strictly Speaking

Answer These.

1. If one has an idea, is it called eye-DEE-a or EYE-dee-a?
2. Is precedent accented on the first or the second syllable?
3. Should greasy be called GREEZ-y or GREES-y?
4. Is decorum properly pronounced de-CO-rum or DEC-o-rum?
5. Define and pronounce bacilli.

Check Here.

1. Eye-DEE-a. The pronunciation EYE-dee-a is a common provincialism throughout the Southern States.
2. The noun precedent is pronounced PRES-e-dent. "This man has set many worthy precedents." The adjective precedent, though rarely used, is pronounced pre-SEE-dent. For example a character in one of Shakespeare's plays says, "A slave, that is not the twentieth part of the tithe of your precedent lord." Precedence, a noun, is always pre-SEE-dens, never PRESS-e-dens.
3. Both GREEZ-y and GREES-y are correct.
4. It is de-CO-rum.
5. Bacilli (ba-SIL-eye) is the plural of bacillus, which is any of a genus of microscopic vegetable organisms.

Summer Bags Center Appeal In Originality

Some Are of Pouch Style, Others Envelop; Built on Metal Frame.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

NEW BAGS are coming in, summer bags are going down and bags collectively are more interesting than they've been all summer.

Although this is a betwixt and between season, when summer things are hanging over and fall things are slowly seeping in, bags are staging a little originality all on their own. One has only to see the print bags featured in an F street shop to believe it. These are midsummer affairs, designed in at least a half dozen shapes. Some of them pouch style, others envelope, and the remainder combinations of both. Sheer silk flowered print is sewn to a sturdy fabric underlining, which in turn is attached to a metal frame. One of the loveliest of these has a soft gray background with deeper gray and blue flowers scattered over it. Most of them have varicolored flowers growing out of a white background.

Fabric bags, some of them tapestry, and others looking like tapestry, are reduced from $3 to $2. One thing about these tapestry fabric bags, they're not easily soiled. For sports wear, nothing could be jauntier than the coarse string bags built around large, nontarnishable chromium frames. They come in brown and white and natural color. They'll hold practically a whole wardrobe.

• • • •

Something for Fall.

It only takes a peep at the reefer coats in a local store to want one. Instead of being just honest-to-goodness tweed, the fabric is a combination of hundreds of twisted threads so firmly bound together that the outside of the coat is unusually firm.

When fall winds begin to blow it will be mighty fine to be insured against cold and rain, too. For let it pour all it pleases, these coats are moisture proof — and wrinkle proof! They're very inexpensive for such coats!

• • • •

Rum and Cigarettes.

Keep your cigarettes mellow, fresh, and flavored in a rumidor. These are metal containers designed to hold no end of cigarettes and guaranteed not only to keep them as fresh as the day they were bought but to improve them with each succeeding day.

A funny little gadget which fits into the top of the rumidor gives out a fine rich rum scent, and rum flavor. Imagine delighting your guests after dinner first with coffee and rum, and then with rum-flavored cigarettes! A fine suggestion for the hosts and hostesses.

• • • •

Bargain in Shampoo.

A shampoo made of olive and palm oils sells ordinarily for 50 cents. But now is the time to buy it for 25 cents!

It cleanses the hair beautifully and gives it a grand gloss. Women with dry hair will find it an extremely beneficial shampoo.

• • • •

Tea or Cocktail Table.

One rack on wheels, two wooden trays, and a wooden frame cut-out for glasses and bottles, equals one tea table. (Or cocktail table, depending on the owner's preference.)

These are real summer specialties at an ideal summer price. Almost any hostess would wax enthusiastic over the walnut table. It looks so light and at the same time so serviceable. Those with color inclinations might prefer a striking model in bright burnt orange and black. There is one in apple green and white. Imagine wheeling it out on the veranda in the late afternoon and inviting your guests to a tall mint julep!

• • • •

Novel Pin Pets.

The pin pets are worth a trip to town to see. They are quaint little animal figures cut out of shiny metal. One of them to fasten the band of a sport hat would be a chic touch. They may also be used to fasten ties at the neck, or to hold scarfs in place. Try one of them on your belt instead of a buckle. They are only half a dollar.

New Sun Oil Appears.

A company which puts out one of the most popular medicated creams on the market is coming to the fore now with an inexpensive sun oil, which allows for a slight tan, but says "nay" to sunburn. It is made of oils said to be beneficial to the skin.

In conjunction with the sun oil is a sunburn cream for use in case you forget the oil. It's soothing and cooling and is a fine preparation to prevent blistering.

The oil comes in two sizes, which sell for 35 cents and 50 cents. The cream may be bought for 15 cents up to $1.39.

Solid Summer Ease Felt in Seersuckers

More Glorified This Year Than Ever Before; In Addition to Striped Variety, They Come in Check, Plaid and Tweed Designs.

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Northern men should go down below the Mason-Dixon line if they want a good slant on summer suit comfort. And if they go, chances are they'll come back with at least a couple of suits in the material the Southerner wears . . . seersucker.

Seersucker, as any man knows if he's worn it, is remarkably light in weight. The suits are made without padding or lining of any kind—all weight or heat adding things are missing. And the result is extreme coolness.

Seersucker launders just as easily as any cotton fabric does. And it comes back from the laundry fresh and smiling. It certainly saves on cleaning bills.

This year's seersuckers look somewhat different than they have in the past. Much more glorified. The regulation stripe is still mighty popular, but for variety there are neat, fine checks, Glen plaids and some tweedy looking patterns.

Instead of just the two-button single-breasted suit . . . which is by far the most popular . . . seersuckers may now be had also in good-looking double-breasted coats. And that helps make a man feel more dressed up while he stays thoroughly comfortable.

(Copyright, 1934.)

Men's suits of the types described are available in Washington in all the better men's shops and department stores.

CAPITAL KITCHEN

Something Different in Line of Cool Drinks Adds Zest to Life.

By Susan Mills.

THERE is nothing more gracious than a cool drink, served in a tall glass. During that pause before dinner, when husband is tired and thirsty, during those genial evening conversations with congenial friends, cool beverages fill a place all of their own.

Lemonade is always delicious; tomato juice, straight from bottle or can, is an excellent appetizer. But something a little different will bring a sparkle to the eye, as well as relief to the throat.

Currant Mint Punch.

Pour two quarts boiling water over one glass currant jelly and one cup granulated sugar. Cool and add the juice of six lemons and two oranges. Slice two more oranges very thin and add. Finally pour in another quart of water. Ice and serve with sprigs of mint in each glass. Serves 20.

Grape Mint Shake.

Whip 1 glass grape jelly to a liquid, add 1 tablespoon lemon juice, and blend well. Slowly beat fruit mixture into 1 quart whole milk. If desired, a few drops of mint extract or crushed fresh mint may be added before serving. Serve with ice cubes in each glass.

Currant Fizz.

Beat 2 glasses currant jelly with a hand or electric beater until frothy. Add 1 pint boiling water, and continue beating until the jelly is dissolved. Then add 2½ cups orange juice and 2-3 cup lemon juice, and stir well. Chill, and just before serving add two 1-pint bottles ginger ale. More water may be added, if desired. Makes nine cupfuls.

Tomato and Cucumber Cocktail.

Combine 2 cups tomato juice, ½ cup grated cucumber, ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons lemon juice and a little horseradish. Stir well and chill thoroughly. Stir before serving. Pour into small serving glasses and serve as an appetizer.

What Today Means

"Leo."

If August 3 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 2:30 p. m., from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. and from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 a. m., from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. and from 10:30 p. m. until midnight.

The business man on this date may find it will not pay to be ultra-conservative in the negotiation of business deals. You may find that you will defeat your own aims if you try to drive too hard a bargain and exasperate your proponent by haggling.

If a woman and August 3 is your birthday, you probably have lofty aspirations, which should eventually materialize in the manner you desire. If you give in to discouragement, however, your progress may be seriously retarded. Optimism, on the other hand, will brighten your road, and make it a comparativeiy easy one.

The child born on August 3, when it arrives at school age, must be taught that disobedience will never be tolerated under any conditions. If made to clearly understand that its teacher will always have its parents' full cooperation, this child should make a good student and cause little worry.

If a man and August 3 is your natal day, you are willing to endure a great deal to further your ambition.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

The Expectant Mother.

Let us assume that pregnancy has occurred and that the young wife and husband have selected a skilled obstetrician. They should visit his office during the first month of pregnancy, with full knowledge that good prenatal care has saved many lives and has greatly reduced the incidence of complications. How will the physician function?

First, he will make a careful physical examination of the patient to determine the condition of heart, lungs, blood, kidneys, &c. He will take the blood pressure at intervals. He will also give certain directions as to diet, exercise, bathing, and general mode of living.

Second, the physician will make all necessary arrangements with the hospital in case the delivery is to take place there. Most hospitals have rates for maternity cases that come well within the financial range of all earning capacities. It may be advisable for the patient to visit the maternity department and familiarize herself with its location and accommodations.

Third, certain complicatons that are not very frequent, but that do occur now and then, may be anticipated and avoided. One of these is eclampsia, characterized by an increase in the blood pressure, headache, albumin in the urine, puffiness and swelling of the face and lower extremities.

Fourth, infectons that do not occur with great frequency, but which are sometimes present, may be avoided by special care of the nose, throat, teeth, and sinuses. Of these the acute sore throat should be looked upon as of the greatest importance. Treatment should be instituted promptly, so that inflammation shall not spread to adjacent parts.

ESCAPE from the SOVIETS

By TATIANA TCHERNAVIN

Footsore and ill after struggling to find their way across Arctic wastes to Finland on their flight from Soviet terrorism, Tatiana Tchernavin, her husband and son finally reached a hut. The father decided to go on alone, returning when he found habitation and help.

"GO," I SAID, "I am certain you will save us."

Deeply touched, he looked at me gratefully and kissed both my hands blackened by the weather, the smoke and the mushroom juice. My gloves had been torn and lost long before. The boy hugged and kissed his father, who now talked cheerfully and made plans.

"I'll go in the first house I come across . . ."

"You'll frighten them; they'll take you for a bandit," the boy joked him.

My husband looked at me questioningly.

"Take my wedding ring; they may give you something in exchange."

"Good. Besides, it will be proof that I am not a tramp. And you," said he, turning to the boy, "give me your notebook and photograph."

It was the boy's last photograph, taken just before we set out. A round, healthy little face; only a shadow of it was left now—sweet, touching and dreadfully pitiable.

"Now let us put down in your diary on which day I go. What is the date today?"

We could not reckon it up at once. The last few days of fatigue and anxiety seemed merged into one.

My husband went away. We stood looking after him till he disappeared among the trees. The place was strange without him—still and empty. The forest seemed bigger and we felt smaller and more helpless.

For six days we waited anxiously, when suddenly we saw two men in military uniform coming out of the forest at a quick pace. But where was he? There! He was staggering, his face looked dreadful, black and swollen and there was some dry blood near the nose.

"Darling, darling!" We held his hands again, the boy was kissing and stroking him.

He sank helplessly on the logs without looking at us.

"Dearest, what has happened?"

"I had a fall and hurt myself. Give me some water."

"Here, daddy, have a drink. Mother will make tea directly; we saved up one teaspoonful and a lump of sugar."

"They have a little with them," he said, speaking with difficulty, frontier guards, who were looking at us somewhat disconcerted. "They wouldn't let me buy any food—they said they'd take plenty, but they have eaten most of it themselves."

"What does it matter! The chief thing is that we are saved. All will be well."

Finns Cleared Way.

"It took me two days to get there, though I had nothing to eat and my boots had fallen to pieces. They thought they would walk quicker than I did, but I could scarcely drag them here! They took three days on the way."

Naturally, they could not walk like a man who is trying to save all that he holds dear in life.

There was a rattle in his throat, he coughed and fresh blood showed on his handkerchief that was already stained with red.

"I hurt myself when I fell," he said guiltily.

"Was the journey difficult?"

"Very. A lot of stones."

The boy hugged and kissed his father and was almost in tears. He could not understand what the matter was—why was daddy so strange, as though he weren't glad.

I was sorry my husband could not have a day's rest in the hut before setting out again, but there was nothing for it.

Now the Finns walked in front, carefully preparing the way—chopping off branches and placing tree-trunks across the streams. The boy walked behind them, and my husband and I came last. I was afraid that he would fall, he was so weak.

Way Was Easier.

It was incomparably easier to walk when we had two strong men with a good ax to help us. When we put up for the night they chopped plenty of enormous logs and had no difficulty in keeping up the fire.

It was anything but a quiet journey; every quarter of an hour we came upon rapids and recovered our peace of mind only after emerging from them. First we heard a dull roar and saw big stones showing from the water; the boat was sucked in by the stream, and the water boiled up suddenly, foaming and seething; the boat, thin as a shell, was tossed about, carried against the stones and past them.

Reached a House.

One of the Finns rowed with all his might without looking right or left, the other leaned out as far as he could to see better, shouted something in a wild voice and guided the boat with his oar. I can not think how it was that we safely passed each time these awful rapids. All that was required of us was to sit perfectly still at the bottom of the boat until we were in calm waters once more.

We stopped at last before a clean looking house with a high porch. The shutters were closed but sounds of a gramophone playing a gay waltz came from within. Our guides knocked at the door; it flew open. Cries of welcome, together with the loud waltz, greeted us, while two huge dogs barked on the steps.

It was a big room with a huge stove, a stand for rifles and two tiers of iron bunks, neatly covered with clean counterpanes, checked white and blue. There was a large deal table and benches.

Unused to Civilization.

One feels awkward in a room after such a journey as ours. Everything was clean, neat and tidy, and we were wet and dirty and looked like scarecrows. In all this noise and commotion my son and I rightly guessed who the most important person in the place was.

Small and thick-set, he kept running in and out of the kitchen. His movements were full of such meaning that the boy could not take his eyes off him.

Food at Last.

Presently this delightful cook, whom we shall never forget, invited us to the kitchen to have coffee. A fire was burning brightly in the oven, saucepans were boiling on the top, and by the window a small table was spread with a white tablecloth, china cups with a design of flowers were set for each one of us, with a sugar basin and a cream jug in the middle. The rolls in the bread basket were so white that the boy felt a little doubtful about them.

Soon the cook set the big table for supper, brought black bread, butter, milk and a huge tureen of macaroni.

When the meal was over the cook went to wash up; somebody brought for my son and me a large haybag, a pillow and a woolen blanket. My husband was given a vacant bunk on the top tier. The others got into their bunks and put out the light.

"Mother, how nice, how warm, how soft!" said the boy as he dropped off to sleep.

Every Washingtonian will want to read "Potomac Park," a novel with a local setting and characters drawn from the ranks of Government workers. The author is Carolyn Cox, of the War Department, and illustrations are posed by Federal employes. The first installment will appear in the magazine section of Sunday's Post.

Sheep Herders Fight to Keep Flock in Parks

War on Sportsmen's Move to Ban Grazing in National Forests.

Butte, Mont. (U.P.).—Western sheep men are intrenching for another pitched battle against the welfare of their industry. The foe is the sportsman.

An industry which has withstood bloody strife with cattle men and obtained land and water holes for its flocks is determined that a campaign launched by Eastern sportsmen will not ban the grazing of sheep in National forests.

The sheep shearers union operates in the 13 Western States and Evans is its nominal head.

Evans explained the sports magazines' charge: "It is possible that sheep crop grass too closely, but few wild animals can be found in sheep land, for the simple reason that there is not sufficient food—unless they raid the flocks."

With a clip of 32,000,000 pounds of wool annually, one of the most important industries of the West would be hard hit if sportsmen succeeded in obtaining legislation to bar sheep from public grazing land.

By Robert Shosteck.

Time will be turned back about 15,000,000 years Sunday when the Wanderbirds Hiking Club trek by bus and trail to the largest fossil beds in the Eastern part of the United States at Plum Point, Md. These Miocene beds, which contain such tidbits as whale skeletons, the fossil remains of giant tortoises, sharks, porpoises, armadillos, nautilus and other shellfish, are about two miles from Plum Point Beach, where the hikers will have an opportunity to enjoy salt water swimming amid the whitecaps of Chesapeake Bay.

Club members and readers of The Washington Post interested in going on this swimming and fossil-study trip will meet in front of The Post Building at 10 a. m. Sunday, and go by special buses to Plum Point. Hikers will have until 10 p. m. Saturday to phone in reservations for the trip at National 4200. The round trip fare will be either 85 or 90 cents. There will be no extra seats for those who fail to phone in their reservations.

Marshmallows Grow There.

At Plum Point Beach, the party will don swim suits, using, if desired, the facilities of the beach, including lockers, for 25 cents. A 2-mile hike southward along the beach will bring the group to the famous fossil cliffs, which are composed of alternate layers of blue clay and fossils. Many interesting plants and birds are found along the 2-mile walk. Masses of sea lettuce grow in the shallow waters near the shore. In some marshy meadows nearby are several varieties of marshmallow, the medicinal calamus root and the bayberry bush, the berries of which were boiled for their wax by the Pilgrim fathers.

The majestic great blue heron will be seen fishing along the beach, and the American egret, nearly exterminated several dacades ago by feather hunters, is likewise found in this locality. Several species of gulls, terns and other sea birds may be seen perched upon stakes or gliding over the water. The dainty little sandpiper is quite common along the beach and may even submit to a photograph.

The fossil cliffs rise to a height of nearly 200 feet, exposing a multitude of layers of fossils easily visible at a distance. But a few years ago the writer casually picked up a lower jawbone of a whale, a mere 9 feet long! This specimen now rests in the National Museum. The hard, glistening shark's teeth, abundant along the beach, are eagerly sought by children and natives of the region, who make necklaces of them.

Earth Refinery at Point.

An interesting diatomaceous earth refinery is located near Plum Point wharf. This earth occurs in layers 30 to 40 feet in thickness, and is composed of the shells of microscopic diatoms, one of the most beautifully sculptured one-celled plants of the microscopic world. These shells are said to be over 99 per cent pure silica, and are of considerable commercial importance, being used particularly as an absorbent for nitroglycerine. This earth also is used as an ingredient in the manufacture of fire-resistant silica brick.

The blue-tailed skink, one of our most beautiful lizards, is quite common in the pine woods near Plum Point wharf, and is easily captured at dusk. Its relative, the pine lizard, also is found nearby.

Hikers who are interested in collecting samples of fossils are urged to bring along suitable receptacles, since some of the remains are rather fragile.

The group will lunch either near the fossil cliffs or at the wharf, where a store is located. Swimming will be in order from 3 to 6 p. m., the buses leaving for Washington at 6:30 p. m. Rowboats will be available at a reasonable rental.

Women are urged to wear flat-heeled shoes, since it is difficult to walk along the sandy beach in high or even low heels.

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

Billie Has Something to Grin About

When Mr. Man hurried to the house to tell Mrs. Man that somebody had stolen the turnovers, he expected her to get terribly mad or to cry or to cut up in some way or other; but did she? Not at all. The truth is, she was looking at herself in the mirror when she heard him calling her, and the mirror looked so good to her that nothing could drown her happiness. When he told her that somebody had robbed the spring house, she just said:

"Well, there's no time to look for the thief, and you couldn't find him anyway; and besides, there's plenty of dinner without those turnovers. But if you think you have just got to have some for your dinner, there are four or five in the safe, and I'll just put them and all the other things in this box, and we'll be going. We are late now, so we had better go through the woods road."

And while Mr. Man was putting the things in the wagon she went back in the house and got one more look at herself in the glass.

They thought they were going to save a lot of time by going over the "short-cut" road, but they didn't. Mr. Man hadn't been over it since Hee-Haw left him, and lots of bushes had grown up in it, so that Hee-Haw had a terrible time pulling the wagon through.

Nobody lived on that road—except Billie Possum. Yes, Billie did live up in a big high tree that was right close to the road, and when he heard the wagon coming he stuck his head out of his door to see who it was. And he just had to snicker, for he knew that Mr. Man didn't have something in the wagon that he had expected to have. And he was just itching to yell "Hello, Hee-Haw!" but he knew he couldn't do it.

Jay Bird had already been over and told him that there would be a bit of "doings" at Blackie's house that day, and they were all to see if Mrs. Man was as good a cook as Mr. Man said she was.

But Mr. Man didn't know that Billie was in miles of them, so he and his wife just sat in the wagon and laughed every time Hee-Haw ran over a stump or bush that nearly turned the wagon over. They had their donkey back, had new clothes that they were going to let their neighbors see, and had lots of good dinner in the wagon, so it would take more than a few jolts to make them unhappy.

When they got to the church, it looked like everybody in the country was there, and a lot of folks saw Mr. Man and his wife when they drove up, and came over to tell them howdy.

How could folks help seeing them? Always before they had sat down on straw in the bottom of the wagon, while now they were sitting in chairs. Mrs. Man with all her new things, with Mr. Man all dressed up, too, made a picture that everybody just had to see. And the very last trimmings that Mr. Man had put on the whole outfit was one of those red tassels like you have seen hanging on the bridles of mules that are driven by some color-loving man. Yes, Mr. Man saw it in town the other day, and he bought it and tied it on Hee-Haw's bridle.

People just didn't know what to think of the way Mr. Man and his wife were "coming out of the kinks," but Hee-Haw did. He knew Blackie Bear had done it all, and he was so tickled over it that he threw up his head and turned loose a "hee-haw" that was so loud that people could hardly hear the bell that was just ringing for them to go into the church.

Hawaii Star Muny Golf Surprise

Armstrong, 18, Upsets Campbell by 1 Up in 18-Hole Thriller.

Meets Mitchell Today; Young and Coria Also in Semifinals.

SOUTH PARK, Pittsburgh, Aug. 2 (AP).—A 17-year-old boy who traveled nearly 5,000 miles from Hawaii to compete against the country's best public links golfers today removed the heavy favorite from competition and took a place among the four survivors of a field of 184 to battle it out for a championship.

This youth, smiling Arthur Armstrong, competing in his first important tournament, gambled with risky shots and made them good—one a 65-foot putt—to eliminate Albert ("Scotty") Campbell, the 20-year-old Canadian amateur champion, 1 up, in a spectacular 18-hole quarter-final match.

Meets Mitchell Today.

Today, in one of the two semi-final matches, Armstrong will tackle long-hitting David A. Mitchell of Indianapolis, who eliminated Don Ericson, of Los Angeles, 2 and 1.

The other semifinal will bring together Lorraine Young, of San Antonio, Tex., a highly rated "dark horse" contender, and Joe Coria, of St. Paul, who dethroned Charles Ferrera, of San Francisco, the title holder, in a stirring 2 and 1 third-round match and then went 20 holes to beat the smooth-stroking Gordon Dehney, of Louisville, 1 up, in the quarter-finals.

Young gained the semifinal bracket by overcoming the ace of the Los Angeles forces, Bruce McCormick, 1 up, after winning his morning third-round match from Johnny Ross, also of Los Angeles, 1 up.

Sinks 65-Foot Putt.

The Honolulu boy's real break came on the sixteenth green, where he ran down a 65-foot putt for a birdie 3 to even up the match after being 1 down.

Campbell, a department store worker in Seattle, seemed upset by this uncanny shot and he missed a sizable putt on the seventeenth to go 1 down and couldn't do better than tie Armstrong on the eighteenth.

The real gamble by Armstrong, however—the one that seemed to give him confidence—was at the dog-legged twelfth. One down, he braved disaster to skyrocket his tee shot across the trees. A few minutes later he was stymied on the green, but made the cup with a desperate shot.

Horse Events Planned In Queen Annes County

Centerville, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Plans are being made for two horse events under auspices of the Queen Annes County Horse Breeders Association.

A tournament will be staged on the local track on August 18, and the annual horse show will be held on Labor Day, September 3, also at the track. The usual classes of jumpers, show horses, runners and a point-to-point will be arranged.

Diegel Shoots a 65 For Lead in Canada

Tops Field by 4 Shots; Al Houghton Cards a 76 in Rain.

LAKEVIEW CLUB, Toronto, Ont., Aug. 2 (AP).—Leo Diegel, the high-strung Philadelphian who has won the title four times since 1924, filed another lien against the Canadian Open golf championship today. He covered the short par-70 layout in 65 strokes for a four-stroke lead in the first round of the twenty-seventh annual dominion free-for-all.

Diegel, long a favorite with Canadian galleries, shot the outgoing nine in 34, one under par, and then blazed the back nine in 31, becoming the first player to break Lakeview's par in competition.

His record-smashing round included seven birdies—two on the first nine and five along the inward route. He slipped over regulation figures twice, both times on the finishing holes of each nine. He would have had a 64 if his putt on the home green had not hung stubbornly on the lip of the cup.

Houghton Shoots 76.

Al Houghton, lone entry from Washington, D. C., who reached the quarterfinals of the recent National P. G. A. championship, carded a 38-38—76, six shots over par. Houghton was caught in a terrific rain and windstorm.

Contenders from Across the border dominated the tournament, as has been the custom since 1919. Tommy Armour, the black Scot of Chicago, was in second place. Armour, who won the Canadian title in 1927 and 1930, played steadily for a one under par 69, going out in 34 and coming home in 35.

A brigade clustered just above 70. Denny Shute, former British open champion from Philadelphia, held third place with 35-36—71, and seven men tied for fourth with 72's. They were Wild Bill Mehlhorn, of Louisville; Jimmy Hines and Herman Barron, both of New York; and the first four Canadian professionals to pop their heads through—Dave Ferguson and Bob Cunningham, of Toronto, Jules Hust, of Quebec and Wally Smithers, of Ottawa.

Are Grouped at 73.

The group at 73 included the best amateur for the day, Al Grimsditch, of Toronto, and the American pros, Fay Coleman, of Culver ity, Calif.; Lighthorse Harry Cooper, of Chicago; Willie Macfarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., and Joe Belfore, of Detroit. C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville, only Canadian amateur ever to win the United States title, had to be content with a 36—39—75.

Gene Sarazen, of New York, former British and American Open champion, had a sloppy 80, ten over par. Between him and the leaders were Ky Laffoon, young Denver star, with a 79; Walter Hagen, of Detroit; Stan Xertes, of San Francisco; Al Watrous, of Detroit, and Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia, all with 77's.

Rock Run Breaks Saratoga Record

Is Victorious by Length in Jumping Race.

Saratoga Race Track, Aug. 2 (AP). The spotlight was given over to jumpers here today with the thirty-sixth running of the Beverwyck Steeplechase Handicap of about two miles heading the card. Mrs. John Hay Whitney's 4- year-old, Rocky Run, was ridden out to score by a length over Rigan McKinney's Amagansett, but the latter made the winner run the distance in 4:08 3-5 for a new track record. The former mark of 4:11 1-5 was held jointly by Spar, another from Mrs. Whitney's Barn, and Blue Banner.

Thirty lengths behind the pair came the Sanford Stud Farms' Best Play to earn the show from J. W. Y. Martin's Luckite by eight lengths. The latter two performers were making their first starts since last fall. Best Play was favorite and ran well for a mile and a half. He then faltered as if in need of the race. Luckite trailed throughout.

Rocky Run, which won his last start at Belmont Park in the mud, receded to 7 to 2 in the betting.

Dodger, Phil In Fist Fight

BROOKLYN, Aug. 2 (AP).—A home run by Al Lopez in the ninth, after the Phillies had tied the score, lifted the Dodgers to an 8-to-7 victory today.

After the contest Manager Jimmy Wilson, of the Phillies, and Coach Otto Miller, of the Dodgers, engaged in a fist fight under the grandstand. Members of both teams looked on and Hack Wilson prevented interference as they battled for several minutes. Miller was credited with a knockout victory before special police intervened.

The fight came from an argument which started in the seventh when Joe Stripp was at bat. Wilson and Miller exchanged heated words, and after Stripp fouled out, Wilson hurled the ball past Miller's head into rightfield.

Georgetown Girls Take Tank Honors

Representatives of Georgetown Playground captured the majority of places at the western division girls swimming meet at Georgetown yesterday, in the second of the annual Municipal Playground Department sectional trials.

More than 100 girls competed, and the capacity crowd of spectators saw many thrilling finishes. Quite a fast pace was set in several events, and yesterday's winners are certain to be well in the running for honors at the city meet next Friday at the Monument pool, where the girls of the mid-city district contend for sectional championship this afternoon at 2:30.

Gehrig Slams 33d, Yanks Win, 12-4

Every New Yorker but Ruth Hits in Rout of Boston Sox.

Ruffing Gives 5 Blows in Taking His 12th of Season.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP).—The Yankees spent a joyous afternoon improving their batting averages at the expense of Boston pitching today, but although they slammed out 18 hits and a 12-to-4 victory over the Red Sox they failed to regain the American League lead.

The Detroit Tigers shut out Cleveland, 3-0, and remained on top by a full game.

Every Yankee but Babe Ruth, who failed five times, and Sam Byrd, who didn't go to bat, hit safely at least once. The big swat, however, was Lou Gehrig's thirty-third home run. The blow, which left Lou only one behind Jimmie Foxx in the race for the major league leadership, set the fashion for the seventh inning swatfest which netted the Yanks five runs and put the game on ice.

Johnson Is Routed.

Gehrig's homer opened the seventh when Johnny Welch took the hill after Henry Johnson had been knocked out by a three-run burst in the sixth which put the Yanks ahead. Bill Dickey duplicated the blow and after Ben Chapman doubled, Tony Lazerri made a third circuit swat and blasted the Sox right out of the picture.

Charley (Red) Ruffing did the elbowing for the Yanks, limiting Boston to five hits and two earned runs for his twelfth victory of the season.

Poor Fielding by Reds Helps Pirates Win, 13-3

Cincinnati, Aug 2 (AP).—Loose pitching and poor fielding support cooperated today to let the Pittsburgh Pirates trounce the Cincinnati Reds, 13 to 3.

Bunched singles, coupled with Red errors at critical moments, gave the Pirates three innings worth four runs each. Meanwhile, "Red" Lucas for the most part set his former teammates down handily, holding them hitless for one four-inning stretch.

Giants Limited To 2 Hits by Ed Brandt

Boston Southpaw Allows Only 3 to Reach First in 8-0 Triumph.

BOSTON, Aug. 2 (AP).—Ed (Dutch) Brandt, veteran Boston southpaw, stopped the Giants' sluggers in their tracks today, while the Braves blasted out an 8-to-0 victory to gain an even break in the four-game series.

Brandt gave only two hits and allowed only three men to reach first as he joined Lon Warneke and Dizzy Dean on the select list of pitchers who have whitewashed the Giants this season.

Phil Weintraub singled in the fifth, Gus Mancuso doubled in the eighth and Hughey Critz drew a pass in the ninth. The hits both came with two out and a double play followed the walk.

The Braves smacked Leroy Parmelee for three runs in the third and drove him out in the sixth when they bunched six hits with a pass and an error by Gus Mancuso for five runs.

Manager of Cleveland, Stricken Suddenly, Is Seriously Ill.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 2 (AP). — A sudden attack of pleurisy sent Manager Walter Johnson of the Indians to a hospital today and placed the command of the third place team in the hands of Third Baseman Willie Kamm indefinitely.

Johnson was taken to a hospital early today after suffering severe pains during the night. After a long vigil at his bedside, Drs. M. H. and Ed Castle, Indian physicians, called in Dr. M. A. Blankenhorn, a specialist for a diagnosis.

Johnson will remain in the hospital at least two weeks, and if complications appear—pneumonia is feared—he will be longer away from the club.

Confer on Kamm.

Kamm's appointment as temporary manager was made after a consultation among Johnson, General Manager Billy Evans of the club, and Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland Baseball Co.

A veteran of nearly a dozen summers, Kamm is popular with his mates. In good stead will come his experience as captain of the White Sox for several seasons and the active managerial experience he got occasionally in Chicago.

This is Johnson's first serious illness since 1929, when he suffered a kidney ailment. A year earlier a severe attack of influenza laid him low. He is 46 years old.

The Big Train noticed shooting pains while pitching to Indian batters before the game with Detroit yesterday afternoon. He bore down, trying to iron out the hitch, but instead it became worse. At dinner last night the pain increased, and after going to bed he slept but fitfully.

Called to Johnson's hotel room, Dr. M. H. Castle tried for some time to ease the pain, and in consultation

Willie Kamm At Helm of Indians

Detroit Pounds 10 Hits to Keep League Lead From Yankees.

Cochrane Surprises in Slab Selection, but Is Rewarded.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 2 (AP).—Mickey Cochrane's surprise pitching choice against the Indians turned out to be a pretty piece of strategy today when young Elden Auker shut out the Tribe, allowing only four hits. The score was 3 to 0.

Auker beat the Indian ace, Mel Harder, in a duel, while the Tigers rapped out ten hits.

It was the first day that Willie Kamm, Cleveland third-sacker, had the active management of the team, due to the illness of Walter Johnson, who went to a hospital today suffering from severe pleurisy.

The Tigers lost no ground to the climbing Yankees by today's brilliant victory, but the New Yorkers were winning against the Red Sox, too.

Final Drive Decisive in Sprint

Scotch Soldier Wins at Narragansett; Three Wins for Hughes.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2 (AP).—Chance Line, 3-year-old son of Chance Shot, owned and bred by Joseph E. Widener, of New York, galloped to victory in the feature race at Hawthorne today.

Jockey Charley Landolt was up and Chance Line took command at the head of the stretch in the 6-furlong dash and held his rivals safe by three-quarters of a length. The Corsicana Stable's Wacoche, which set the early pace, was second. The Shandon Farm's Dust Girl saved the short end of the purse. Chance Line paid $11.60 in the mutuels and ran the distance in 1:12.

Hughes Rides Three Winners.

Narragansett Park, R. I., Aug. 2 (AP).—Howard Hughes, apprentice jockey, who was the leading rider at Rockingham Park, swung into a similar place of honor at the new Narragansett track today as he booted home three winners.

Hughes' triple came while riding Mrs. J. Burks' Flying Don in the second race, Mrs. Doris Melanson's Wax in the third, and Unna's Par Value in the fourth.

J. D. Mikel's Polyfon captured the first race. The fifth, the $1,000 feature at a mile and one-sixteenth, went to Scotch Soldier, with Aymond second. The only outsider to collect today was G. L. Hamilton's Stepbrother, a 9-to-1 shot, which won the sixth race.

A crowd of 12,000 watched the second day of racing.

Dear Al: Hawthorne Race Track, Aug. 2.

Can you imagine a real race track in a city the size of Chicago, at the height of the racing season, midweek, too, staging three races for maidens on one card? Well, that is what happened here today. Not through any fault of the racing association, but because of the class of beetles stabled here.

I love Bill and all that and am anxious to please his boss, but I am taking Friday's plane for Narragansett. He can leave Mike here to represent him if I can't serve at Narragansett. All of which reminds me that I squared things for Clocker Mike late last night. It was all more or less of a case of mistaken identity. Mike thought the guy he touched for the ten spot was a come-on from Kokomo. It developed that he was a plain-clothes man on the local Pinkerton staff. Mike has been barred from the clubhouse and paddock, and has promised faithfully to stick to clocking. Yours, JOE.

First race—Just a bunch of maidens. One grab is as good as another. Jawapa, Governor Laffoon and South Gallant may complete the omelet.

Third race—Mixup will have Polly's Folly to beat while Valdosta may show.

Fourth race—Going to try and make Wise Daughter stick it out. Bright Shadow and Minton will furnish plenty of contention.

Fifth race—Blue Armor at the difference in weights may win the handicap. Roman Soldier and Chief Cherokee are consistent.

Eighth race—Shirley may—you never can tell—has surprised before. Will never have a better chance to get out of the maiden class. Bert Lahr and My Aga for place and show.

Record 8s Is Scored By Virginia Van Wie

Bedford Springs, Pa., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Virginia Van Wie, National women's golf champion, established a new women's course record today at the Bedford layout by carding an 82. The smooth-stroking Chicago lassie sliced four strokes off her previous best score for the course, shooting a 39 on the back nine after going out in 39.

Meanwhile, entries continued to pour in for the pro-amateur event Sunday and the professional championship Monday. A field of 100 is expected for the open tournament, virtually all Washington and Baltimore pros having indicated that they will play.

Virginia Shots Practice for Title Meet

Jordan, Gilliam Hit 49 of 50 in Tourney Tune-up.

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—Despite the handicap of high winds and frequent rain squals, 40 contestants in the thirty-fifth annual Virginia State trapshooting championships participated in the first day's practice shooting at the Cavalier Gun Club traps at Virginia Beach.

The only woman competitor was Mrs. C. T. Jackson, of New York. Mrs. Jackson won the Grand American Handicap title at Vandalia, Ohio, in 1933, and hopes to annex more honors in the singles competition at Virginia Beach in the next two days.

Dr. L. G. Richards, of Roanoke, Va., winner of the State title last year and among those favored in the 1934 competition, was a late starter and did not complete his string when a heavy rainfall compelled a cessation of firing early in the afternoon. He will probably get in his practice shots early Friday before the championship competition gets under way.

Of those who did manage to tune up their sights and get the feel of their guns, C. T. Jordan and R. C. Gilliam were high guns, each with a total of 49 hits out of 50. G. R. Thomas trailed them by a single clay bird. A. M. Pullen, of Richmond, considered a principal threat to Dr. Richards' championship hopes, was fourth with 47, while W. G. Dickerson broke 46 to get within the charmed circle of the leading five.

The Richmond team is composed of C. L. Jordan, P. G. Fletcher, Homer Wilson, H. E. Pearsall, A. M. Pullen and N. R. Thomas.

Fredericksburg Opens Net Tourney Aug. 13

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Announcement of a municipal open tennis tournament to begin August 13 was made here today.

More than 60 players are expected to compete. The Manfield Hall Country Club will enter a complete team, with several unattached players also listed.

Wayland Is Hurt At Culpeper Show

Suffers Crushed Shoulder, Skull Injury in Fall.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Culpeper, Va., Aug. 2.—Buddy Wayland, gentleman jockey, was critically injured here this afternoon in the second of a card of races run in connection with the second annual Culpeper Tri-Festival.

Wayland was riding Prince, an entry of Thomas H. Somerville, of Orange, when the horse fell and the jockey was trampled by the animal. Wayland was rushed to University Hospital, Charlottesville, where physicians stated he was suffering from a crushed shoulder and probably skull fracture.

The racing card consisted of four flat and two steeplechase events. The winners of the events were:

Flat race, ½ mile—First, Gangway, S. C. Trimmer; second, Nasty Man, Keith Bicker; third, Lone Eagle, Tanner Curtis.

Flat race, ¾ mile—First, Willy Nilly, M. R. Waugh; second, Happy Moon, B. C. Bennett; third, Royal Al, B. C. Bennett.

Woodstock Noses Out Harrisonburg Nine, 7-6

Woodstock, Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Woodstock upset Harrisonburg here today, 7-6.

Lefty Bradley, new addition to the local pitching staff, emerged the winning pitcher. Woodstock blasted Warren from the mound in the seventh after he was tapped for four runs. Goode, who relieved him, failed to check the heavy bats and was touched for three runs in two innings.

Harrisonburg	000	101	022 — 6
Woodstock	020	000	23x — 7

Harrisonburg, Warren, Goode and Baer; Woodstock, Bradley and R. Baker.

Mrs. Snodgrass Wins Golf at Martinsburg

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Mrs. S. R. Snodgrass won the blasting contest in a play-off with Mrs. L. I. Rice and Mrs. G. B. Geyer, with whom she was tied in the first attempt, in a ladies' day feature at Opequon Golf Club yesterday.

Three balls were partially embedded in a sand trap, and it was necessary to play them from there for the cup.

He's a Plow-Deserter, But How He Can Hurdle!

You'd never think, to look at the way Sir Gilbert (Miss Peggy Porter up) is taking this hurdle at Darien, Conn., that he was once a field workhorse. He's one horse who came to the big city and made good, for he won a National championship in New York. Though he's blind in one eye, it doesn't seem to bother his hurdling form, does it?

Gilbert Hunt Beaten.

Delafield, Wis., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Gilbert Hunt, young Washington, D. C. star, runner-up for the National intercollegiate tennis championship, was eliminated in the quarter-finals of the Western Junior tennis tournament today. Hunt bowed to R. Potts, of Memphis, 6—3, 6—2. Other semifinalists are Don Leavens, Mosinee, Wis.; D. Nelson, Los Angeles, and Ernest Sutter, New Orleans.

Heart Attack Fatal To Join Ernest Hill

Charles Town, W. Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Heart disease was given as the cause of the sudden death of John Ernest Hill, 51, this morning at the home of E. Hugh McKee, near here. He is survived by his widow, two brothers, George and David Hill, and a sister, Miss Nina Hill, all of New York.

Johnson Faces Long Siege In Hospital

with Dr. Ed Castle, decided to send the ailing manager to Lakeside Hospital, where Glenn Myatt, Cleveland catcher, is already suffering from a bad ankle injury.

Johnson was signed to manage the Indians late last season, succeeding Roger Peckinpaugh. He has had a rocky road, contending with several young players, and criticism from sports writers. Two weeks ago all three local papers attacked his handling of Cleveland pitchers.

Hardly had their blasts been loosed before President Bradley announced Johnson had been signed for 1935, and the team went on a winning streak. Yesterday the Detroit Tigers went into first place when they beat the Indians 10 to 7, after the team had split a twin bill the day before.

The Indians played Detroit here again today and meet St. Louis tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday. Then begins a crucial road trip, when acting Manager Kamm will get a chance to show his ability to put the team within shooting distance of the top.

Arlington Fire Team Faces County Police

Out to win their second victory over the Arlington Fire Department, the County Police Team will cross bats on the Arlington field tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Officer Raymond Crack, whose speedball defeated the firemen last year, again will be on the mound. The line-up:

BAG SMASHER	111	3	5	6²	5½	5h	6²	Keester	7.27
DISPATCHER	111	6	1	4½	4½	7	7	King	24.35

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COME ON, $43.68, $15.00, $4.26; PORTMANTEAU, $5.02, $2.74; DURGA, $2.26.

COME ON, away slowly and badly outrun to stretch, made up ground fast thereafter and won driving out. PORTMANTEAU forced the early pace under snug restraint, took command under strong urging and weakened after giving way to winner. DURGA, sent to front on inside, was occasionally shaken up in early stages, readily gave way to PORTMANTEAU and COME ON, but rallied weakly near end. BETTERFLY went well. SIR ANTHONY saved ground, failed to respond to pressure and weakened in stretch. BAG SMASHER had no mishap.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For maiden 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:49½. Off at 3:52 Winner, Max Hirsch's b. f. (2), by Vito—Loveliness. Trained by W. J. Hirsch. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23, 0:46 3-5, 0:59 4-5, 1:06 3-5.

FAIR TIME	117	1	3	5½	5½	8h	10	Creese	192.00

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LOVITO, $4.34, $3.06, $2.38; BRILLIANT QUEEN, $5.60, $3.88; TEAROUT, $4.70.

LOVITO, quick to get going, appeared to come over before getting clear on the turn, saved ground thereafter and weakened, but stalled off BRILLIANT QUEEN. Latter, also away fast, had to be eased for the turn, but recovered quickly and, holding on gamely was wearing down the winner. TEAROUT was under strong urging throughout and closed resolutely. BOSSIE EYE had to close much ground and could not get up. BEHEMOTH, raced wide, had early speed. SICKLE BILL began sluggishly and was not a factor. HUSTLING TIMES showed early speed and was handicapped by a loose bandage the final quarter.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:20. Off at 4:23. Winner, John Marsch's ch. g. (3), by Chance Play—Ruddy Light. Trained by J. McPherson. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:46 4-5, 1:13 3-5.

* Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KASHGAR, $15.14, $6.00, $4.44; JESTER B., $7.30, $5.12; SASSABY, $5.66.

KASHGAR cleverly ridden and away fast, took command gradually and weakened near end, but withstood JESTER B., a strong factor from the start, held on stubbornly SASSABY, given a hustling ride, saved ground throughout and rallied weakly after succumbing to leaders. COLD STEEL raced well. CAROLINE H. could not get up. CLOVIS dropped out of it on the turn and closed well. BARBARA CAROM was outrun. QUASIMODO weakened in the drive. IMPUNITY had early speed TORMY B. was forced back early.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:50 Off at 4:50½. Winner, Mrs. R. B. Allen's b. g. (7), by Prince Pal—Celtic Lass. Trained by R. B. Allen. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47, 1:12 4-5, 1:20 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CELTIC PRINCE, $25.62, $13.14, $9.34; CREOLE BIRD, $6.20, $6.00; BLACK JOE, $8.40.

CELTIC PRINCE, never far back and inclined to swerve, worked his way to front on outside and won under mild pressure. CREOLE BIRD took command with a rush, but failed to withstand the winner. BLACK JOE, forced back soon after the start, closed determinedly in a good effort. AMSCRAY, away very slowly and brought to outside entering stretch, closed with a rush. ALLENS, in close quarters early, went well COLONIST also suffered in the early crowding, but lacked speed when clear. SISTER MARY and THEO ROCHESTER quit badly.

FIFTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-old maidens. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:17. Off at 5:21½. Winner, W Sachsenmaier's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAPPY VENTURE, $5.04, $4.86, $2.78; BAR PLAY, $169.84, $30.66; MONKS SHAWL, $3.80.

HAPPY VENTURE, a strong factor from start, indulged BAR PLAY in the pacemaking for the opening quarter, moved to the front with a rush, continued gamely thereafter and won with something to spare. BAR PLAY, rushed to the lead at once, gave way readily to the winner when challenged, but easily held the others safe. MONKS SHAWL weakened in the stretch. ARTHUR METZ failed to improve his position under pressure. KNAVE lost considerable ground after the opening quarter. SIR RICHARD had no excuse. The others were outrun

Up to Syrian To Make a Decision

Had Demanded That Foe Enter Ring at 128 Pounds or Less.

D. C. Fight Body Not to Affiliate With N. B. A. for Time Being.

By Bill McCormick.

BENNY BASS, Philadelphia's favorite bruise-bestower, yesterday laid his chips on the line, placing the issue of whether he isis to battle Pete Sarron or some other featherweight squarely up to the Birmingham Buzz-saw. Bass' ultimate gesture in a squabble over weights, took the form of a concession to make 129 pounds at 2 p. m. the day of the fight, which is scheduled for August 15 at Griffith Stadium.

Sarron has remained adamant that he will not battle the Philadelphia Fish at more than 128, but it is generally believed he will drop the Shylock attitude when it becomes evident that either he will fight Bass at 129—or some other pub will.

Win for Sarron Big Boost.

An upset over Bass would jump Sarron's stock to a new high on the sock exchange. The Philadelphia puncher is rated sixth among the lightweights in the very latest compilations made by the checker-vested gentry which dedicates its efforts to handicaping and clocking boxfighters. He comes here fresh from a well-deserved decision over Johnny Jadick, who although slipping, has not yet reached the nadir of the fistic career which carried him to the junior welterweight championship.

Sarron is getting no younger every day and probably is at the peak of his glove pushing career. He has announced that he will meet any three good feathers selected by local promoters in an effort to work up to a championship bout with Freddy Miller, N. B. A. title-holder, to whom he dropped close decisions in two nontitle bouts. Bass is the first of the hurdles set in his path, and if Sarron clears him, he will be well on the way towards his title chance. Sarron also has stated that if he worked up to the Miller bout and loses, he will hang up his mittens and retire to some less strenuous occupation.

The Boxing Commission yesterday declined, for the time being, at least, to become affiliated with the National Boxing Association, as had been suggested by President Ed Foster. The commission informed Foster that until it had been functioning longer and were more settled, it thought it best not to affiliate with any other State commission or group of commissions.

The promoters of the Lincoln Athletic Club, which is planning a Kid Chocolate-Andre Sarilla bout here during the convention of the Colored Odd Fellows, which is expected to bring some 12,000 visitors to Washington, left for New York last night to discuss postponing the card until August 17. The show originally was scheduled for August 14, but the promoters could not reach an agreement with Promoter Joe Turner and President Clark Griffith on that date, but they finally reached accord on the 17.

Many Ask Race Of Equipoise, Cavalcade

NEW YORK, July 26 (AP).—If and when Cavalcade, the current 3-year-old sensation from Mrs. Dodge Sloan's Brookmeade stable, and C. V. Whitney's Equipoise meet for the 1934 turf championship there will be plenty of bidders for the race.

The Narragansett Racing Association today proposed a $20,000 weight-for-age race for the pair at its new $1,000,000 Pawtucket, R. I., plant. The Detroit association would like to have the pair meet at the Fair Grounds for a purse of $15,000, while officials of Saratoga are hoping both owners will see fit to send their charges out for the $5,000 Saratoga Cup, the only stake at the up-State course for which both are eligible.

Cavalcade's next start will be in the Travers, a stake for 3-year-olds, at Saratoga on August 18. Equipoise, which has been out of training due to a bad foot, is gradually rounding into form and is expected to be ready to fill his engagements at the Spa, especially in the cup, which will be run over 1¼ miles on the final day of the meeting, September 1.

Boxer Sentenced To 4 Months for Biting Man's Ear

MANCHESTER, England, Aug. 2 (AP).—Jackie Brown, British claimant to the world's flyweight boxing championship, today was sentenced to four months of hard labor after his conviction of biting a piece of a man's ear during a street brawl.

Louis Tarchman, who lost part of his ear in the altercation, denied that he had called the boxer a "cheese champion."

Princeton Star Trails as Lovelock Wins the Mile With a Smile

Bill Bonthron, Princeton's famous miler, who trailed Jack Lovelock, of Oxford, last summer when the Australian set a new world record for the mile, trails him again in the recent Oxford-Cambridge, Princeton-Cornell meet in London. Bonthron puts every ounce of energy into his last sprint as Lovelock evinces complete satisfaction with himself.

Playground Net Play Nears Finals

Contrarias First to Enter Quarter-Finals; Dower One of Choices.

THE annual playground tennis championships advanced to the third round yesterday in both the boys' junior and senior divisions on the Chevy Chase courts. Melvin Dower, 1933 junior champion, representing Takoma Park, defeated Allen, of Georgetown, 6—4, 6—4, to become one of the few favored to win the senior title. Dower passed out of the junior class last year.

Charlie Channing, Central High School netman, won his match from Burns, of Virginia Avenue, 6—3, 6—3, while Belisario Contrarias, tennis captain at Eastern High, became the first of either division to enter the quarter-finals. Contrarias drew a bye for the second round and won his third-round match from Ray, of Mitchell, 6—2, 6—0. Channing is representing Virginia Avenue Playground.

Good Card Today.

Today's feature matches bring Lacosti, of Orr, against Channing; Allie Ritzenberg, of Cook, against Needlie, of Gallinger; Dickie Lynham, of Western High School, and Eaton Playground, against Blue, of Takoma Park, in the junior play. Albert Ritzenberg, of Cook, and Central High, seeded No. 1, faces Kay, of Raymond; Sam Root, Central tennis captain, meets Panago, of Happy Hollow, and Eddie Pinkham, Tech High's No. 1 star, faces Desch, of Eaton, in the senior division's outstanding tussles.

Junior—Second round: Robins (Burroughs) defeated Harrod (Raymond), 4—6, 8—6, 8—6; Channing (Langdon) defeated Burns (Va. Ave.), 6—3, 6—3; Owens (Mitchell) defeated Bernstein (Hamilton), 6—1, 6—0; Needle (Gallinger) defeated Bennett (Barnard), 6—3, 7—5; Blue (Takoma Park) defeated Royal (Park View), 6—3, 6—3; Trammell (Hoover) defeated Mullen (Janney), 6—0, 6—2.

Senior—Second round: Kay (Raymond) defeated Bennett (Barnard), 6—1, 6—1; Dower (Takoma Park) defeated Allen (Georgetown), 6—4, 6—4; Brown (Garfield) defeated Geroey (Thompson), 6—3, 6—2; Desch (Van Buren) defeated Summers (Eaton), 6—0, 6—0; Ciomi (Park View) defeated Fugiti (Hoover), 6—4, 4—6, 6—1; Contrarias (Va. Ave.) defeated Ray (Mitchell), 6—2, 6—0.

Today's Matches.

Junior—Durst (Twin Oaks) vs. Hodges (Montrose), Lacosti (Orr) vs. Channing (Langdon), Owens (Mitchell) vs. Sowral (Georgetown), Wright (Thompson) vs. Hovnaniau (Happy Hollow), Ritzenberg (Cook) vs. Needle (Gallinger), Baer (Chevy Chase) vs. Caffrey (Phillips); Lynham (Eaton) vs. Blue (Takoma Park), Trammell (Hoover) vs. Eckhart (Garfield); Robbins (Burroughs) vs. winner of Dorst-Hodges match; Spasulli (Rosedale) vs. winner of Baer-Caffrey match.

McKechnie Psychologists' Peer; He Makes Stars of Cast-Offs

By Marshal Hunt
(Subbing for Paul Gallico).

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Just what the hell has this fellow Bill McKechnie got anway? You know, the skinny guy with an Adam's apple that goes up and down like an elevator and has managed the Boston Braves for the last several summers. Who can revive a broken-down, wind-sucking, failing baseball player better than Prof. McKechnie? The chap has had a dozen gents thrust at him who were failing with other teams, yet he converted them into first-class performers.

There was the case of Fred Frankhouse. Mr. Frankhouse was not considered even a good relief thrower with the St. Louis Cardinals. Today Fred is one of the leading pitchers in the National League. Then there was the case of Flint Rhem. He, you will doubtless recall, once was identified with the St. Louis firm. This slinger was kidnaped in New York. Not only that, but he once sat at a table with Grover Cleveland Alexander and prevented his illustrious teammate from bending his elbow by emptying all the glassware in sight, a most considerate gesture.

Rhem Is Another.

Rhem was wrapped up by the Cardinals, shipped to the Phillies, who didn't seem to care for him, and then landed with McKechnie in Boston. The success of Tom Zachary was another example of McKechnie's ability as a magician. The New York Yankees sent that veteran pitcher off in an involved deal and soon he was in Boston. For several years McKechnie got plenty for results from that ancient flipper. Tom now is with the Dodgers. Another jobbie that came McKechnie's way was the round and affable Francis Hogan, a catcher whose work didn't seem to be appreciated at the Polo Grounds. No fault has been found with his work in Boston.

Al Spohrer, another backstopper, was on his way to some minor league port when McKechnie took charge of the bald-headed chap and he's been of considerable assistance to the Braves ever since. Randy Moore wasn't much of an outfielder until he was taken charge of by Willy. There are several other examples of McKechnie's ability to revive players.

McKechnie probably has done more with the Boston team than any other manager. There are those who will say that George Stallings accomplished more back in 1914, when the Braves were in last place on July 4 and won the championship. But on Independence Day the Braves actually were only a few games away from first place, and the team, hastily slung together, had little opposition in the league race.

Others Swayed.

Ben Cantwell and Ed Brandt, a brace of pitchers, were others that were swayed by Prof. McKechnie's eloquence. Brandt insisted that he couldn't exercise his soup bone because of colds in the skull, but the Boston manager soon induced him to believe that nothing was wrong with his noggin. Cantwell became a winning thrower under McKechnie's supervision. Billy Urbansky was purchased by the Braves from Montreal for $35,000 and most folks thought he was worth no more than $35. But fans up in Boston will tell you now that he is the best shortstop in the National League, having been under the tutelage of McKechnie for several years.

By this time your representative hopes that his clients understand that McKechnie is occupying the head chair in the school of psychology in baseball circles. Brothers, he is. A colorless person is Bill. He wanted to quit baseball several years ago and become tax collector in Wilkensburg, Pa., his home town. But Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves, prevailed upon him to forget such a routine job and sign a five-year contract. He'll be with the Braves as long as Fuchs has anything to do with the Boston baseball firm. Color or no color, the chap is considered an exceptional manager.

Frankie Parker Gets Revenge Over Hines

Bell, Prusoff and Grant Also Are Victors at Southampton.

SOUTHHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 2 (U.P.).—Frankie Parker, 18-year-old tennis star from Spring Lake, N. J., gained ample revenge over Wilmer Hines, Columbia, S. C. sensation, defeating him in three straight sets today at the Meadow Brook Club's Invitational Tennis Tournament, 6—0, 6—0, 6—2.

Hines had twice upset Parker this year. The Spring Lake youth was joined in the semi-final bracket by Berkeley Bell, of New York; Henry Prusoff of Seattle, Wash., and Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, Ga.

Bell, top seeded player, beat Jack Tidball, Los Angeles, 6—1, 6—1, 6—2; Prusoff downed J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., 6—1, 6—3, 6—4, and Grant beat Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, 6—2, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3.

An upset was recorded in doubles, Robert Bryan, Chattanooga, Tenn., and John McDiarmid of Fort Worth, Tex., beating Bell and Greg Mangin, Newark, N. J., 6—3, 7—5, 2—6, 14—12. Bell and Mangin hold the Meadow club title and were top-seeded.

Wrestling Held Over Until Tonight

ED (DON) GEORGE, airplaning to Washington to keep his last night's mat engagement with Sandor Szabo in the feature of the Griffith Stadium snarlfest, was grounded at Newark, N. J., due to storms. Rather than put on "Hamlet," with Hamlet missing, Promoter Joe Turner postponed the show until tonight.

George, monarch of all he surveys in the rassle world, as long as he does not survey the territory over which Jim Londos rules, had staged a second draw with the Gorgeous Greek in Buffalo Wednesday night. Under normal condition, he easily could have reached the Capital for last night's performance, but he ran into heavy storms in New Jersey, his plane was grounded and was not allowed to take off under existing conditions.

Whole Show Held Over.

The postponed card will be presented in its entirely tonight, with Gino Garibaldi meeting Floyd Marshall in the semifinal and the preliminaries calling for Joe Davito to oppose Harry Fields, Mike Romano to tackle Venka Zelesniak and Marshall Blackstock to make faces at Charles (Pretty Boy) Hall. Several of these performers were booked at Coney Island tonight, but that show was canceled, so they do their stuff here.

Tickets for last night's show will be good tonight and those unable to use purchased tickets on the postponed date may get a refund at Promoter Turner's Annapolis Hotel office today.

Cubs Offer O'Farrell Relief Catcher Post

Chicago, Aug. 2 (AP).—The Cubs today offered Bob O'Farrell, deposed manager of the Cincinnati Reds, a position as first relief catcher. The veteran backstop, who was with Chicago from 1918 to mid-1925, said he would reply within a day or two.

Track Admission Cuts New Aim in New York

New York, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—Inaugurating a movement to reduce admission prices at race tracks throughout the State, the New York State Racing Commission today adopted a resolution providing for reduction of general admissions from $2.50 to $2 at Belmont Park's September meeting.

If this Belmont reduction proves successful in increasing crowds, the commission then will order reductions at all other tracks.

New Pool to Open.

The new outdoor swimming pool at the Congressional Country Club will be christened August 12 at 3 p. m. with the first annual club swimming and diving meet. Entries for this meet, are closed to club members, but a series of open competitions for District swimmers are being considered.

Swim Teams Clash.

The McKinley Swimming Team will meet the Takoma Team in a meet at the Takoma pool at 10:30 a. m. today. There will be an even dozen races, including two relays—one for boys and one for girls—and a water polo game.

The Post Sandlotter

CONFIDENT of their ability to uphold the prestige of former Washington representatives, Heinie Webb and his gang of Union Printers set out for New York tomorrow in quest of the eleventh championship in the twenty-sixth annual Union Printers International tourney.

The local team probably will make its debut in tourney play on Sunday, but its opponent will not be known until tomorrow night, when the drawing of the teams will take place at the Hotel New Yorker. Games will be played at the Polo Grounds.

Webb, now serving his twelfth year as manager, pins his chief hopes of bringing home the huge Garry Herrman and Malcolm ("Si") Simons perpetual trophies on the strong right arm of George Mosedale. Mainly through Mosedale's fine hurling, the Printers have become a favored contender for Post Association honors in the National City League.

Is Terrible Strain.

"The tournament, with its games every day, is a terrible strain upon the pitching staff, despite the fact that the 'double-knockout' system (elimination after two losses) is used,' said Webb yesterday, in the midst of final preparations. "I am taking five pitchers with the team, and then there is Johnny Reid or Tammy Daglish I can use in an emergency. So we are pretty well fortified in this department."

Webb joined the Washington team in 1920 and took over the managerial reins the following year. Starting in 1922 the local Union Printers ran up a 24-game winning streak in tournament competition, capturing the title five years in a row from 1922 to 1926. A big grin was spread on the features of the 42-year-old Webb as memories of these years' tournaments flashed through his mind.

1924 Team Strongest.

In Heinie's opinion the 1924 team was the strongest all-round combination ever to represent the Capital in tournament play, and Tommy Ford's play at second base against Hamilton in the same series at Chicago was the most sensational he has witnessed in tournament competition. In the deciding game, Heinie recalls, Ford handled 16 chances without a miscue. White Sox Scouts hounded Ford all the way home and he received a try-out in the fall.

The 1928 series, in which the local contingent survived for its seventh title, was the most dramatic battle of all tourney struggles that the Printers' pilot can remember. Despite the loss of Ford and Brownie Limerick, two of its best players, the young team came through with a surprising triumph.

The following players will make the trip: Tom Heany, George Mosedale, Charlie Jefferies, Bill Smith, Revede McPherson, Jimmy Dewhurst, Fred Waple, Tommy Daglish, Johnny Reid, Gerard Edwards, Ray Homan, Allen McAlwee, Charlie Holbrook and Benny Schnieder, Herman Feldman, secretary of the local Union Printers, and Clarence Despar, National commissioner, also will accompany the team.

The Washington Clowns will spend a busy week-end on the diamond. Falls Church will be engaged tomorrow at 3 p. m. at Falls Church and Mt. Rainier Grays, Sunday at 12:30 on the Mt. Rainier High School field. The team then will hie itself to the Monument Grounds to meet the Rex A. C. on No. 3 diamond at 3 o'clock.

The Occoquan A. C. is scheduled to face the Bethel A. C. of Warrenton, Va., tomorrow at Woodbridge, and the Northwestern A. C. of Washington on Sunday. Both games are listed for 3 o'clock.

Connie Royer and Charlie Zimmerli are expected to be the rival hurlers in the game between North Washington and Chevy Chase Grays Sunday at 3 p. m. on the Four Corners diamond.

The Clarendon Cardinals want a game for Sunday. Another date, August 26, also is open. Phone Manager Schulte at Clarendon 2254.

The Lans A. C. will journey to Burke, Va., to play the Burke A. C. Sunday. The Virginia team boasts an impressive record.

The proposed organization of the Virginia Rural League, which would bring into The Post Association competition the outstanding teams of Quantico, Orange, Occoquan, Fredericksburg and several other communities, has been received with enthusiasm among the players and fans in the vicinity.

The first actual steps in league organization will be taken within the next few days at a general meeting of the teams' representatives. Phil Haensler, business manager of the Quantico Indians, is instigator of the move.

The Quantico Indians meet the Occoquan Braves tomorrow afternoon at Quantico. Both of these clubs stand out as strong favorites for The Post Association crown in the proposed league.

Endeavour's Pilot Sees Even Chance

Radiates Confidence in Talk From Liner.

New York, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—Radiating confidence from midocean, T. O. M. Sopwith, British sportsman whose Endeavour will challenge for the America's Cup next month, spoke his first piece to American yachting followers over ocean radiophone from the Cunard liner Aquitania today.

Talking with Joe King, yachting editor of the New York World-Telegram, over a special hook-up, he said:

"I would not come over if I did not think I had a chance to win. How much chance? Just say I feel it should be even."

National Junior Diving Headlines A. A. U. Card at Glen Echo Monday

1,200 Likely To Witness Events

15 of Nation's Greatest Stars Will Compete in Feature.

Lively Battle Is Seen in Both Women's and Men's Races.

COMPETITIVE swimming and diving move to a new all-time high for the Washington vicinity Monday night when the District A. A. U. stages the biggest meet in its history at Glen Echo's Crystal Pool, with the men's National junior diving championships headlining a blue-ribbon program. A capacity crowd of more than 1,200 is expected to look on.

No Bearing on Age.

The junior championships are held for those who have yet to win a major National title and have no bearing on age. All but the National champions are eligible to compete.

Swimmers from as far away as Troy, N. Y., are entered in the racing events. The District men's and women's 220-yard free style championships stand out among the races, with George Groff and Rita Augusterfer, of the Shoreham, defending their titles in the face of stiff competition. Charlie Bateson, of the Shoreham, District 1933 100-yard champion, and Ernie Boggs, the husky Y. M. C. A. middle-distance star, figure to make things hot for Groff, while versatile Leonora Taube, Jean Rawls and Lydia Cort, of the Shoreham, furnish Miss Augusterfer's opposition.

180-Yard Relay Event.

The men's 180-yard medley relay, in which the Shoreham, the Prospect Swimming Club of Troy, the Baltimore Y. M. C. A., and the Washington "Y" are entered, is expected to form one of the features of the evening.

Marie Duvall, of the Shoreham, the District's graceful woman's diving champion, had not entered for her specialty last night, but her post-entry, as well as those of a number of others are expected to swell the already large number of competitors before the meet opens.

Clifton Forge Fights Please Large Crowd

Clifton Forge, Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—A large crowd of fight enthusiasts witnessed the inauguration of boxing here last night. The show was staged in the American Legion hall and from the comments of the spectators at the conclusion of the matches there may be a real future for boxing in this city.

All of the fights went to a decision. Floyd Wall defeated Joe Jones in four rounds; in a six-round semifinal, Clarence Chaplin defeated Homer Hiserman; in an eight-round final, Jack Hughlie defeated Pat Koontz.

Cherry Run Triumphs.

Martinsburg, W. Va., August 2 (Spl.).—The Cherry Run ball club won a free-scoring tilt over North Mountain at Cherry Run, 16-14. The winners were outhit by the losers and both teams played losely afield, the winners having eight errors and the losers nine.

Score by innings:

New Interstate Mark Is Set By Hurler

Stevenson Wins 10 Games for Potomac Edison; Loses but One.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—When Jim "Scotty" Stevenson, big right-handed mound ace of the Potomac Edison Club, turned back the Frostburg Demons here, 1 to 0, he shattered the Interstate League record for pitchers established last year by Ray Bruck, of the Corrigansville Hustlers, by scoring in his tenth triumph against a single setback. In 1933, Bruck finished the season with a mark of nine wins and one loss, and it stood as a record until "Big Jim" broke it by pitching a four-hit shutout victory.

Not only did Stevenson better the league's best individual performance of a year ago, but he established the longest winning streak of the current campaign by registering his sixth consecutive triumph since he suffered a 12-inning defeat at the hands of the Legion on June 16.

Mr. Sponge Is Winner By a Neck at Detroit

Detroit, Aug. 2 (AP).—Mr. Sponge, the C. & C. Leroy King entry that has been finishing among the also rans most of the season, found a spot in the rain and stormy darkness of the Detroit Fair Grounds this afternoon to win the sixth race by a neck from Up, a favorite.

Irene's Bob led during the early stages, but faded badly toward the end of the 6-furlong route to finish last. Stroll Along was third. Mr. Sponge paid $9 to win.

Hook, Line and Sinker . . .

By Jean Monk.

WHEN the call of the wild gets me I always have a feeling that I'd like to spend a night, or a day, or perhaps a week in a trapper's lodge, 'way up in the mountains of the State of Washington or Oregon.

You know the kind of lodge I have in mind—split logs for weather boards, whole logs for pillars; big, roomy lounge and everything else to match, including the rooms.

It's a long way to Oregon or Washington, but it isn't very far to Piney Point, Md. And at Piney Point just such a hotel has been erected, and only this week opened to the public. It is Woodlawn Lodge, sitting on the water's edge in the big trangle just as you enter Piney Point, and modern to the edge of a shark's tooth.

I was at Piney Point not many days ago and stopped at the Piney Point Hotel, for 29 years now under the management of Warren Tolson. Tolson is a philosopher. Whenever I feel my philosophic batteries weakening, I run down to old man Socrates of the Potomac for a recharge.

Students Are Many.

His students are many and come from varied walks of life. Thomas Waddy, merchant of Alexandria, Va., and Capt. H. C. Egloff, of Walter Reed Hospital, fishing pals of 30 years, trek Piney Pointward weekends ostensibly to fish, but much of their time is spent pow-wowing with Warren T.

They were there last Saturday night. Sunday morning before breakfast, with their trusty guide, Capt. Charlie, they rounded the point and, letting their boat drift as they always do, landed 200 hardhead. In a note signed by these two veterans, I find this statement:

"Great sport. Practice makes perfect and we've learned how." Just let your boat drift.

Two other fishing pals, Fred N. Ohm, secretary of Tom's Plymouth Service, 631 N street northwest, and Bob Rutledge, manager, General Credit Corporation, 701 Hill Building, attempted a fishing trip Saturday night at Piney Point, but the wind was too high.

Sunday afternoon Capt. Goldsborough took them out and they landed 35 bull croakers, 17 trout and 5 rockfish. They were stopping at the Tolson Hotel.

Capt. Brady McKay, St. Jeromes Creek, makes the following good report for July 30:

14 Blues in Catch.

"Sunday, July 29, Mr. Solomon, of Baltimore, with three others, caught 14 blues averaging about 5 pounds each. During the past week with other parties we caught quite a nice lot of trout and hardhead.

"Tuesday, July 24, George Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Wildt, fishing with Capt. Lumpkins, caught almost 100 large hardheads. Saturday, July 28, Len Orem, of Washington, with two others, caught 11 large blues. This party was fishing with Capt. Raub Drury, trolling at Southwest Middles."

C. Newton George, of Tilghman Island, takes exception to a statement made in this column recently to the effect that bluefish can be caught consistently only when they are seen breaking water. Our correspondent says bluefish have been caught all summer near Tilghman.

This is good news. I made the statement that we have not as yet discovered a method of landing bluefish consistently trolling when they are not breaking. Possibly Mr. George and his fishing companions have solved this problem. I will be glad to publish a statement of the methods they use.

Capt. H. C. Elliott, Brooms Island, sends this report, July 30: "Thursday, July 26, in the morning a party of four, from Baltimore, caught over 200 fish, seven of them trout, one weighing four pounds.

"On Friday, July 27, a party of five, from Rockville, Md., caught 125 trout, hardhead and large spots. We had large catches all week. Sent my parties home with many fish. We are expecting better results this week after such good rains.

Treasury Puts Tax Clamp on Rum Rectifiers

New Regulations Designed to Prevent Revenue Evasions.

Seeking to bolster disappointing returns in liquor revenues by tightening collection methods, Guy T. Helvering, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, yesterday brought liquor rectifiers fully under the thumb of the Treasury's alcohol tax unit.

With approval of Secretary Morgenthau, Helvering promulgated a new set of regulations governing rectification of spirits and wines, and ordered them into effect the first of next month.

"The regulations represent another important step in the program of the Secretary of the Treasury to strengthen safeguards for the protection of the revenue from liquors at their source, to afford added protection to the public, and to close every channel through which non-taxpaid liquors may be marketed," Helvering commented.

In an earlier order, the Internal Revenue Commissioner again authorized the use of wood alcohol as a denaturant, lifting the ban imposed January, 1931, when a number of deaths were blamed on its use in bootleg liquor.

"The use of wood alcohol as a denaturant was discontinued on account of prohibition, and the repeal of prohibition would appear to justify its restoration," Deputy Commissioner Harold N. Graves recommended, following a hearing on petitions of 16 manufacturers, distributors and users.

The new rectifying regulations promulgated yesterday subject commercial blenders of liquors to rigid inspection by Government officers assigned to special duties at rectifying plants.

The rigid new rules include injunction that Government locks be placed on rectifiers' bottling tanks. The internal revenue tax must be paid before bottling, and all tanks must be equipped with glass gauges.

With this order, officials hope to plug the outgo of nontax paid liquor, as practically all rectified spirits are bottled.

Another order requires division of all rectifying plants into three departments—receiving room, rectifying room and finished products room—segregating liquor operations and aiding Federal inspectors in scrutinizing every process.

Here are a few of the other regulations, arming alcohol tax agents with complete control of liquor rectifying:

Plants must be used for the exclusive purpose of rectifying, with temporary exception in the case of soft drink manufacturers.

Rectifiers must file their formulas and processes, so the Government may determine taxability of products.

To assure tax payment, district supervisors in each case must approve the rectifier's report of spirits to be dumped.

Government audit of rectifier's records is required.

Barrels and kegs filled by rectifiers will be serially numbered and marked with the rectifier's name and address, so the liquor can be traced.

Expedition Films Man's Rise, Never Before Told on Screen

Institute Will Show Eight-Reel Talkie at Colleges.

It carries the audience by airplane through the lands where civilization was cradled, Egypt, Palestine, Syria, Anatolia, Iraq and Persia. It was filmed during eight of the fourteen expeditions the institute has dispatched into these ancient sites.

The sequence includes a flight over the Persian Mountains in a dust storm which reached heights of 12,000 feet; excavations which show 14 separate and distinct cities, each built one upon the other with a Stone Age village at the bottom and the remains of an early Christian temple at the top; rough weapons made by the Neanderthal folk; wheat from the days of Joseph; the stables of Solomon, and many other discoveries important to early history.

The climax is the showing of Persepolis, capital of the Persian empire built by Darius the Great about 500 B. C. The monuments, towering columns and carved stairways are seen and a glimpse is afforded of the expedition encamped in Darius' reconstructed harem.

Three years were required for completion of the film which reproduces a story never before told on the screen.

Cumberland Jails 3 in Traffic Cases

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Three automobile drivers were jailed in default of fine for motor violations after hearings yesterday.

A. B. Snyder, Hoy, W. Va., was fined $105 and costs for drunken driving. He was arrested after a collision with a car driven by Curtis Judy. Miss Anna Doyle was injured. Emmett Judy, R. F. D. No. 4, was fined $105 on similar charges. State officers reported they found a 10-gallon jug of alleged illicit liquor in his car and he was held for a hearing on a Federal charge today. Arthur Flanagan, of Rawlings, was jailed in default of $105 fine on a drunken driving charge.

Three Men Mentioned For Virginia Senate

Richmond, Aug. 2 (AP).—The Times-Dispatch says tonight that three men are being mentioned as possible successors to the Senate seat of the late Samuel L. Ferguson, of Appomatox.

Possible candidates, the paper says, are Berkley D. Adams, of Charlotte, now one of the longest term members of the House of Delegates; Joel T. Flood, of Appomattox, a half-uncle of United States Senator Harry Flood Byrd and a former member of Congress, and R. L. Burke, treasurer of Appomatox County.

Roanoke Indicts Three in Thefts

Roanoke, Aug. 2 (Spl.).—A special hustings grand jury today returned three true bills of indictment against J. H. Frantz, former city treasurer; Mrs. Ada M. Smith, former deputy treasurer, and Terry L. Woods, delinquent tax collector.

Frantz is charged with embezzling $55,942.04 of city funds; Mrs. Smith with embezzlement of $10,636.03 in city funds, and Woods with grand larceny of $6,793.38 in city funds and $1,780.37 worth of State funds.

CCC Men Extinguish Maryland Forest Fire

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—CCC workers stationed at the Washington Monument near Boonsboro last night brought a threatening forest fire on South Mountain under control.

Fire Warden William Renner began an investigation today, stating there was evidence the fire was of incendiary origin, probably started by huckleberry pickers.

5 Dead, 50 Stricken Of Malaria, in N. C.

Elizabeth City, N. C., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Five persons are dead and 50 are ill of malaria fever, according to Dr. William L. Stevens, health officer for Camden County. Most of the cases are in that county.

Dr. Stevens says the malady was first diagnosed as undulant fever but later proved black water fever, the most malignant form of malaria.

Coaster Crash Victim To Be Buried Today

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—The funeral of Raymond Carl Shaw, 15, son of Selby Shaw, killed while riding with Victor Tamboleo, 15, on a home-made coaster, will be held from St. Mary's Catholic Church tomorrow.

They collided head-on with an automobile. The Tomboleo youth is believed to have sustained internal injury.

Burglar Escapes Under Fire After Raiding 5 Homes

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—A colored burglar last night ransacked three homes and two apartments here, but took little loot.

Surprised by J. W. Hudson, manager of Preston Court Apartments, as he was leaving from the apartment of Mrs. Mark Henderson at 4:30 a. m. the burglar ran and shouted:

"Go ahead and shoot."

Mr. Hudson leveled a shotgun and fired, but the burglar apparently was not wounded.

He took a hat from the third-floor apartment of R. C. McReynolds, dropping it in his haste.

He ransacked the upstairs floor of the home of Mrs. D. F. Giannini while the family listened to the radio in the parlor; entered the home of F. B. Peyton, jr., and was frightened away as he tried to enter a small house on the place of Mrs. S. H. Parker.

Virginia Socialists Seek House Seats

Will Campaign in Every Congress District.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—The Socialist party is preparing to put a candidate for Congress in the field in the Second District to oppose Representative Colgate W. Darden, jr., and will hold a district convention at the Socialist headquarters here Monday night to make the nomination.

Carl P. Spaeth, district chairman, will preside at the meeting and is one of the possibilities for the nomination. He was the party's candidate in 1932 in this district. George Rohlsen, secretary of the district organization, also is mentioned for the nomination.

Mr. Rohlsen said the party would enter a candidate in each Congressional district, and one to oppose Senator Harry F. Byrd.

License Power Of FACA Gets Test in Court

By Robert C. Albright.

Licensing powers of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration faced their first test in the courts yesterday as a Puerto Rican liquor dealer challenged Director Joseph H. Choate's authority to revoke a permit.

Temporary restoration of the license of Davila Hermanos & Co., of San Juan, Puerto Rico, was promised by the FACA, following preliminary hearing before Justice James M. Proctor in the District Supreme Court.

This course was decided on to forestall a temporary injunction by Justice Proctor, preventing ruinous business losses to the firm during trial of the suit.

Represented by William R. Lichtenberg and Frank Buckley, the Puerto Rican liquor firm, one member of which admitted he formerly wholesaled illegal liquor, contends that licensing powers delegated by the President to the FACA, expired June 16, one year after the recovery act.

Says FACA Is Powerless.

"The Federal Alcohol Control Administration, having no further power by virtue of the act to grant licenses, consequently has no power to revoke them," read the liquor company's brief.

Although many phases of the Administration's emergency program have been contested in the courts, FACA jurisdiction has never before been disputed, officials said.

As the power to issue and revoke permits is the very heart of Federal liquor control and, in the opinion of FACA attorneys, adequately justified by law, these expressed little concern for the final outcome.

Of the many test cases on emergency legislation filed in the local courts, not one has been sustained.

Not only Director Choate and members of his control board, but Attorney General Homer S. Cummings was named in the injunction suit filed yesterday.

Father Joins Firm.

Three Puerto Rican brothers, Jose, Carmen and Rafael Davila, said they received a permit in February and started business the following month, but the FACA started revocation proceedings when their father, Antonio Davila, joined the firm.

Antonio admitted he had wholesaled and imported liquor prior to repeal, but insisted he had not dealt in the stuff since prohibition was wiped off the books. When beer became legal he loaned his sons money to go into the legal business, and decided to join them after repeal, he testified.

The FACA charged the firm with "erroneous, misleading and false" statements, and with willfully concealing facts. Last Friday the permit was canceled.

Seeking a permanent injunction, the Davila family complained they will suffer "irreparable loss and injury because, if the order to revoke is allowed to stand, the business of the plaintiffs will be ruined."

11 Regulations Stifle Politics In Treasury

Circular Bans Nearly All Such Activity After September 1.

Following up his edict that all Treasury employes must divorce themselves from party office, Secretary Henry Morgenthau, jr., yesterday instituted a series of 11 drastic prohibitions designed to stifle the political aspirations of any within the Department.

A circular distributed to all officers and employes carried the blunt warning that on or after September 1 no one will be permitted to carry on political activity of almost any character.

He reaffirmed his injunction against officials holding party office, which is expected to lead to wholesale resignations in the ranks of the Democratic National committee. These were warned in an announcement June 21, giving them until September 1 to take their choice.

Among those affected by the ruling are Guy T. Helvering, chairman of the Kansas Democratic State committee, who is also commissioner of internal revenue, and W. A. Julian, National committeeman for Ohio and treasurer of the United States.

Mrs. Ross Quit Post.

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the mint, resigned as Wyoming committeewoman after President Roosevelt first laid down his policy against public officials holding party office. But others who were listed as holding party office at the time of the first Morgenthau order included the following collectors of internal revenue:

J. Enos Hay, of Maryland; Warren R. Van Dyke, of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch, of Connecticut; H. H. Perry, of North Dakota; Joseph Wolf, of Minnesota; Mrs. Stanley V. Hodge, of Minnesota, and Mrs. Bernice G. Pyke, of Ohio.

"There was some confusion when I first gave out the original regulation," Mr. Morgenthau explained.

"This new statement ought to clarify it. So far, there have been many resignations from political posts by Treasury employes as a result of my first warning."

The New Regulations.

The new regulations forbid any employe:

To hold any other public or political office.

To become a candidate for a political office.

To be a member or officer of any official committee of a political party, or of any other committee that solicits funds for political purposes.

To own, edit or manage a political publication.

To display such obtrusive partisanship as to cause public scandal.

To attempt to manipulate party primaries or conventions.

To use his position to bring about his selection as a delegate to conventions.

To act as chairman of a political convention.

To assume the active conduct of a political campaign.

To use his position to interfere with an election or to affect the result thereof.

To neglect his public duties.

Adding that "no violation of the provisions * * * will be excused on the ground of lack of knowledge," Mr. Morgenthau further specified that the regulations are not to be construed as abating any Civil Service regulations or laws against political activity.

Stocks' Rallies Ebb as Trading Becomes Dull

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Rallying power of stocks ebbed today in a dull and narrow market.

Metal shares were stimulated a bit by Secretary Morgenthau's statement that the Treasury planned immediate issuance of $50,000,000 in new silver certificates.

Otherwise little attention was paid to outside news. The death of President von Hindenburg had no perceptible effect on the price structure. German bonds moved listlessly with other security groups.

Gains Outnumber Losses.

Moderate gains outnumbered share losses at the close. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 stocks was lifted four-tenths of a point, to 71.5. Volume on the stock exchange declined to 558,980 shares, compared with 778,770 yesterday.

Several relatively wide gains in preferred stocks reflected the thinness of the market rather than any unusual strength. Senior shares of American Ice, American Woolen, Brown Shoe, Crucible and Universal Leaf Tobacco spurted 2 to 5 points.

Chrysler was firm in advance of publication of the earnings report, showing profit equivalent to $1.88 a share in the first six months of this year, compared with the second quarter of last year.

American Chemical Rises.

American Agricultural Chemical rose nearly 2 points on declaration of an initial quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share.

Strength in raw sugar attracted further buying to sugar stocks. Sterling products broke sharply and finished 2¼ lower following appearance of its second-quarter earnings report.

Most of the usually active issues settled into a rut as their advance in the previous session met resistance. Alcohol shares, recently under pressure, mustered additional rallying force and American Chemical Alcohol, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and National Distillers were 1 to 2 points higher at the finish.

Since the upturn yesterday was attributed chiefly to technical factors, traders were in no hurry to extend their positions on the bull side. While hopes of seasonal business improvement were entertained, trade reports were still lacking in tangible evidence of expansion.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Tugwell's Defense of the Agricultural Program Has the Weakness of Being Based Upon an Inaccurate Statement of Facts.

By Ralph West Robey.

Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell's defense of the agricultural program in his radio talk a few nights ago brought out one point that deserves emphasis. This is that the program now definitely is regarded as a permanent feature of our economic system. All thought of its being merely a temporary measure apparently has been discarded. Henceforth, not just during the "emergency," but as a lasting policy, the activities of our farmers are to be directed with a view of giving "them a measure of control over their production and so over the prices which they receive for their commodities."

In presenting such a thesis the Undersecretary, of course, is not breaking new ground. Secretary Wallace has intimated at various times that the AAA is here to stay. In addition, it has been evident from the start that politically it would be impossible for the Administration to withdraw from the program. For when a political party starts throwing money away by the millions, it does not suddenly close the purse-strings—not if it wants to stay in power.

Justification for Program Rests Upon Industrial Action

Equally interesting with the official insistence that the program is to be permanent is the justification offered. This, in brief, is that industry has been doing exactly the same thing. Thus Mr. Tugwell says: "It has, for example, been taken for granted that when an automobile factory could no longer manufacture automobiles at a profit, it would stop production." Then the undersecretary adds this surprising statement: "Unfortunately and inexplicably, it has also been taken for granted that when a farmer could no longer grow wheat at a profit, he ought to increase his production."

He continues the argument—and it is worth careful study: "* * * we felt that with industrial America controlling its production in order to maintain profitable prices with absolute indifference to the fate of the millions who depend upon industry for a livelihood, agricultural America could not survive without corresponding measures of readjustment and self-control."

That, then, is the justification for regimenting our millions of farmers and having a bureau in Washington tell them what they can and can not do. Industry has adjusted production to demand; agriculture must do likewise.

Argument Misrepresents The Actual Situation.

The trouble with this argument is simply that it is not so. Until the NRA—which even as a New Deal measure came after the AAA—an industry was not permitted under the antitrust laws to organize and operate as a unit. Production was curtailed, it was true, and it was curtailed because it no longer was profitable, but the curtailment was decided upon by each unit in the industry.

When Mr. Tugwell tries to justify the AAA on the basis that it is following the same policies industry has used in the past, accordingly, he is dealing in myths. Further, the curtailment in industry always has had the effect of eliminating the more inefficient producers. The AAA scarcely could be better designed to assure that there will be no such elimination.

Mr. Tugwell, then, errs not only in his description of the past policies of industrialists, but as well, in his appraisal of the effects of such policies. Such errors do not afford a strong basis for a case in support of the AAA.

Wool Market.

Boston, Aug. 2 (A.P.) (U. S. Dept. of Agr.).—Asking prices were reduced on the bulk of the Boston holdings of Western-grown wools. Since the decline at the July series of London wools, members of the Boston wool trade have been giving serious thought to the effects of that drop upon domestic quotations. The conclusion reached was that the present world price levels made it possible to compete with certain kinds of wool in spite of a drop in asking prices of Western-grown wools. Hope was expressed in the trade that the change in price point would have a stimulating effect upon demand here.

Bonds Advance One-tenth in Light Trading

Rails Lead in Activity; Sales Volume Drops to $7,192,000.

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—The bond market displayed only faint signs of life today, and the majority of price changes were narrow and meaningless.

Total transfers of $7,192,000, par value, were the smallest since September 13, and compared with $16,470,000 yesterday.

The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues edged up one-tenth of a point to 84.7.

Little Interest in News.

Besides considering earnings statements of various companies, the market showed little interest in news developments. The death of President von Hindenburg apparently did not affect the market.

The rails probably were the most active of the listless session.

Moderate gains were recorded by some loans of Alleghany Corporation, Santa Fe, Chesapeake Corporation, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Nickel Plate, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, San Antonio & A. P., Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Western Maryland.

Utilities and Industrials.

The better utilities and industrials included United States Rubber, Tennessee Electric, Postal Telegraph, Pacific Gas, International Paper, International Hydroelectric, International Telephone, International Steel, Colorado Industrial, American Water Works and American Telephone.

Although the demand was light, United States Government securities managed to recover two-thirty-seconds to eleven-thirty-seconds of a point. Federal Farm Mortgage 3s steadied, but were still below the average price at which the Treasury allotted a large block of bonds last week.

In the foreign division, German Government 5½s and 7s rallied one-quarter of a point each to 33¾ and 47, respectively. The Austrians were also slightly higher. Some of the Colombians got up a point or so. The Argentines eased under profit-taking.

Bank Rate Unchanged.

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—The Federal Reserve Bank of New York today announced no change in its rediscount rate of 1½ per cent.

Curb's Prices Recover in Quiet Sales

Small Gains Predominate as Trading Is Cut to 110,000 Shares.

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Irregular tendencies at the start gave way to a quiet afternoon recovery on the curb market today. Small gains predominated at the finish, although a scattering of losses appeared in the miscellaneous list.

Alcohols were particularly firm in the final hour. Some of the oils and utilities moved up well, but metals were a trifle laggard. Fajardo Sugar lost 5½ of its 13-point climb yesterday. In equally thin trading, Gulf Oil rose 1⅝ to close at 37¼. Commonwealth Edison gained 3. Aside from other gains of around a point in Hiram Walker, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Swift International and Safety Car Heating, the remaining list was generally narrow.

Glen Alden Coal, Lake Shore and American Cyanamid "B" sold off slightly, while Electric Bond & Share, Swift & Co., International Petroleum and Humble Oil were a bit improved.

Transfers dwindled to 110,000 shares compared with 133,000 Wednesday.

Daily Credit of Reserve Banks Averages Three Million Higher

The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ended August 1, as reported by the Federal Reserve banks, was $2,464,000,000, an increase of $3,000,000 compared with the preceding week and of $255,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1933.

On August 1 total Reserve bank credit amounted to $2,463,000,000, an increase of $7,000,000 for the week. This increase corresponds with increases of $24,000,000 in money in circulation, $102,000,000 in Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve banks, $3,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts and a decrease of $3,000,000 in Treasury and National bank currency, offset in part by a decrease of $105,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and an increase of $21,000,000 in monetary gold stock.

There were practically no changes in the system's holdings of bills discounted, bills bought in open market and United States Government securities.

Changes in the amount of Reserve bank credit outstanding and in related items during the week and the year ended August 1, 1934, were as follows:

Iron and Steel Under NRA

Cleveland, Aug. 2.—Thirty million dollars for new steel finishing capacity completed or authorized, $24,000,000 for finishing mills now actively under consideration, but no expansion of pig iron or raw steel-making capacity. Such is the record of the iron and steel industry since the NRA steel code became effective last August 19, as compiled by the magazine, Steel, of Cleveland.

With the code prohibiting the construction of any new blast furnaces or open-hearth steel furnaces and bessemer steel converters, the only active in production facilities of these basic materials has been comparatively small or remodeling jobs.

However, there has been marked activity in adding to the finishing capacity of the industry. Sixteen finishing mills have been installed in the past year, eight are now being built, one has been authorized and two large projects are under consideration. This total of 27 mills compares with 20 finishing mills completed in 1933, 45 in 1932, 33 in 1931, 94 in 1930, and 97 in 1929.

The total capacity of these 27 mills completed, authorized or likely to go ahead is 4,555,300 tons annually. Indicating the expanding market for light, flat rolled products, all but three of these 27 mills are for the production of this class of material.

Two of the mills now under consideration are the large continuous sheet-strip type, the output of which is largely absorbed by the automobile industry. One of this kind of mill is now being built for the Ford Motor Co. at Detroit, and another for the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., at Youngstown, Ohio.

Foreign Markets.

London—Trading on the stock exchange here was unaffected today by President von Hindenburg's death, which already had been discounted. Also there was no reaction from the continental markets as Berlin and Paris were closed. After the opening a confident tone developed, assisted by better Wall street news. Investment issues, industrials, gold mining shares and transatlantic stocks improved, while German bonds were strong. The market closed firm.

Paris—Closed in observance of Marshal Lyautey's funeral.

Union Pacific Profits Decline To $6,507,256

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Net income of the Union Pacific Railroad Co. in the first six months totaled $6,507,256 after taxes and charges, equal, after preferred dividend requirements to $2.03 a share on the common stock. This compares with $6,754,756 or $2.14 a share on the first half of 1933.

Gross income for the period was $54,694,620, compared with $47,745,000. Operating expenses were $39,892,910, against $34,457,310.

The Radio Corporation of America reports for the six months ended June 30 a net income transferred to surplus of $1,771,580. This figure is after the deduction of interest, depreciation, amortization of patents, and Federal income taxes.

For the first six months of 1933, the corporation reported a net loss of $1,268,211.

On June 30, 1934, the total surplus reported was $11,040,671.

North American Aviation, Inc., and wholly owned subsidiaries incurred a net loss of $456,069 in the first six months after deducting depreciation charges of $169,083, but before including a profit of $1,199,941 realized from the sale of securities. Including the latter, the first half year's profit would amount to $743,872.

American Steel Foundries Co. report net profit in the first six months amounted to $251,818 after charges and minority interest compared with a net loss of $907,072 in the same period last year.

Consolidated Cigar Corporation had net profit in the first six months of $282,841 after charges compared with $113,321 in the first half of 1933.

Adams Millis Corporation reports consolidated net income in the first six months of $868,572 after charges, equal, after preferred dividend requirements, to $1.97 a share on the common. This compares with $191,689, or 83 cents a common share in the first half of 1933.

Sterling Products, Inc., reports net earnings for the quarter ended June 30 of $2,263,215 after all charges, equal to $1.29 a share. This compares with $2,773,796, or $1.58 a share, in the preceding quarter.

A semiannual dividend of $1.00 a share has been declared by Compania Swift Internacional. The dividend is payable September 1, 1934, to shareholders of record August 15, 1934.

Directors of the Chrysler Corporation today declared the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share, payable September 29 to stock of record September 1. Three months ago an extra dividend of 25 cents a share was declared in addition to the regular payment.

In the June quarter the corporation reported net income of $4,888,294 after charges, compared with $7,785,616 in the same quarter last year, and for the first six months net profit was $8,192,084 after charges, equal to $1.88 a share, compared with $4,747,534 in the first half of 1933, which was equal to $1.10 a share.

Canada Wheat Exports Reduced 8,000 Bushels

Ottawa, Aug. 2 (AP).—Export clearances of wheat for the week ended July 27 amounted to 2,485,981 bushels, a decrease of almost 8,000 bushels, as compared with 2,493,913 bushels in the previous week, says a report issued today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Export clearances of wheat for the corresponding week last year amounted to 2,718,925 bushels.

Goods Markets.

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Cotton goods were quiet and steady today. Occasional sales of print cloths for spot delivery were made at 9 cents for 80 squares. Rayon fabrics for fall did better, with fancies leading. Silk goods were quiet. Women's coatings for fall sold more freely. Lower wool prices were expected to stimulate cloth sales. Burlaps were quiet.

Wheat Closes Irregular in Profit-Taking

Chicago, Aug. 2 (AP).—An upward trend showed itself strongly in grain markets today, but big profit-taking sales on price advances rendered the net result about a draw.

The advances, which at least temporarily failed to hold, were based on August unofficial crop estimates issued today indicating that United States 1934 production of wheat, corn, oats, rye and barley totaled the smallest in 40 years, and was below the average annual aggregate of ordinary domestic needs.

Production of these grains this season was figured as 2,600,000,000 bushels, compared with 3,816,000,000 bushels in 1933 and 5,230,000,000 in 1932.

Wheat Closes Irregular.

Wheat closed irregular, ⅝ lower to ¼ higher than yesterday's finish; corn, ⅛ to ½ down; oats, unchanged to ¼ up, and provisions 7 to 15 cents gain.

Friends of higher prices for grains were handicapped not only by persistent heavy profit-taking on the part of holders, but also by the fact that today's estimates issued by a majority of Chicago statisticians were less bullish than was the estimate put out several days ago by one widely known statistician here. Special interest was attached to the new estimates of corn yield, and these were shown to average 1,658,000,000 bushels, against the latest previous unofficial estimates of 1,616,000,000 bushels.

Domestic spring wheat this season, according to the average of today's unofficial estimates, will be 78,000,000, compared with 72,000,000 bushels unofficially predicted a few days ago.

Rallies From Lows.

Rallies from the day's lowest prices for wheat amounted to 1¾ cents and for corn 1⅝ cents. These rallies were more or less associated with trade statements that indicated domestic grain crops this season in proportion to population would be the smallest on record and would amount to practically one-half of the average per capita production during the five-year period 1910-1914.

Highest prices of the day in wheat reached shortly before the close, but gains melted away under enlarged profit taking at the last.

Corn and oats showed less rallying power than wheat did. Good rains in central Illinois and in the Ohio Valley were something of a drag on upturns of the field grains.

Nation's Bank Clearings Cut to $4,521,046,000

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Bank clearings in the principal cities of the United States during the week ended August 1 totaled $4,521,046,000, a decrease of 8 per cent from the $4,911,942,000 reported in the same week last year, according to reports to Dun & Bradstreet.

Clearings in New York City were $3,003,332,000, a decline of 12.6 per cent from the $3,437,315,000 in the year before.

Among cities reporting a substantial increase was Detroit with a gain of 46.5 per cent, while clearings declined 29 per cent in Minneapolis, reflecting the industrial strife in that area during the period.

Rand Mine Contracts for Air-Cooling

Plan, if Successful, Expected to Aid Recovery by Increasing Gold.

Plans to air-condition the famous Robinson mine in the Rand near Johannesburg are described in Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, publication of the American Chemical Society, as a pioneer industrial operation which promises to multiply the world's gold supply and hasten economic recovery.

"The Rand produces about half the world's gold with the amount definitely limited by conditions in the deep mines, some of which already extend to 8,000 feet below the surface," it is pointed out.

"Here temperatures from 100 degrees to 120 degrees Fahrenheit, combined with a humidity from 90 to 100 per cent, definitely limit operation, and while there is reason to believe that the richest deposits of gold lie at still greater depths, it has been humanly impossible to work them.

Plan for Air-Cooling.

"The plan is to force dry, cold air, traveling at a rate of approximately thirty miles an hour, to the lowest parts of the mine. This will cool and dehumidify, as well as thoroughly ventilate, these remote depths where men strive for the precious metal.

"This first installation of the Robinson mine must be regarded as something of an experiment on which a half-million dollars is being risked, but the chances for success are large and the return on the operation promises to be most gratifying.

"There are doubtless other instances where air-conditioning will allow further production of gold. In Nevada, for example, some mining operations were abandoned because of working conditions in the mines, even though not so deep as those in the Rand, rather than because of lack of ore."

Increase of Gold.

A great increase in the production of gold, it is held, would support amply any possible trade revival, enable the world to return to the gold standard, greatly restore confidence and cause commodity prices to rise.

"In fact," the journal adds, "it would quickly change the present world economic situation. It has been frequently said that, of all factors, science is the most likely to help find a way out of the slump now in its fifth year. It would seem that science may make good this prediction."

The contract to air-condition the Robinson mine has been awarded to the Carrier-Brunswick International, Inc., a division of the Carrier Engineering Corporation, of Newark, N. J.

Four to Face Jury In Truck Seizure

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 2 (Spl.).—Four men are held for action of the Amelia County jury in connection with the hi-jacking of a $5,000 cargo of cigarettes and cotton goods from a truck in June.

Fay O. Green, 33, Joe Williams and Willard S. Barnow, of Richmond, and C. P. Parrish, of near Ferncliffe, were held for the grand jury following a hearing before Trial Justice J. G. Jefferson, jr.

Billy Lentz, driver of the van, was overpowered when he slowed for a railroad crossing, his eyes and mouth closed with adhesive tape and he was looked inside the truck. The hi-jackers took the truck, abandoning it when it ran out of gasoline.

Maryland Barn Burns; Loss Fixed at $15,000

Westminister, Md., Aug. 2 (Spl.). Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the large barn on the property of Herbert Cover, at Bachmans Valley, today.

Built to house several hundred head of cattle, the barn was one of the largest in Carroll County. The loss is estimated at more than $15,000. Two silos, hay and equipment stored in the building also were burned. Only eight steers were in the barn when the fire was discovered, and were led to safety.

Richmond Bishop Relieved of Duties

Mgr. Kaup to Assume Work of Ill Churchman.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—Mgr. Felix F. Kaup of Richmond, whose appointment as apostolic administrator of the diocese of Richmond by the Holy See was announced yesterday in Washington, will take over many of the duties formerly performed by the Right Rev. Andrew James Brennan, bishop of the Richmond diocese, who is a patient in St. Vincent's Hospital in this city, it was learned here.

Bishop Brennan has been in ill health for several months. His condition is showing improvement but he is still unable to perform the duties of his office.

Mgr. Kaup will have full authority over the diocese until such time as Bishop Brennan is able to resume his duties, it was learned here. He formerly was stationed at St. Paul's Catholic Church, Portsmouth, as assistant pastor, this being his first charge after he was ordained to the priesthood. He served there from 1902 to 1907 under the late Father Thomas J. Brady.

DICK TRACY — Happy Days Are Here Again

Busy Wives.

About a hundred years ago, when as a kid, I played outdoors, the housewives teetered to and fro, intent upon their endless chores. Their lives were just one round of toil, without vacation, pause or rest, and only death at last could foil the wild ambition they possessed. They were at work before the sun had risen in the shining east, and late at night their work was done, and they could sleep two hours at least. They washed about a ton of duds whenever Monday came along, and only paused to peel the spuds, preparing for the dinner gong. They baked a hundred loaves of bread, perhaps two hundred, once a week, that all the hired men might be fed, so they could labor like a streak. They kept the old shack clean and neat; and swept and mopped with aching backs, and toiled along on blistered feet to give the parlor floor some wax. Though tired and sore and tuckered out, they must put up the winter eats, and so they filled some kegs with kraut, and pickled cucumbers and beets. And if, exhausted, they sat down, worn out by labor's jars and knocks, they'd have to mend some ancient gown, or darn tired father's woolen socks. Though but a kid I wondered why they stuck to dreary job and task; it would be better for to lie in some cool glade and dream and bask. When I behold the modern dames reclining in their padded chairs, and playing bridge and other games, I only say, "Good sense is theirs."

Scout Camps In Capital Area Given Praise

Inspections Are Made by Mills, Water Safety Director.

Fred C. Mills, director of swimming and water safety in the National Department of Camping, has been in Washington for three days inspecting the Council Camps—Camp Roosevelt at Calvert Cliffs on the Chesapeake Bay and Camp Wilson at Burnt Mills, Md. Mr. Mills is enthusiastic about the camps and camping opportunities in and about Washington. Two hundred and fifty different items are checked in the inspection and they include the objectives of the camp; its leadership and organization, camp site, equipment and commissary, the program; health, safety and sanitation and the camp finances.

Astronomy Night.

Scouts and scouters interested in astronomy will be the guests of U. S. Lyons, merit badge counselor in astronomy, August 15. Only 100 can be accommodated.

Extra Week at Camp Roosevelt.

It has been definitely decided that Camp Roosevelt will continue an extra week until August 27. Scouts, especially those who have been at summer school, may want to register for 10 or 12 days. They can do so at the rate of $1 a day.

A Suggestion.

Invite the family to go on a picnic to Camp Wilson Sunday afternoon and stay for vesper services at 5 p. m. The camp is open to visitors every Sunday all day and every evening from 5 to 8 o'clock.

Fainted . . . Had to be Carried Home from Work

Here's Help for Girls Who Work

Ruth Hirsch is a typist in a railroad office in Dayton, Ohio. "Several times I fainted", she writes, "and had to be carried home. Since I took your medicine I can work right through each month. I feel well and strong now".

Women are learning by welcome experience that these little chocolate coated tablets keep them on the job every day. Try them. Probably you can avoid a periodic upset.

Only an American Gin can make an American Cocktail

In the following questions and answers, The Fleischmann Distilling Corporation presents some important facts about gin which every American should know

1. What is gin?

Dry gin is a "potable" spirit, the characteristic flavor of which is derived chiefly from the juniper berry.

It is made in either of two ways—by distilling or mixing.

2. What is the difference between Distilled Gin and "Synthetic" Gin?

A distilled gin is one in which the juniper berries and the other flavoring ingredients are actually distilled into the spirits—the resulting product being a 100% distilled gin.

At no point in its production is it mixed or compounded. Fleischmann's Dry Gin is a distilled gin.

"Synthetic" Gin, as its name implies, is a home-made mixture commonly known as "bathtub gin."

The alcohol is mixed with juniper extract and other flavors to produce this type of gin. It usually tastes "raw"—unpalatable—when taken straight or in a mixed drink.

3. What is "London Gin"?

"London Gin" is a generic name for a certain kind of gin—just as "Sherry" means a certain kind of wine.

There are many so-called "London Gins" made in this country. Some are imported.

London Gins were not originally intended to be used for mixing.

4. Is Fleischmann's Dry Gin a "London Gin"?

No! Fleischmann's Gin is an American Gin—distilled from American grains—from an American formula—for American taste and drinking customs, by an American company.

5. What do you mean by American taste and drinking customs?

The American people as a whole have an entirely different taste in gin than most Europeans. They prefer a mild, smooth-tasting gin to the more pungent "raw-tasting" London Gin.

The English and the Europeans prefer to drink their London Dry Gin or their Holland Gin straight—"undiluted."

6. Which gin is best for cocktails?

An American gin—like Fleischmann's. The cocktail, the Tom Collins and other mixed gin drinks are strictly American inventions. In fact, the words "American Bar" mean a cocktail bar in every country of the world.

To make an American cocktail—such as a Martini, or a Bronx, or an Orange Blossom—requires a smooth American Gin—such as Fleischmann's, that is distilled especially for blending with other liquors or fruit juices—and not a gin originally intended to be taken straight.

Fleischmann's is so distilled that, when mixed, it releases hidden, subtle flavors—creating a beverage more fragrant, more charming than any single ingredient.

7. How long has Fleischmann been making gin?

Since 1870 (interrupted only by Prohibition) Fleischmann has been making the highest quality American gin.

8. Does The Fleischmann Distilling Corporation make any other liquor?

No! Only gin. It requires the most intricate distillations—as well as extreme care, skill, experience to produce a pure, satisfying gin like Fleischmann's.

9. Does Fleischmann control every process in the manufacture of its gin?

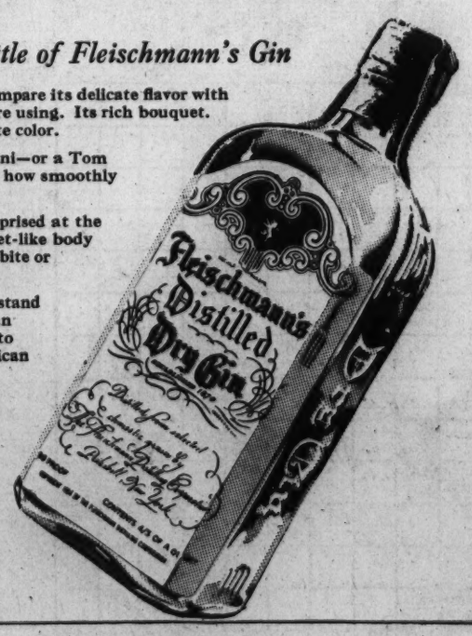
Yes. Fleischmann controls every step from the purchase and fermentation of the grain to the finished product.

Fleischmann believes that in no other way can a distiller produce a consistently fine gin—free from the impurities that cause a "raw" taste in cocktails.

Buy a Bottle of Fleischmann's Gin

—or a case. Compare its delicate flavor with the kind you are using. Its rich bouquet. Its crystal-white color.

Mix up a Martini—or a Tom Collins. Notice how smoothly it blends.

You will be surprised at the soft, mild, velvet-like body—free from all bite or sting.


You will understand why "it takes an American Gin to make an American Cocktail."
